HUNT BANKER; SUICIDE NOTE

JUDGES TO FACE RECEIVERSHIPS INQUIRY TODAY

The Sinnett legislative committee investigating alleged racket conditions in foreclosures and receiverships yesterday began an examination of the judicial and investment bankers' phases of Cook county receiverships. Chancellors who have ruled on foreclosures since 1929 will be called before the committee today, it was stated last evening.

Circuit Judge Francis S. Wilson, who has been on the bench of the First district of the Illinois Appellate court since 1928, was called to the witness stand late in the afternoon to tell of foreclosure conditions prior to the market crash. He also told of Appellate court rulings on several receivership questions.

Greenebaum Denies Fraud Charges.

Preceding him to the witness stand was Edgar N. Greenebaum, executive vice president and secretary of the 76 year old Greenebaum & Sons Investment company. He underwent a grilling during the morning and after his return to the witness stand after Judge Wilson appeared. Charges that the investment company fraudulently advertised certain of the bond issues it floated and entered into schemes deliberately to carry out defaults on others were vehemently denied by Greenebaum.

The determination of the legislative committee to call chancery judges before it came as a surprise yesterday morning an hour after the hearing opened in the council chambers. Greenebaum had hardly begun his testimony when the committee members called a recess after receiving a telephone call from the office of Attorney General Otto Kerner, who was present in the committee room.

Call on Megan for Records.

When the committee members, E. W. Cross of Jerseyville and Ole E. Benson of Ottawa, both Republicans, went to the attorney general's office they found Charles P. Megan, president of the Bar association. He had been asked to produce records of chancery cases handled by judges who were severely censured in recent reports made public by the association.

Both members of the committee then admitted that they planned to subject chancery judges to the examination which bondholders, building managers, receivers, and attorneys for receivers already have undergone. They stated that Judge Wilson would be called to explain conditions in the chancery courts before the development of the evils which the committee is seeking to cure.

Other chancellors will be invited to appear before the committee today. Among those judges mentioned as future witnesses were Michael Feinberg and Stanley H. Klarkowski, both Republicans, and Harry M. Fisher, Democrat, all of the Circuit court. The committee members stated that if the judges declined the invitation they would be subpoenaed forthwith.

Democratic Members Absent.

The revelation that judges would be called before the committee also gave rise to charges that political pressure has been brought on the committee to force a halt to the investigation. It was pointed out that all the Democratic members of the committee were absent from the hearing yesterday.

Thomas P. Sinnett, Rock Island, chairman of the committee, was seen in Springfield yesterday. He refused to comment on the charges.

It was asserted that the Republican members of the committee had lost the support of their Democratic colleagues and planned to carry their investigation into the courts of Democratic judges. It was pointed out that both Klarkowski and Feinberg had recently been renominated on the Democratic coalition ticket, although they were denied renomination by Cook county Republicans.

Judge Wilson Tells of Customs.

Judge Wilson, in his testimony said that he had served in the chancery courts from 1923 until 1928 when he was appointed to the Appellate court. During those years, he said, foreclosure suits were comparatively few. He said that he had made no particular rule in appointing either individuals or corporations receivers. The receiver was usually chosen by counsel in the case and approved by the court.

When asked if there were professional receivers in the courts, the judge replied that there were only a few. He said he had known of only

J. W. HARRIMAN OF N. Y. MISSING ON EVE OF TRIAL

Fears Expressed He Will End Life.

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—A feeble man of 68, infirm in mind and body and apparently bent on self-destruction, lost himself in the city today despite efforts by the police department and agents of the department of justice to find him and stay his hand. He was Joseph W. Harriman, former head of the Harriman National bank, now awaiting trial on $25,000 bail on an indictment charging him with making false entries totaling $1,713,225.

Just before noon the banker tottered out of the Regent nursing home and vanished. Behind him in a desk of the fourth floor room occupied by himself and his wife, who was out, he left a sheaf of farewell notes addressed to friends and members of his family. Their contents, which were not made public, convinced George S. Leisure, Mr. Harriman's attorney, that the elderly banker would not be seen alive again.

Trial Set for Monday.

Mr. Harriman, whose case is on the federal court calendar for next Monday, had been a patient of the sanitarium since April 10, when he was taken to court on a stretcher to enter a not guilty plea. He has been under the care of three physicians and has been watched over constantly by a day and a night nurse. Until today he had not been on the street alone.

As soon as his disappearance was reported to the police by Mr. Leisure, who communicated his fear of suicide to them, a radio alarm was broadcast. A second alarm was sent out over the air later, and police teletype machines in several counties tapped out the story of his disappearance.

Mr. Harriman, whose walk was described by Mr. Leisure as a "feeble hobble," weighs about 160 pounds, has a ruddy complexion, blue eyes, a small mustache and gray hair. When he left the sanitarium he was wearing a gray checked suit, a white shirt, black shoes, a black necktie and a soft brown hat.

Walks Slowly Away.

He had no baggage of any sort and so far as known only a small amount of change. The doorman said Mr. Harriman walked off slowly in an easterly direction.

He did not visit his old office at the bank or appear at the homes of any of his relatives. Mr. Harriman's Long Island estate, High Farms, and his town house at 2 East 70th street had been pledged to the bank into which Mr. Leisure declared his client had poured all his personal fortune. That was one reason, it was explained, that Mrs. Harriman was sharing his room with barred windows at the nursing home.

This morning Mrs. Harriman had an engagement unknown to her husband. About ten minutes after she had left the banker told Miss Caroline Jones, a nurse, that he was going downstairs.

Attorney Finds Notes.

Upon learning that her patient had left the building Miss Jones notified Mr. Leisure. The attorney found the scribbled notes of farewell, telephoned the police and then joined the search for the missing banker.

George Z. Medalie, United States attorney, who was to present the government's case against Mr. Harriman, learned of the disappearance while presenting evidence of income tax evasion against another leader of the banking world, Charles E. Mitchell, former president of the National City bank. The attorney directed an assistant to investigate Mr. Harriman's disappearance.

Thomas J. Cullen, agent in charge of the United States bureau of investigation, announced that points of entry on the Canadian border were being watched. Through the offices of the department of justice in Washington, Mr. Cullen said, he had made arrangements to receive immediate notification if the banker sought to obtain a passport.

Plans to Make Notes Public.

Mr. Leisure insisted that there was no doubt in his mind but that Mr. Harriman had gone away intending to end his life. When he is found, whether he be dead or alive, the lawyer said, he would make public the contents of the notes the banker left "because they form part of the picture." He insisted that the notes made no reference to the affairs of the bank or the criminal charges against Mr. Harriman. They did, however, he said, reveal the condition of the man's mind.

SNAKE-BITE MEDICINE

Order Bill to Continue City Taxi Monopoly

The council subcommittee on taxicabs yesterday ordered the corporation counsel to draft a new taxicab ordinance in accordance with a report which would continue for a number of years at least the present virtual monopoly of the business enjoyed by the corporately related Yellow and Checker cab companies.

The report was prepared by Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., engineer for the local transportation committee, in collaboration with Ald. John Toman [23d], chairman of the subcommittee. The accompanying report suggests a 5 cent cut in the present flag charge of 25 cents for the first quarter mile, which would constitute a 7 per cent reduction in the average taxicab bill.

Fares Highest in Country.

Even with the reduction, however, Chicago would still have the highest metropolitan taxicab fares in the country. The high Chicago rates, fixed in boom years, have been maintained through the depression, it is said, principally by the present monopoly taxicab ordinance, conferring autocratic powers on the public vehicle license commission, a bureau in the police department of which First Deputy Commissioner John A. Alcock is chairman and Lieut. James Killackey secretary.

Under the provisions of this ordinance the commission has refused to grant licenses to independent taxicab operators, a number of whom are running at reduced fares, unless they could show that public convenience and necessity demanded an increase in the number of cabs on the streets. Efforts to present such evidence are opposed by attorneys for the Yellow and Checker companies.

Limits New Licenses.

The proposed ordinance would make no change in the powers of the commission, and would set definite standards for admission of new taxicabs to the Chicago field. It is recommended that no new licenses be granted until the average mileage of the cabs now operating is 90 miles a day. Statistics in the report, furnished almost entirely by the Yellow Cab company, show that at present the average mileage is only 45 a day.

During 1929, the last year of the boom, the average was only 95 miles per day per cab. No mention is made in the report that the Checker and Yellow companies possess licenses for several hundred cabs which they are now holding off the streets in garages.

Only the less drastic of the remedies suggested at previous hearings of the subcommittee for dealing with traffic congestion, particularly in the loop, caused by empty taxicabs cruising slowly in search of fares, and by excessive use of curb space for taxicab stands, are suggested in the report.

To curb cruising the report suggests a mileage tax of 2 mills per mile, after giving each cab 2,500 miles exemption for the $5 license fee now paid. At this rate a cab cruising through the loop at the rate of five miles an hour would pay only 1 cent for an hour.

The report recommends that the present cab stands be continued for the time being, but that later stands be investigated and their length limited to accommodate the average number of cabs engaged there during each half hour of the business day.

An informal recommendation that taxicabs revive the old charge for extra passengers, in disuse for years, is contained in the report. A charge of 5 cents for each extra passenger, on the basis of statistics given in the report, would wipe out nearly half of the saving to passengers involved in the proposed reduction in the flag charge.

Fair Visitors Complain.

After the session Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] remarked that visitors from cities where the cab fares are lower receive the impression that the Chicago fares have been boosted. One visitor stated, according to the alderman: "I see that they have raised the taxicab fares to gouge the visitors to the World's Fair." The alderman informed the visitor that the present fares have been in effect a number of years.

GOLD COASTERS CRY FOR BEER AS POLICE HALT SCHNITZELBANK

The Barons B. R. Maydell and R. von Ungern-Sternberg, both of the old Austrian nobility and accepted in Chicago society, recently announced they were going to open a Bavarian schnitzelbank last night at 1023 North State street.

A Bavarian schnitzelbank, it appears, is a place where one dances, drinks 3.2 beer, and eats supper. For the grand opening there appeared some 200 persons, many of them from the gold coast, to give the business men barons a good send-off.

But the barons had overlooked an important point. They hadn't had the application for their beer parlor license approved. So the grand opening was attended by Lieut. George De Mar and several squads from the Chicago avenue station, who announced to all concerned that no food and no beer could be served. The lieutenant had his instructions, he said, from the police commissioner's office.

The gold coasters protested. One or two made informal speeches, demanding to know whether Willie Connors, committeeman of the 42d ward, was responsible for the outrage. Connors was called and said he had nothing to do with the closing and was surprised to hear of it. Perhaps an hour later Lieut. De Mar was informed there had been a mistake and the schnitzelbank could open. The police refused to tell where the latest order originated, but it was reliably stated Mayor Kelly gave it.

After years of unsuccessful toil on inventions, Victor C. Goodridge, 40 years old, inventor and chemist, hit upon one invention that clicked. He ended his life with it.

He was found dead yesterday in his apartment at 6942 Kimbark avenue. On a table beside him lay dozens of little gadgets and appliances, products of his genius. In another room, assembled in queer array, stood his fatal and successful invention. For want of a better description police called it a death machine.

Device Makes Lethal Gas.

From this instrument, a product of Goodridge's chemical and inventive skill, had flowed a lethal gas. This killed him. Last night Dr. Thomas L. Dwyer, coroner's physician, said that Goodridge had concocted a form of carbon monoxide fume, a deadly gas which forms a large part of the exhaust fumes of automobile motors.

Goodridge's body was found lying on a couch close to the kitchen. From his side and through a small hole bored in the kitchen door ran a long, thin rubber hose.

The hose led to the death machine. This consisted of four small bottles on top of a gas range oven and a larger bottle standing above a gas burner. In each was a quantity of chemical liquid of varying colors. All five bottles were connected by small tubes. The larger container, evidently the master bottle, possibly contained the chief poisonous ingredient.

How Invention Works.

As police reconstruct the arrangement, Goodridge heated the poison in the master bottle. The fumes rose and passed through the other bottles, the mixture forming a fatal gas. This passed through the long tube which was attached to the fourth small bottle.

Death probably was swift and painless, police said. In any event it was deliberate, they said. On a dresser they found a note addressed to his friend, Attorney Warwick Shaw, 77 West Washington street, announcing that he was "taking the great adventure."

Attorney Shaw said he had known Goodridge for many years. Goodridge owned an interest in the Kimbark avenue building with a brother, D. Ernest Goodridge of Blackpool, England. He feared he would lose the building, Mr. Shaw said. According to the lawyer, Goodridge had worked for various companies here as an electrician and chemist, but had been idle several months. He had experimented in chemistry and tried his hands for years on inventions, he said.

Bomb Tientsin Rail Station; Many Injured

TIENTSIN, China, May 20 [Saturday].—(AP)—A bomb explosion here yesterday killed or injured a number of persons and partly wrecked the east railroad station.

After the explosion the Chinese military authorities established a strict cordon about the station and refused entry into that area. Authorities stated that the blast occurred on the station platform as the passenger train from Tangku for Peiping arrived.

Station Is Crowded.

The train guards were removing articles from the baggage cars, authorities said, when an incendiary bomb hidden in a box among the baggage blew up. The blast occurred just opposite the station ticket offices near the principal exit, which was jammed with outgoing passengers.

The number of dead and injured, authorities said, was not yet determined, but it is believed they were less than twenty.

City in Panic.

Following the bombing of the railroad station numerous mysterious explosions occurred throughout the city. A group of gunmen, described by Chinese as hirelings of the Manchukuo government, sought to precipitate disorders in the Chinese city within Tientsin by firing recklessly and seeking to inflame the population.

The Chinese were in a high state of excitement, but the quick response of Chinese military police resulted in the gunmen being dispersed. About a dozen were arrested.

Chinese sources claimed the Japanese military were seeking to bring pressure on the Chinese to force them to accept Japanese demands for Chinese recognition of Manchukuo and the establishment of a neutral zone between the Great Wall and the Yellow river.

Three Japanese bombing planes flew low over Tientsin this morning and eleven planes flew over Peiping. They dropped circulars urging the Chinese garrisons to revolt.

AN INSOLVENT BANK TURNS TO LIQUID ASSETS

At 7900 South Ashland avenue stands a $160,000 stone building that was erected by John Bain, one time head of a chain of banks, who is now under sentence for his mishandling of money.

It used to house the West Highland State bank, one of the main units of his chain. But the bank was closed in June, 1931, with liabilities of more than a million dollars, and for a time it appeared there was nothing to do with Mr. Bain's monumental structure.

But now that's all changed. Last week two enterprising business men, McMahon and Clancy, went to the city hall and obtained a license to convert the West Highland State bank into a beer saloon. Things are completely liquid in the old bank now, with foaming steins passing over the counters where tellers were wont to pay out on checks and cash registers jingling where other tellers used to accept deposits.

BERLIN ACCEPTS BRITISH PLAN TO DISARM EUROPE

Smooths Path for Geneva Treaty.

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 19.—(AP)—Germany followed up today the conciliatory remarks in Chancellor Hitler's reichstag speech by announcing to the disarmament conference her acceptance of the British plan for an arms convention.

"I hope this will be regarded as new proof of German moderation," Rudolf Nadolny, spokesman for the Berlin government, said in making the announcement.

Nadolny's address, which was conciliatory throughout, was received with many evidences of approval by the conference, which today resumed its sessions full of hope because of President Roosevelt's disarmament initiative and the Hitler pronouncement.

Pledges France's Coöperation.

The French delegate, Rene Massigli, declared that the German statement meant that there was now no obstacle in the way of concluding a disarmament treaty.

Capt. Anthony Eden, British delegate, praised the spirit of the German announcement and emphasized its importance.

The conference decided to send to President Roosevelt a telegram expressing its appreciation for his disarmament proposals and assuring him that they would receive full consideration.

Nadolny told newspaper men that in accepting the MacDonald draft for a convention his government would not press for any fundamental changes in it.

Demands Two Results.

Making his announcement to the conference, Nadolny said:

"The German people maintain and demand that the conference produce two results—first, security by disarmament of the heavily armed states, and second, achievement of equality, rights for Germany."

The British plan, presented two months ago by Prime Minister MacDonald, was accepted by the conference as a basis of discussion. The most formidable reservations advanced to its realization were offered by Japan.

For Germany one of the most important features of the plan is the proposal that all European armies should be short term conscript armies; thus Germany would have to dissolve her reichswehr, a long term professional army, and set up the new system.

Praise Roosevelt's Plea.

The conference adjourned its session until tomorrow.

Praise for President Roosevelt's appeal was spoken both by Nadolny and by Arthur Henderson, president of the conference.

"The message is a contribution to our work whose importance cannot be overrated," Henderson told the delegates.

Mr. Roosevelt's suggestions for determining the aggressor should have a practical value, the chairman asserted.

"I am convinced," he said, "that the majority of the governments will unite against a nation guilty of the crime of war."

Pleads for Agreement.

Before the German delegate announced the Berlin decision, Henderson said he was struck forcibly by Hitler's warning that any new war would cause the collapse of the social and political order.

"If we fail at Geneva," he continued, "no one can predict the outcome. We must remember that war is the epitome of all human folly."

The conference chairman made an impassioned appeal to the delegates to reach a disarmament agreement before the world economic conference started in London June 12. Such an agreement, he said, would answer the appeal of Mr. Roosevelt.

FRANCE TO KEEP ARMY

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 19.—A determination not to reduce France's armaments until other nations have given tangible assurances of a willingness to do the same was expressed by Premier Daladier during the budget debate in the senate today. At the same time the premier voiced the opinion that France's national defense is secured by the military forces now at her disposal.

Due to the government's determined stand the senate voted to approve the war department budget as it now stands, although the appropriations for every other ministry were slashed 5 per cent in an effort to reduce the deficit.

Daladier's explanations furnish the most complete and clear cut statement of French armaments yet made.

Stresses Need for Army.

"We can have confidence in our army, and I know the chiefs of the army feel the same way," the premier said. "Our national defense is assured. But I would like to know how we can make another appropriation reduction of 5 per cent. No economy is possible on the living expenses of the troops. As for military training, I would never consent to a reduction there. We need a well trained army. Otherwise there is no use of having any army at all.

"Perhaps a small economy could be made in the maintenance of buildings and stocks. In any case, considering the actual state of the world, it would be dangerous to try to save anything on new constructions or renewals of supplies. If the international conferences now in progress accomplish anything we might make reductions. I do not underestimate the difficulties in the way of such an accomplishment, but neither do I want to exaggerate them.

"If the peoples of the world come to understand it is necessary to reach some positive formulas on disarmament reductions in war equipment will be possible, but only then. At the present moment it would be unsafe to slow down our military preparations. Only the future will tell if other nations are ready to disarm."

GOERING REACHES ROME

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 19.—Consultations between Capt. Hermann Goering, Chancellor Hitler's right hand man, and Premier Mussolini on how Germany and Italy may best pool their interests in the disarmament maneuvers will be held over the week-end.

Capt. Goering arrived in Rome by air this evening on a surprise visit. He was welcomed by Gen. Italo Balbo, Italy's air minister. While in Rome Goering will be the guest of Prince Philip von Hesse, son-in-law of King Victor Emmanuel.

May Confer Today.

Arrangements were being made tonight for a conference between Mussolini and Hitler's "henchman" tomorrow. It is believed that Goering is the bearer of highly important communications from Hitler dealing with Germany's acceptance of the British disarmament plan and the proposed formation of Mussolini's four power junta to keep peace in Europe.

Some connection between Goering's visit and Italy's reply to President Roosevelt's message is seen here. In Italy's reply to Washington yesterday Mussolini said he hoped peace arrangements would be made "with equitable and serene evaluation of events and of the rights of all states without distinction." This is interpreted here as a declaration that Italy will support certain conditions which Hitler will make in Germany's final acceptace of a disarmament and non-aggression pact.

DESPONDENT, SHOOTS SELF.

GERMANY OFFERS SETTLEMENT OF POLISH CORRIDOR

Proposes Lithuania and Poland Form Union.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—When Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Chancellor Hitler's special envoy, was in London recently he laid before the British government a scheme for settlement of the Polish corridor [Pomorze] problem. THE TRIBUNE learned this today.

The corridor, which divides Germany proper from East Prussia, has been a sore point for years between Poland and Germany and has long been considered by diplomats as one of the most potential causes for a new European war.

The chief point of the new German proposal is that Poland and Lithuania, which in historic times were one country, should either amalgamate or form a customs and political union. This would give Poland access to the sea at Memel.

Germany Offers New Territory.

Germany also is prepared to cede 9,051 square kilometers [3,494 square miles] of territory on the banks of the Niemen river, bordering East Prussia, to the two powers, thus giving the new state complete control of Memel and its approaches. Germany also is prepared to pay a monetary compensation to Poland for Danzig and the corridor, the sum to be fixed by an impartial arbitrator.

Germany also is prepared to guarantee to the Poles in Danzig and the corridor freedom of conscience, Polish schools and civil institutions and to finance the repatriation of such Poles as desire to return to Poland, and is also prepared to receive a Polish commissioner, enjoying diplomatic immunity, at Danzig for a transition period of 25 years.

The British government immediately communicated the proposal to the Lithuanian minister in London, who at once left for Kaunas. It is reported here that Lithuania might be willing to consider the offer favorably if Poland would agree to make Vilna the capital of the federated state.

POLAND ASSERTS RIGHTS.

Polish Pomerania, or Pomorze, which is referred to by Germans as the "corridor," lies between Germany proper and East Prussia, fronting on the Baltic sea. It is 6,327 square miles in area, has a population of 1,086,144 and a coast line of 87 miles. This is exclusive of the free state of Danzig, which is 754 square miles in area and has a population of 407,517.

Poles point out that Pomorze, Poland's only maritime province, became part of the old kingdom in 968, that Danzig was incorporated in 1466, and that for 306 years the two were part of the nation until the first partition of Poland in 1772 by Frederick the Great.

Poland asserts that the partitioning treaties were rescinded by Germany and Russia while the world war was in progress, and restitution of Pomorze and free use of Danzig was made a fact by the treaty of Versailles.

Quarrel Over Population.

There are more Poles than Germans in Pomorze, but Danzig is predominantly German. Much political strife has gone on continuously over the classification of the population in both districts.

In the early 1920's most Polish shipping was sent through Danzig, but later Poland built up the port of Gdynia, only a few miles away, and used it for a constantly increasing flow of traffic.

The Memel territory [943 square miles, population 146,000], which by the treaty of Versailles was detached from Germany and placed under the control of the conference of ambassadors, was handed over to Lithuania on Feb. 16, 1923, subject to certain conditions intended to regulate the use of the port by both Lithuania and Poland.

Lithuanians claim that the capital of Lithuania is Vilna, which Poland seized in 1920 and for which a battle—at first sanguinary, lately diplomatic—has been going on ever since. Lithuania's official capital today is Kaunas [Kovno].

WOMAN NOVELIST WHO "SLANDERED" NAZIS SENTENCED TO PRISON

VIENNA, May 19.—(AP)—Dr. Rose Meller, novelist and playwright, who police said confessed playing the double rôle of attacker and victim in an "attempted Nazi assassination" in February, was convicted today of fraud and slander. She was sentenced to six months' heavy penal servitude.

The prosecuting attorney demanded the heaviest punishment, asserting that Dr. Meller staged the "attack" in order to denounce the German Nazis at a time of political tension.

Slashing herself four times with a knife, it was charged, she called police and told them the wounds were inflicted by a young Nazi. She presented a list of Viennese Jews, apparently targets for attack, which she said the youths left behind. Later police said she confessed that the wounds were self-inflicted and that the list of names was written on her own typewriter.

GERMANY PLANS TO SAVE PEASANT BY CUTTING TAX

Hugenberg Bares Drastic Agriculture Scheme.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 19.—The international agricultural commission today was told by Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist minister of agriculture, that the reich will begin Germany's resurrection by saving the small farmer and peasant. The commission is holding its annual convention here under the chairmanship of Marquis de Vogue of France.

"One-third of the Germans who are gainfully employed in agriculture earn only one-sixth of the national income," Dr. Hugenberg said. "This must be remedied by reducing the cost of production, by lessening interest payments of the farmer, tax reductions, and increasing farm prices by tariffs on foreign products to eliminate low world market prices."

Mortgage Holiday Decreed.

Meanwhile the reich's cabinet decreed that a partial mortgage moratorium granted farmers shall be extended to the entire population. This will delay foreclosures by six months.

A second decree installs labor trustees who are responsible for the settlement of wage disputes until professional bodies are fully organized.

The cabinet also agreed not to issue decrees for protecting national symbols, improving internal shipping and altering penal measures. The last puts new teeth in the espionage laws. It will permit the expulsion of undesirable aliens, an international provision which Germany heretofore used less frequntly than the United States or England.

The government also decided not to apply racial discrimination against stock exchange brokers. Thus, Jews may continue their professional operations, except for the imposition of a general age limit of 65, which will mean compulsory retirement.

To Build Germany Anew.

BERLIN, May 19.—(AP)—Robert Ley, Chancellor's Hitler's trade union commissioner, said today that Germany soon will be reorganized as a "staendestat." This means that the government will be built on the principle of vocations and callings rather than geographical parliamentary representation.

HITLER OFFERS OLD FAMILY POST TO EX-KAISER'S NEPHEW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 19.—Prince Philip von Hesse, son-in-law of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, has been invited by Chancellor Hitler to participate in the Nazi controlled government, it was learned today. He is the first German prince to receive such recognition.

According to the Telegrafen Union, Nationalist news agency, Prince Philip will be appointed governor of Hessen-Nassau, formerly the duchy of his family.

Prince Philip married Princess Mafalda of the reigning family of Italy Sept. 23, 1925. He is a member of the non-reigning branch of the Hesse family. The prince is a nephew of the former kaiser.

FRANK PARKER, AIRPLANE BOOZE RUNNER, IS SHOT

Frank J. Parker, 40 years old, once styled the millionaire aviator bootlegger, was shot in the head this morning at Ashland avenue and Jonquil terrace. He was taken to St. Francis hospital in Evanston, where his own physicians were called to attend him. Examination revealed that the wound is not serious, the bullet having furrowed the skull.

According to his story, he was driving in Ashland avenue to his home at 1614 Jonquil terrace and was about to round the corner of the terrace when a car carrying three men crowded him to the curb. They pulled him out of the car, he said, and shot him when he resisted.

Parker told Lieut. Frank Holzen and Detectives William Ford and George Helstern of the Rogers Park station that the men were probably robbers. Police doubt this. They said Parker had probably been put on the spot.

Parker made millions in the bootleg industry through distilleries in Canada.

JAPAN PUTS PRICE ON ACCEPTANCE OF PEACE PLAN

TOKIO, May 19.—(AP)—Acceptance "in principle," but with strong reservations, of President Roosevelt's disarmament proposals, will probably be sent by the Japanese government to Washington next week, a foreign office spokesman said today.

The spokesman called President Roosevelt's suggestions "highly laudable," but, referring to the proposal that no nation should send any troops across any frontier, he entered a reservation.

"Japan must call attention to the peculiar situation in the far east," he said. "We have learned at our cost the danger of signing international pledges without sufficiently clarifying what pledges the parties thereto really meant. If the world recognized the Great Wall as the boundary between Manchukuo and China, we would accept unreservedly."

ALD. COUGHLIN OPENS STRAW HAT SEASON TODAY

Rain or shine, Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st], frock coated Beau Brummel of the city council, will appear on the streets today under a straw hat. Many of his colleagues reported that they will do likewise in respect to the proclamation issued by the veteran alderman in which he designated today as "Straw Hat" day.

The proclamation was issued under authority conferred upon him by the council. At a recent meeting he was appointed a committee of one not only to set aside a day for the opening of the straw hat season but also, by his own example, to set this year's style. With his new headgear Ald. Coughlin will display the badge that he wore as an alderman during the World's Fair of 1893.

The style of straw hat to be worn today was not divulged by the alderman yesterday.

U. S. ADVISED TO FINANCE JOBS BY EVANSTON SCRIP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Evanston's "Elrma money" was proffered to the house ways and means committee today as an example of the most nearly painless method of raising the 220 million dollars necessary to finance the administration's public works-industrial control bill.

Not only that, said Irving Fisher, Yale's professorial advocate of currency innovations, but if necessary the whole $3,300,000,000 program of public construction might be financed with an issue of the same sort of currency, in which two cent stamps are attached weekly to a "dollar bill," and the bill redeemed at the end of a year with four cents profit to the government.

It was the first introduction of real inflation talk into the hearing, which closed its second day today and which is due to conclude tomorrow.

Taxes, Taxes, Taxes.

It was taxes, always taxes, that the committee kept coming back to as they listened to industry in the person of Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and labor, in the person of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, urge the passage of the "national industrial recovery" bill.

The thing that bothered them was not so much the proposal to vest the President with vast and untried authority over all industry and trade in the United States. It was nothing so novel as that that made them probe at the witnesses with questions from all sides. It was the old, old problem of getting that made them ask, first, Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], co-author of the bill, then Mr. Green, Mr. Harriman, and Prof. Fisher:

"Yes, that's fine—but what taxes do you suggest?"

Business for Sales Tax.

If business, according to Mr. Harriman, had its way, the 220 million dollars necessary to service the public works bond issue would be raised through a general manufacturers' sales tax at a rate of from 1 to 2 per cent, but with food, medicines, and clothing exempted.

If labor, according to Mr. Green, had its way, the tax would be a combination of a sales tax, strictly limited to the emergency and with food, medicines and clothing exempted; an increase in the present 4 and 8 per cent normal income tax rates to 6 and 10 per cent, and an additional tax of ¾ of one cent on gasoline.

"First of all, of course," said Mr. Harriman, "we should hurry up repeal of the eighteenth amendment. From all the statistics I have seen the expected taxes from liquor would amount to between 400 and 500 millions a year."

Hopes for Early Repeal.

"You seem to think repeal might be completed within the two years this proposed act is to be in force," remarked Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.]

"I believe the American people have enough sense to put it through in two years," Mr. Harriman replied.

Labor would stand for an emergency sales tax in order to put men back to work, said Mr. Green, and he believed the bill would give jobs to six million workers.

The question, said Mr. Harriman, is not what will happen if the bill is passed but what will happen if it is not passed.

The representatives of labor and industry agreed on one point—that the committee should eliminate or amend the requirement that federal grants to states, counties, and municipalities for public works should be limited to 30 per cent of the total cost of the projects.

States, counties, and municipalities—particularly those most needing help—have no means of raising the other 70 per cent of the required funds, they said. And local projects, they argued, would spread the work where it would do the most good and keep workers at home.

Disagree on Total Amount.

On another major point, however, the two witnesses disagreed. Mr. Green thought the amount for public works should be increased to some five billions. Mr. Harriman thought two to two and a half billions was all that could be profitably spent in the next year.

"And by that time," he said, "the effects of this bill and the farm bill will, we hope, have done much to restore prosperity."

Mr. Harriman applauded the proposed relaxation of the anti-trust laws to permit trade and industrial agreements.

"I am not for the abolition of the anti-trust laws, because there should be no return of the danger of private monopoly," he said. "But the anti-trust laws have gone far beyond the prevention of monopolies. The time has come when they should be eased in order to allow the members of trade and industrial groups to reach agreements among themselves that will do away with cut throat competition, guarantee the worker fair wages and hours, and the owner of capital a fair dividend."

Calls Stamp Currency Sound.

He paved the way for Prof. Fisher by saying, in answer to a question, that he did not favor the so-called stamp currency, but that it was a far sounder inflationary method than greebacks or devaluation of the gold dollar.

Prof. Fisher called the stamp currency absolutely sound and likened it to a bond. It had worked in Evanston and in other communities, both here and abroad. It would work nationally, he said.

In addition to using it to finance the carrying charges on the bond issue, and possibly the bond issue itself, he wanted 500 millions of it issued to be paid, a dollar a day for three months, to five million unemployed whom employers would immediately put back to work, paying them additional compensation.

ROOSEVELT SEES RISING HOPE FOR HIS WORLD PLAN

Receives Message from Soviet Chief.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—The President today took stock of the progress made thus far in succoring a stricken world, and he found much to be optimistic about.

After his discussions with leading statesmen of great world powers, aimed at paving the way to success in the world economic conference at London, and viewing the world reaction to his plea cabled over the world for a pact of nonaggression, Mr. Roosevelt declared today that the situation was greatly eased.

He said he believed the whole tone of the conference was improved, and he hailed the speech of Chancellor Hitler as being most helpful.

Wants Action, Not Words.

But there was a large "if" added to the President's optimistic point of view. He indicated that the sea of words spilled in the last few weeks inundating the peoples of many nations with honeyed words of good will and international amity would go for naught "if" the intentions expressed were not translated into real action.

Mr. Roosevelt conferred late today with Secretary of State Hull and Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], who will be the leaders of the American delegation to London. The President was reported to have decided to offer posts on the delegation to Senator Hiram Johnson [Radical, Cal.], Congressman Sam D. McReynolds [Dem., Tenn.] and Congressman James W. Wadsworth [Rep., N. Y.].

May Include Baruch.

There were some reports that Bernard Baruch, New York capitalist supporter of the Roosevelt campaign, might be a delegate. He had coveted the chairmanship, but his many and varied business interests were said to have disqualified him with the President as being a bit too personally interested in the outcome of the conference.

Former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio has been announced by the President, along with Hull and Pittman, as a sure starter for the conference. The delegation will be limited to six or seven members, but a large corps of experts is slated to sail on May 31.

Message from Soviet Chief.

Among the messages from foreign rulers received by the President in response to his cabled plea for the success of the disarmament conference was one from Michail Kalinin, president of the Russian soviet.

"Aggression, whether military or economic, on the part of one country against another," said Kalinin, "affects the interests not only of the two countries concerned but also of all other countries by adding to the existing economic chaos.

"The soviet government intends to continue in its efforts in the spirit of this policy. It will willingly cooperate with governments interested in the realization of such a policy, whether at the Geneva disarmament conference or at the London economic conference."

Ends Sessions with Soong.

President Roosevelt today wound up his conversations with T. V. Soong, minister of finance of China, and, in a joint communique, they referred diplomatically to the Chinese-Japanese war.

"Our thoughts, naturally, have turned to the serious developments in the far east, which have disturbed the peace of the world during the last two years," the statement said.

"There the military forces of two great nations have been engaged in destructive hostilities. We trust that these hostilities may soon cease in order that the present effort of all the nations of the world to reestablish political and economic peace may succeed."

HOMESICK FOR FARM, HE GOES HUNTING FOR A COW TO MILK

Stanley Janseki, 37 years old, 4815 South Loomis street, erred Thursday night when he sat down to contemplate his boyhood days on a farm. He was overcome by the urge to milk a cow.

In the stockyards, he reasoned, there should be a cow. So he crept into the pens leased by the Siegel Weiler Packing company. There Janseki found an amiable cow and was about to milk her when he was seized by Tony Karcor, a watchman.

"I meant no harm," he said. "I merely wanted to see if I could still milk a cow."

Janseki was fined $3 and costs and paid the fine.

Finance Chief Offers Budget Report.

ROME, May 19.—(AP)—An 80 per cent reduction in the debts of the former allied governments to the United States was suggested today in the budget report of the ministry of finance, which was presented in the chamber of deputies by Finance Minister Guido Jung.

Jung returned yesterday from the United States, where he participated in President Roosevelt's economic discussions.

Deputy Giuseppe Mazzini, who wrote the report, said 20 per cent of the debts is all the debtor countries can pay after sacrificing 90 per cent of German reporations.

What Budget Report Said.

The budget report said:

"Presuming a stroke of the sponge on the debts and credits among the European allies, and admitting that all damages of the war and expenses of reconstruction in the devastated war regions are to be assumed by the nations most stricken—Italy, France, and Belgium—it is evident that, as a result of the Lausanne reductions in German reparations, a reduction of 80 per cent in allied payments to America is necessary."

Deputy Mazzini emphasized the "impossibility of paying" so far as Italy is concerned, and asked:

"How can Italy, after having renounced the indemnities from Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria, and not receiving $45,000,000 annually in German reparations, pay an average of $36,000,000 annually to the United States for more than fifty years?"

Asks If France Will Pay.

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—A flat question about whether France will pay the United States the war debt installment due last December and next month was asked Premier Daladier today in the chamber of deputies.

The question came from former Finance Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who asserted that settlement of the debts was essential to all tariff and monetary accords.

The premier is expected to answer this question at next Friday's session of the chamber, when Edouard Herriot is to report on his conversations in Washington with President Roosevelt.

ROOSEVELT RECEIVES COMMITTEE OF BONUS VETS FOR 30 MINUTES

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, pursuing the same tactics that have bewildered the bonus army since it arrived here last week to demand payment of their adjusted service certificates by providing them with good food and comfortable quarters, played another trump today. He received a committee of three leaders while a parade of 1,000 others remained outside and conversed with them man-to-man for 35 minutes.

The President, who probably heard the 1,000 outside the White House calling for a payment of their bonus, told the committee that while his heart ached for the veteran he would be compelled in the face of existing conditions to veto a bonus bill if it were approved by congress.

Mr. Roosevelt also declared to the visitors, and also asked them to take the message to their comrades, that he felt the economy act worked a terrible hardship on the really crippled veteran, but that this would be corrected before the reductions go into effect on July 1.

"He is the most likable fellow I ever met," said one of the committee. "He is just a regular fellow despite his big job, and I am for him."

The President also said, it was reported, that he was working on some plan to help the unemployed and destitute veteran.

STATE COMMERCE CHAMBER FIGHTS NEW TAX ON SALES

Opposition to the new sales tax bill now being written at Springfield was voiced yesterday by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, which believes Illinois industry stands to lose thousands of dollars worth of business if the bill passes in its proposed form. The measure may apply a two instead of a three per cent tax.

"The greatest danger in the bill," said C. G. Ferris, executive vice president of the chamber, "is in its definition of the application of the tax. It is our understanding that the tax will not be strictly on retail-over-the-counter sales, but a tax on the ultimate consumer, applying to everything consumed by the immediate buyer.

"If this is the case, thousands of dollars worth of industrial equipment will be purchased outside the state by buyers wishing to escape the tax, and the 'border line' problem, so serious to retail merchants in border cities, will be magnified a hundredfold.

"While the former sales tax was in operation many manufacturers interpreted the tax as applicable on sales between manufacturers. As a result thousands of dollars worth of business was driven out of the state, even while the tax was being collected under the restraining injunction."

one, to whom he never had given a receivership.

Recent rulings of his Appellate court, he said, had concerned the rights of a chancellor to appoint a receiver, and the rights of a tenant to hold his property and retain rents from it until foreclosure sale.

"In one case we ruled that a contract in a trust deed which provides that a receiver may be appointed for a property after one default is not binding on the chancery courts. We ruled that the court had to be sure of something more—namely that the property had so depreciated that a judgment against it would not satisfy the mortgage," said the judge.

"As to rents and the right of an owner to retain possession we ruled in another case that if the court is convinced that a property is more valuable than the mortgage against it the owner shall retain possession of the property until foreclosure sale takes place."

Quiz Greenebaum on Bank Dealings.

The questioning of Greenebaum opened the morning and afternoon hearings. It also ended the day after he had been excused from the stand temporarily to allow Judge Wilson to appear. During the morning the interrogation was confined to the investment company's relationships with the First National bank, the Central Republic Trust and Savings bank, and the Chase National Bank of New York City, its creditors in the early months of 1930 to the extent of $5,500,000.

Early in the afternoon hearing Assistant Attorney General George Lavin sought to show that this indebtedness was reduced to $680,000 in two years through high pressure sales methods, resale of bonds taken in exchange for stock issues on improved real estate.

Only a few spectators were present when Lavin called Greenebaum and asked if he knew Paul Buhlig, "the enforcer." Greenebaum replied that he had known Buhlig, who at one time was executive chairman of the investment company. He added that Buhlig now is in Europe. Buhlig entered the company in January, 1930, and resigned Oct. 31, 1932.

Buhlig to Be Away Year, He Hears.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that he is not expected to return for two years or more? A.—Well, I'm told that he will not return to the United States for at least a year.

Greenebaum said Buhlig was associated with the investment company at the behest of the three banks. He formerly had been an official of the Federal Securities company, which was absorbed by the Central Republic bank.

Q.—Was Buhlig put into the investment company simply because Greenebaum & Co. could not meet their obligations? A.—If the banks had called their loans in the latter part of 1929 it would have been impossible to pay them.

Greenebaum explained that following Buhlig's entry into the company the G. A. S.—Great American Securities company—was organized to take over certain slow assets, amounting in book value to $8,000,000, from the investment house.

$2,000,000 from Rosenwald.

Greenebaum also explained that the late Julius Rosenwald had contributed $2,000,000 after M. E. Greenebaum and J. E. Greenebaum, father and uncle, respectively, of the witness, had produced $3,000,000 together. The money was put into the investment company before Buhlig became an officer, but the banks insisted that he be taken in, Greenebaum stated.

Buhlig had a salary of $30,000 the first year he was with the company and was given a $20,000 bonus, Greenebaum said. The second year Buhlig's salary was cut to $27,000, but the same bonus wa sgiven to him.

"Wasn't Buhlig just put in there to liquidate your indebtedness to the banks?" asked Lavin.

"Yes, he was told to liquidate in an orderly manner."

Owe Only $680,000, He Says.

The spectators, who gradually had crowded the galleries and overflowed to the council floor, sat forward on their seats and then murmured as Lavin asked:

Q.—How much is left of the loans out against the investment company? A.—We now owe only $680,000.

At this point the committee called for a recess and left for the office of Attorney General Kerner. When the hearing was resumed an hour later, Attorney David Stansbury was called. He outlined a plan to create an official receiver who would handle all receiverships, save those of banks and insurance companies.

The receiver's income in fees would be fixed at $25,000, and any surplus, the attorney said, would be given to the mothers' pension funds. Salaries of the receiver's assistants would be paid out of his earnings.

When the afternoon hearing was opened Greenebaum was questioned as the prosecutor sought to show that the investment company, unable to sell certain stock issues on improved real estate for cash, had traded the stock for first rate bonds which it proceeded to resell.

Quizzed on Burnham Building Stock.

Lavin asked the witness about a preferred stock issue of the Burnham building, underwritten by the investment company in July, 1929. A portion of this stock had been sold just before the market crash, then the company had made no more attempts to sell it. After Buhlig took charge an intensive campaign to sell the property was begun, Greenebaum admitted.

Tells of 333 Building.

Lavin elicited from Greenebaum a statement that his investment company had begun reorganization of properties on its own in November, 1932. One of these was the Frankenstein building, 840 North Michigan avenue. Another was the 333 North Michigan avenue building.

Referring to the 333 building, Lavin asked how much of a fee has already been given to the Greenebaum company for its efforts at reorganization. Greenebaum explained that the company had received $100,000 of a fee which has been contracted for $180,000.

Q.—Won't the bondholders lose this $100,000 if the reorganization falls through? A.—No.

Q.—Will your company pay them back? A.—That money didn't come from the bondholders; it came from the owners of the property.

DEMANDS HOTELS GIVE ACCOUNTING TO TAX OFFICERS

Jarecki Is Stirred Up by Dodging Tactics.

Receivers and trustees of the North Park and Graemere hotels were called upon by County Judge Jarecki yesterday to explain why they have not paid delinquent taxes. The judge demanded information concerning the income of the hotels, and an answer to his query as to what happened to this income and why back taxes had not been paid.

Assistant State's Attorney Hayden Bell said the informations which would be filed against the receivers might be followed by more drastic action if evidence disclosed an intentional conspiracy to withhold taxes from the county treasurer. Both cases will be heard next Tuesday by Judge Jarecki.

Spend More Than Income.

A report presented by Logan Mullins, receiver for the North Park hotel, showed that the income of the hotel last year was $133,000, but that disbursements totaled $134,000, leaving a deficit.

Taxes due on the hotel for 1928, 1929, and 1930, total $63,515. When the facts in the case were presented to the court, Prosecutor Bell interrupted, asking that the case be continued until Tuesday so that informations might be filed.

Back taxes totaling $81,716 are due upon the Graemere hotel, 3349 Maypole avenue. Attorney Morris Schaeffer presented a report showing receipts and disbursements.

Big Payments Stir Court.

"What are these payments of $400 and $500 a month for agents and $150 a month for trustees?" asked Judge Jarecki, looking over the report.

"That's the Chicago Title and Trust company," said Attorney Schaeffer.

"What are the fees for?" asked the court.

"I haven't had time to analyze the report," said the lawyer.

"I think we should have an information filed here," said Prosecutor Bell.

"I think so, too," said the judge.

Receiverships for Two More.

Receivers were appointed for two other hotels with authority under the Skarda act to collect income until delinquent taxes are paid in full. Circuit Judge Fisher appointed County Treasurer McDonough receiver for the Allerton house, which owes $167,616 delinquent taxes. Attorney Harry Smoot, representing Melvin L. Straus, trustee, argued that a very small net income was being received from this property.

"The hotel has 1,123 rooms, almost all occupied," returned Assistant State's Attorney Francis Clamitz. "There is also an income from five stores. There has been no effort to pay taxes and the county receiver can at least do as good a job as Straus."

Circuit Judge William V. Brothers appointed the county treasurer receiver for the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue, upon which the delinquent taxes total $113,549. Attorney Smoot and Prosecutor Clamitz were again opposed, and the same arguments ended in the same result when it was shown no effort had been made to pay the delinquent sums.

The Central Life Insurance company paid 75 per cent of delinquent taxes totaling $33,769, after Judge Jarecki had overruled its objections to the assessments.

A check for $4,400 was turned over by the Aragon ballroom, 4800 Winthrop avenue, and a guarantee presented that the net income from the property, estimated at $2,500 a month, would be paid to the county treasurer until the entire delinquent taxes of $59,000 are paid.

Counsel for the Eastgate hotel, 162 East Ontario street, paid $5,898 on the overdue bill of $22,000 and promised that the average net monthly income of $1,500 would be given to the county treasurer hereafter.

Owners of the Gannett Building corporation, Madison street and Crawford avenue, promised to pay $6,380 and the full income from the property to pay off a delinquent bill of $34,706. Checks totaling $26,426 were paid on the tax bill of $48,569 against the 211 West Wacker Drive building. Attorneys for the 180 West Randolph street building paid 75 per cent of the $7,309 tax bill against the property.

Although no receivership petitions had yet been filed, attorneys for thirteen Balaban & Katz theaters appeared in the treasurer's office and paid a total of $51,258 on delinquent taxes.

Palmer House Wins Delay.

Representatives of the Palmer house, sued Thursday for a county receivership, appeared before Judge Jarecki and pointed out that $2,056,185 had been paid in the last three years and that the remaining delinquent bill of $517,266 is protested as excessive. As soon as Judge Jarecki rules upon the proper amount to be paid of this remainder, the entire taxes will be paid, the lawyers promised. The hearing on objections was set for Tuesday.

The full membership of the Circuit court met yesterday and agreed that all receivers in the 5,000 properties pending in the court should be warned to pay all taxes due upon the properties within five days, or face summary dismissal and possibly more severe punishment. Notices to this effect will be sent to all receivers today.

GILL WILL TAKE CUT IN PAY WITH OTHER CITY HELP

Asks Judges to Slice His Appropriation.

Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, said yesterday he would accept the same pay cut imposed upon other city employés by the city council, and that he would recommend to the judges of the court, who fix his budget, that a similar cut be applied to all of his deputies.

The Municipal court budget, which the city council must pass unchanged as fixed by the judges, was given to the finance committee Thursday by John J. Sonsteby, chief justice of the court. It made no provision for any pay cuts for the judges or employés of the court.

Clerk Gill said yesterday the pay cut recommendation for his department was left out because when his budget request was drawn up in January he did not know how large a cut the council would impose on other city employés. Under the continuation ordinance under which the city is now operating, employés are being docked 78 days' pay a year, a cut of about 21 per cent below the base salaries which have gone unchanged since the boom years.

Gill Reports Salvage.

A report on the expenditures of the three offices of the court showed yesterday that Clerk Gill was the only officer of the court to show any substantial salvage out of his 1932 appropriations. Out of an appropriation of $1,045,575 he left $36,855 unexpended. That was a saving of about 3.6 per cent, as compared with approximately 8 per cent salvaged on the total appropriations in the city corporate fund.

Bailiff A. J. Horan received a 1932 appropriation of $825,848, from which he salvaged only $5,336. The record of Chief Justice Sonsteby shows that he got a $433,458 appropriation last year and spent all but $570 of it.

"The way I look at the budget," said Mr. Gill, "it's no use spending money we haven't got. I took the 48 day pay cut last year which I was asked to take, and I'll take whatever cut the council asks me to take this year. The judges of the court, and not I, fix the pay of my employés, but I'll recommend to the judges that they put the same pay cut into effect in my office which is ordered for other city employés."

Trims His Own Pay Roll.

Already this year, Clerk Gill said, he has let out twelve of his deputies whose services were not needed because of falling off of business in the court, making a saving of about $25,000 a year. In spite of the sharp decrease in litigation in his court he asserted that it is impossible to cut his staff further, because "lawyers demand service."

The judges of the court recommended a 1933 appropriation of $1,049,726 for Clerk Gill's office, as compared to the 1932 expenditures of $1,008,720 under which employés took a 48 day pay cut. In his budget estimates City Controller Szymczak allotted $980,866 to the clerk's office, after applying a 78 day pay cut.

Two small girls were cut about the face, arms, and legs by flying glass this morning when a bomb explosion in a garage at the rear of their home, 5741 North Spaulding avenue, shattered their bedroom window.

They are Eleanor Shaffer, 13 years old, and Ellen, her sister, 9, daughters of Harry Shaffer, an executive of the Enterprise Oil Burner company, 1420 South Michigan avenue. They were attended by the family physician.

The bomb burst at a three car private garage. Small damage was done to the structure despite the fact that the blast was unusually heavy. It shattered windows in Christiana and Victoria avenues in the vicinity. Neither Mr. Shaffer nor Fred L. Nordstrom, a tenant in the building, knew of any motive for the attack.

STORMS STRIKE IOWA; MERCURY 90 IN SIOUX CITY

Des Moines, Ia., May 19.—(AP)—Windstorms, hail, and rain visited Iowa today as the mercury climbed to record highs.

Hail fell at Storm Lake for 45 minutes, riddling car tops and spattering windows. Hail in Hancock county damaged garden crops, stripped trees, and broke window lights. A heavy rain was reported with the hail at Garner.

INSTRUCTOR DIES; WOMAN HURT IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Couple Fail to Come Out of Practice Spin.

Roy Wilson, owner of a flying field in Schiller Park, was killed and a woman student flyer was seriously injured last evening when their plane crashed in a field two miles south of Park Ridge while they were practicing stunts.

Student for Six Months.

Mrs. Olson has been studying flying for six months under Wilson, and made her first solo flight last Sunday. Last evening she went up with her instructor in his training ship, a Waco three place biplane, equipped with a 102 horse power Curtiss motor. They flew around for more than half an hour, going through several routine flying stunts.

About 2,000 feet up Wilson and Mrs. Olsen commenced practicing spins. Which one was operating the controls at the time of the crash is not known. The ship is equipped with dual controls. According to R. K. Torson, 310 South Knight avenue, Park Ridge, and W. R. Turgeon, owner of the Park Ridge airport, the ship went into about nine or ten separate spins before it struck the ground.

Narrowly Miss Farm House.

The ship crashed about three-quarters of a mile west of Cumberland avenue, two miles south of Park Ridge, in Leyden township. It missed a farm house by about 150 feet. Before the crash Wilson had cut off the ignition, preventing fire.

Wilson was about 35 years old and a licensed transport pilot. His flying field was located at River road and Lawrence avenue, and was said to be licensed. He maintained two ships.

J. R. D. STEVENSON MISSING; POLICE ASKED TO HUNT

For the last two days the police have been conducting a quiet search for James R. D. Stevenson, 560 Hawthorne place, veteran wholesale druggist who was formerly a vice president of the Philip Henrici company, restaurant operators.

On Thursday a message was sent out from the detective bureau to all police stations requesting that a man 57 years old, 6 feet tall, weighing 190 pounds, and with red hair and a ruddy complexion, be detained. Also it was mentioned that he would be in a 1928 Packard automobile.

Last night the number of the automobile was added to the message. The man sought was not named in the message. Any information about him was to be transmitted to William M. Collins, 1530 North State street, former president of the John R. Thompson company. The automobile license was traced to Mr. Stevenson. Neither at his home nor at Mr. Collins' would any one discuss the search, but another friend of the Stevenson family said it was true he was missing.

HAIL BREAKING UP OF ATOMS AS GREAT ADVANCE IN PHYSICS

Pasadena, Cal., May 19.—(AP)—The breaking up of the atoms of many elements, heralded as one of the most notable advances in physics in many years in the search into the mystery of nature, was disclosed here today.

Prof. E. O. Lawrence of the University of California told a group of scientists that during the last two weeks atoms of aluminum, beryllium, nitrogen, calcium flouride, sodium flouride, flourium, as well as lithium and boron, had been artificially disintegrated at Berkeley, Cal.

This was hailed by Dr. Niels Bohr of Copenhagen, world renowned physicist and Nobel prize winner, as a "marvelous advancement."

"The day dream of yesterday has come true," he said.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan of the Norman Bridge laboratory of physics, congratulated Lawrence, saying that the results were "altogether extraordinary and most intelligently announced."

CONTINUES WRIT BARRING SALE OF $400,000 ASSETS

Judge William J. Lindsay in the Superior court yesterday denied a motion to dissolve a temporary injunction restraining the National Republic bancorporation and the Central Republic Trust company from selling $400,000 in collateral pledged by the Madison Square State bank.

The Madison Square State bank was closed June 14, 1932. The injunction was granted last March 1 by Judge Lindsay on the plea of Attorney Meyer Abrams, representing the depositors of the bank. The attorney said that the depositors had received no dividends and would receive none in the future if the collateral were sold in the present market.

The bill for injunction alleges that the National Republic bancorporation, which was a holding company for nine banks, had the National Bank of the Republic turn over assets aggregating $650,000 on June 30, 1931, to the Madison Square State bank. This was done to mislead depositors into believing the Madison Square State bank was liquid in the semi-annual statement, the bill says, and the money was returned to the National Bank of the Republic on July 3, 1931. The National Bank of the Republic has since merged into the Central Republic Trust company. The Madison Square State bank owes depositors nearly $1,000,000.

BOY, 7, IS KILLED BY TRUCK AS HE RUNS INTO ALLEY

This death and three others increased the county toll for the year to 348. The other victims:

Frederick Winholt, 67 years old, 1628 North Harding avenue. Died in his home. He was struck May 7 as he stepped from a Grand avenue car at Crawford avenue.

STATION OF LIFE PLAYS NO PART IN QUEEN CONTEST

Girls of High and Low Estate All Equal.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Nobody pasted an "exclusive" label anywhere in the perspective when THE TRIBUNE and fifteen affiliated publications announced five months ago that they would receive photographs of girls from all over the world as candidates for Queen of A Century of Progress. Yet daily bulletins flashed into contest headquarters in Tribune Tower by prideful home town papers that achieved representation in the court of fifty-one indicate that no girl so chosen will wear her honors lightly. She'll be among her peers.

Nothing but the photographic attractiveness of the subject motivated the judges when the nominees were picked from among more than 100,000 pictures mailed in from every corner of the globe. Subsequent investigation of the identities and backgrounds of the lucky ones have provided a constant source of gratification at the high type of girls included, and some real surprises. Democracy has been served, yet there's more than a touch of aristocracy to this ensemble.

Wear Numbers for Judging.

Contrast the sweet faced little factory girl from Chicago's west side, ecstatic over acquiring the first real party dress she ever owned, with the Philadelphia debutante, daughter of a Bethlehem Steel company official, who is dropping her Junior league activities to join the fun as Chicago inaugurates its 1933 World's Fair. As they pass in review before eight judges scheduled to evaluate their individual charm and perhaps name one of them Queen they'll be wearing identical costumes of white taffeta and red slippers and be identified only by a number on their arms.

That area of Kansas City, Mo., known as Westport, familiar to every community in a radius of hundreds of miles, sends a graduate of Loretto academy, whose family for three generations back has been identified with the development of that section. She is a member of Alpha Beta Phi sorority. A girl from Kansas City, Kas., who will accompany her to Chicago as another competitor won scholastic and athletic honors both at high school and in junior college, where she belongs to Zeta sorority.

Oregon Sends a Blonde.

The University of Oregon is making a strong bid for the Queen's crown in a willowy blonde girl from Seattle, who has several times lent her services as a mannequin in fashion shows on the campus. She is a Pi Beta Phi and excels in golf, swimming, and various types of dancing. Her traveling partner will be a vivacious brunette from Portland, a business girl whose education was received while she substituted at home for her dead mother and kept an eye on her small brother.

From the Kentucky mountains comes a blue eyed, curly haired high school sophomore, oldest of a family of seven, whose farthest journey from home has been to Cincinnati, O. Georgia is the home territory of another girl, whose patrician ancestry was responsible for her learning the three R's in a private school operated by a Massachusetts capitalist for the especial benefit of his own daughter.

College Girl Is Arkansas Aspirant.

Closer to home there is a girl from Springfield, Ill., who is one of the most charming students on the University of Illinois campus, with both poise and intelligence to recommend her. St. Mary's college at Notre Dame, Ind., is swelling with pride over the nomination of a leading member of its junior class.

Nor is Chicago lagging, what with a Kappa Kappa Gamma from Northwestern who will take her master's degree this summer, and a tall, black haired, graceful girl from the same campus who was a recognized beauty there.

But sororities and college educations are not to be submitted as qualifications to the judges, and the contest among the nominees is based strictly on democratic principles.

RESTAURANT MEN DISCUSS RAISING PRICES OF MEALS

More than 250 restaurant men discussed a possibility of raising the price of meals at a meeting last evening of the Restaurateurs of Illinois. The meeting was held in the Morrison hotel and it was brought out that although meals are at "rock bottom" prices the prices of wholesale foodstuffs have gone up 20 to 30 per cent.

A committee will be named to call on the mayor and city council to see what steps can be taken against places that sell beer and give free lunch. Several of the members complained that free lunches were hurting their business.

The restaurant owners agreed to support "Let's Go, Chicago" week, proclaimed by Mayor Kelly to open next Sunday.

HOTEL SUITE ON RAILS IS LATEST PULLMAN COACH

1933 Product to Be Shown at Fair.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Pullman company yesterday announced its 1933 vehicle, an aluminum "suite" car with innovations in appearance, comfort, and operating utility. It is named the George M. Pullman after the founder of the company and will be in the Travel and Transport building during A Century of Progress.

The George M. Pullman is slightly more than half the weight of a standard steel car, greatly reducing the cost of haulage. The use of aluminum is described as a milestone in the company's history comparable to the introduction of steel to replace wood in 1907. In this 1933 vehicle, steel is limited to the wheels, axles, springs, brake shoes, and other such parts.

Reduce Number of Wheels.

Reduction of weight has enabled the engineers to reduce the number of wheels on each of the two trucks from six to four. The six wheel trucks have been standard for sixty-eight years. Fewer wheels lessen friction resistance and noise.

A greater reduction in noise will be brought about by keeping the windows closed. Thermostatic control regulates the air cooling in summer and warming in winter. At all times the air is filtered so it is fresh and free of dirt.

The exterior of the car is aluminum in airbrush finish. The only other color is that of gilded brass used for the names, and in longitudinal stripes along the body. The effect is that of silver and gold. The general contour is conventional with the exception of a rounded rear. There is no observation platform.

Interior Like a Home.

The interior consists of a thirty-three foot lounge room, indirectly lighted and with comfortable furniture of modern or contemporary styling; a double bedroom with drawing room en suite; and two other bedrooms, each with a distinctive decorative scheme. Samuel A. Marx was engaged by the Pullman company as consulting architect and decorator.

Engineering and architectural experts will view the car as an accomplishment in metal craftsmanship. Extruded metal shapes were used for the essential parts of the framing construction. The dictionary definition of extrude is to force, press or push out, and that is what was done to form these shapes.

Two Earth Shocks Felt in Calexico and El Centro

Los Angeles, Cal., May 19.—[Special.]—Two sharp earthquake shocks were felt in Calexico and El Centro at 8:25 a. m. today, according to advices from those points. No damage was done by the tremors, which were accompanied by loud rumbling sounds. A report issued yesterday at the Carnegie seismological laboratory in Pasadena fixed the epicenter of yesterday's quake near San Bernardino and also at a point in the Imperial valley. The Thursday quake was described by Dr. Harry O. Wood, seismogrist in charge, as "a small local shock."

BANDITS ROB DRUG STORE.

Four armed bandits escaped early yesterday with $300 from the Walgreen drug store, 5959 West Division street, after forcing the manager, Charles Shanks, and the cashier, Miss Florence Taylor, into a rear room.

RELIGION'S PLACE AT FAIR RAPIDLY TAKING ON FORM

Plans for Dedication of Hall Discussed.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Plans were being made last night by the committee on religion of A Century of Progress for the dedication of the Hall of Religion on the exposition grounds. George W. Dixon, chairman of the committee, announced prior to the meeting that the religious exhibit in which the principal communions of the country will participate has been gathered together and will be in readiness for the opening day. The cost of the Hall of Religion and the exhibits will be in excess of $100,000, Mr. Dixon announced.

The difference between the position of religion in the World's Columbian exposition of 1893 and A Century of Progress was pointed out by Mr. Dixon, who with his father, the late Arthur Dixon, was closely associated with the leadership of the 1893 fair. At the coming fair, American religious groups will show how they have met the challenges of rapid changes, said Mr. Dixon, whereas the Congress of Religions in 1893 centered its interest in a survey of the world's religions with emphasis on what each could contribute to the world's spiritual needs.

Foresee Far Reaching Results.

While the 1893 congress was not regarded as altogether happy in its immediate results, Mr. Dixon explained that people were somewhat more easily annoyed by theological differences and by "propaganda" then than now. Despite this, he added, the congress started a movement among religions which is increasing in world-wide importance. It is not an unreasonable prediction, Mr. Dixon declared, that the 1893 Congress of Religions, sponsored by H. M. Higginbotham, John Henry Barrows and Arthur Dixon, will turn out to be greatest of all of the lasting contributions to the World's Columbian exposition.

"That contribution is the extension of the study of comparative religions and its popularization," said Mr. Dixon. "There was very little study of other religions of the world forty years ago, and the man in the street scarcely knew that religions other than Christianity existed. Other religions, to the average man, were all wrong.

Dean Mathews a Speaker.

"This has all changed. All religions are carefully studied today and much good is found in each of them. This study has increased tolerance and understanding, which is reflected not only in religion but also in the social, economic, and scientific transactions between widely separated peoples."

Dean Shailer Mathews of the Divinity school of the University of Chicago confirmed Mr. Dixon's view. He spoke of the founding of the Haskell institute of religions at the university as a direct outgrowth of the 1893 congress of religions. The institute will be conducted this summer as an adjunct to A Century of Progress exposition as well as something more than an echo of the 1893 congress.

PONDER APPEAL OF EX-OFFICIALS OF STONE & CO.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday took under advisement the appeal of five former officials of H. O. Stone & Co., defunct real estate investment concern, who are under sentence of 20 years each on charges of using the mails to defraud. The defendants are Henry F. Norcott, Harold D. Bennett, Charles P. Packer Jr., Leslie A. Needham, and W. Scott Carroll.

Defense Attorneys George I. Haight and Harry Olson took exception to the alleged government characterization of the defendants as "pirates, scoundrels, and crooked lawyers." Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Dodd Healy, former assistant district attorney, said that he had not spoken of the defendants as pirates, but had said that "pirates were amateurs as compared to the defandants." The appeal was heard by Judges Samuel Alschuler and Will M. Sparks of the Court of Appeals and Judge James H. Wilkerson of the District court.

"LET'S GO!" WEEK TO INCLUDE HUNT FOR MORE JOBS

Merchants Get Ready for Prosperity Campaign.

A special drive for jobs will form an important part of the celebration of "Let's Go, Chicago!" week which will be observed from next Monday to the following Saturday according to an announcement yesterday by A. L. McInerney, superintendent of the Chicago free employment office of the state department of labor.

Mr. McInerney called in his solicitors yesterday and asked them to begin a campaign for jobs on Monday.

"Only by increasing the purchasing power of the people can the wheels of industry be made to revolve," he told his agents. "Jobs are the nucleus of prosperity and if Chicago is to take the lead in the procession back to good times, jobs must be found for the thousands of unemployed."

Merchants Get Ready.

State street merchants and dealers in the outlying shopping centers are preparing for the increased business activity which is expected during the week. The celebration was proclaimed by Mayor Kelly last Wednesday and concurred in by the city council. The proclamation called for a complete program of commercial and industrial activity to stimulate buying and increase employment.

Special sales were being planned by the merchants to mark their participation in the drive. The slogan of "Let's Go, Chicago!" was to be used in all advertisements and in posters in the stores.

"We have called in all our buyers and asked them to obtain all the special values possible for shoppers next week," said G. R. Schaeffer, advertising and sales promotion manager of Marshall Field & Co. Similar statements were made by Maurice L. Rothschild and other State street store executives.

Hammond Approves Plan.

Thomas S. Hammond, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, sent a letter to Mayor Kelly enthusiastically endorsing the plan for the week's celebration.

"The six-day prosperity drive appeals to the imagination and will be an inspiration to all good citizens," he wrote. "The business revival has already begun and will continue, we hope, until unemployment and business depression are left far behind in the march of industrial progress.

"The eyes of the world are on Chicago with the opening of A Century of Progress Exposition May 27 and we are convinced that it will mark the turn of the tide which will move rapidly toward prosperity for Chicago and the middle west. Every member of the Illinois Manufacturers' association will do his utmost to cooperate with the movement to stimulate business.

"Let's Go, Chicago!" week furnishes a worthy example of courage and enterprise to the entire nation."

Posters for automobile windshields, official emblems, pamphlets and other material to be used by merchants and others in advertising the celebration are available at the headquarters of the mayor's committee in room 500 at 310 S. Michigan avenue.

KILLS SELF AT HOME.

Alan H. May, 38 years old, a life insurance agent, shot and killed himself yesterday in his home at 1153 Hyde Park boulevard after writing notes blaming financial difficulties.

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

R. G. Lydy's twenty-one parking lots and three garages will offer touring information for out of town visitors during the World's Fair. A representative of the Illinois Automobile club will be on duty at each station. Mr. Lydy is also accommodating visitors by selling THE TRIBUNE'S 1933 road map of Chicagoland, the only detailed motoring guide of its kind published for this area. His garages and parking lots are likewise issuing "Come to the World's Fair" windshield stickers indorsed by A Century of Progress management on suggestion of THE TRIBUNE. The stickers and the maps can also be obtained at THE TRIBUNE public service office at Dearborn and Madison streets and at the Tribune Tower.

An A Century of Progress shoe, designed to allow women to tramp between the miles of exhibits in comfort, will soon appear in Chicago shops. The shoe, a trim oxford, was designed by an executive of the shoe department of a State street store, who had visited the fair and had seen women struggling through the exposition grounds in high heeled shoes.

Seventy-five artists who are not included in the exhibits at the Chicago Art institute will be allowed to display their paintings in the Illinois Host building at A Century of Progress, it was announced yesterday by J. F. Cornelius, president of the Illinois Academy of Fine Arts and member of the Illinois Century of Progress commission. Fifteen canvases, selected by Mr. Cornelius and a committee of artists, will be displayed each month.

A forty foot diorama depicting, allegorically and mechanically, the grain areas of the United States and the facilities used in the transportation and marketing of grain will be one of the major features of the exhibit of the Farmers' National Grain corporation during A Century of Progress. The grain corporation display will be placed in the Hall of Social Science on Northerly island.

The first performance of the United States army military tournament will be given May 30 at 8:15 p. m. in Soldiers' field. The show will continue until June 10. In addition to the military features a one chukker polo match, presenting some of the most noted horsemen in military and civil life, will be played this year. The show will include army operations, horse gymnastics, intricate cavalry drills, and demonstrations of modern artillery and infantry warfare. The tournament will open with flying aces of the air corps maneuvering in fighting formations. Practically every development in modern warfare and every branch of the national defense equipment will be shown.

Postoffice Inspectors F. D. Angier of Washington and W. O. Baumgardner of Chicago yesterday began preparation of postoffice exhibits for A Century of Progress. The exhibits will include pictures and sketches of the Rondout mail robbery, the Dearborn station robbery, and the Evergreen Park robbery, and implements used in the robberies.

A "1933 World's Fair room listing bureau" is being operated by the Travel guild, 180 North Michigan avenue. The service is designed for out of town visitors who wish to stop in outlying hotels or lodging houses and avoid the expense of the larger hotels. No charge is made. The enterprise has been indorsed by officials of A Century of Progress.

A torn and bloodstained puppet, a tragic relic of the French revolution, is being brought to the Fair by Jean Gros, the French puppeteer, as a feature of his marionette show on Enchanted island. The figure is that of Marie Antoinette, the queen, and it is stained with the blood of the sculptor, Henri Jean Gros. In the winter of 1788 the sculptor built a marionette show intended to be a satire on the times. Hurrying along the street on the night of Dec. 10, 1788, the puppet queen hidden in his coat, a gust of wind tore his coat from his shoulders, disclosing the figure. He was crushed to death by a mob, his blood staining the tiny figure, which since has been in possession of the Gros family.

The Chicago Boy Scout drum and bugle corps review will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Naval Reserve armory, Randolph street and the lake. More than 150 boys will take part, the winner to take part in the opening parade on May 27. At the same time 317 Eagle Scouts will pass in review at the armory to select from their membership guards of honor, messengers, orderlies, and aides for the fair.

Harry S. New, United States commissioner to the Fair, yesterday was designated as the representative of the government for the reception of Italo Balbo, minister of aeronautics of Italy. Minister Balbo and his sky fleet will leave Orbatello, Italy, as soon after May 24 as weather permits. They will arrive in Chicago at the end of the month for participation in the Fair.

Feminine stars of the West Side Y. W. C. A. swimming team last night presented the first of a two night exhibition of A Century of Progress in swimming. They will repeat tonight. The development of swimming from the days when it was immodest for a girl to engage in water sports to the present era of swimming, diving, and life saving champions was shown in the pool at 101 South Ashland avenue.

June brides coming to the Fair on their honeymoons will be able to compare their cooking with that of other brides in other lands and other times. Dutch, English, French, Spanish, and Acadian kitchens, with equipment of the time in which they were used, are being prepared in the Heinz exhibit in the Foods and Agricultural building. American kitchens of 1733, 1869, and 1933 are also on exhibition.

MAYOR FORBIDS SCHOOL GROUP'S FAIR PICKETING

Announcement of more radical leaders of Chicago school teachers that they intend to hold demonstrations outside the World's Fair, and to meet trains bringing Fair guests to Chicago with banners calling attention to the plight of unpaid teachers, brought a polite but stern warning yesterday from Mayor Kelly.

"I don't believe any organization would do anything to harm the World's Fair," said Mayor Kelly. "Anyway, I won't countenance it."

The Federation of Women High School Teachers adopted a resolution yesterday at its monthly meeting asking the mayor and school board to sponsor a bill in the legislature permitting the board to issue bonds to meet back salaries.

FAIR A GIGANTIC WAREHOUSE TO CUSTOMS CHIEF

U.S. Checks Each Foreign Exhibit In and Out.

The Century of Progress exposition, a glamorous pageant to the hundreds of thousands of visitors, is, to the United States government, a gigantic warehouse with the collector of customs holding the key. Not a single foreign exhibit or the smallest part of it can be moved to the grounds or off without his official approval.

The Fair officials have posted a $100,000 bond with Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki to guarantee that the regulations will not be violated. However, any item in any exhibition may be sold during or after the Fair by payment of the regular duty.

Duty Free for Display Only.

Under an act of congress foreign countries and importers may bring in articles for exhibition duty free, but they must be used for exhibition purposes only. At the present time fifteen inspectors are checking the exhibits, and by the end of next week more than a hundred will be assigned to full time duty on the Fair grounds.

Typical of the foreign exhibitions is that of the Japanese government. Not only were the items to be displayed in the buildings brought in under bond, but even the nails and pieces of rope used in construction are on the Fair grounds under customs regulations. Packing boxes, stones in the garden, floor boards, display cases, even flags paving the charming little walks are from Japan, and all carry the little red, white, and blue seal of the United States customs service.

Equipment and exhibits are shipped in bond to Collector Czarnecki at Chicago. At 37th street they are unloaded under the inspection of a customs collector and trucked into the grounds. From there on every move is supervised.

Each Must Be Appraised.

First they are taken to the warehouse in the Hall of Science where they are checked by F. M. Smolek, chief of the inspectors. Being approved, they are transferred to the individual exhibits where they are checked again by an inspector, followed by an appraisal. The appraisers under the direction of L. P. Reitz are specialists in the merchandising field. They must know to the cent whether the value placed on the merchandise is accurate and, when the article is sold, estimate the depreciation.

Any article not sold is either destroyed or returned to the country of origin at the conclusion of the Fair.

The worthless items, such as shipping crates not to be reused, and scaffolding, are destroyed on the premises under customs supervision.

Despite all the routine involved by the multiple checking and valuations, a tour of the grounds in a customs car yesterday showed all to be moving with rapidity and with little or no difficulties between the government men and the exhibitors.

DEALERS TO HEAR ILLINOIS MILK PLEA NEXT WEEK

Nearby Farmers Demand Share of City Market.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Representatives of several thousand dairy farmers within 100 miles of Chicago expect to place their claims to prior consideration in Chicago's $25,600,000 annual milk and cream business before the milk distributors of Chicago early next week.

This was learned yesterday during a survey being made in northern Illinois which disclosed that although fresh milk enough for 200,000 persons daily is being produced in the nearby Illinois area, this milk is not being purchased by the milk companies for Chicago consumers. At the same time, milk and cream from northern Wisconsin is being shipped distances of 150 to 325 miles to the metropolitan market.

Illinois Milk Fresher.

The Illinois dairymen will ask that their milk and cream be given preference over that from the outlying regions because it is fresher, because it can be more economically transported and supervised by city health inspectors, and because the money spent by Chicago in nearby areas will stimulate trading between the country and city.

They also maintain that Illinois dairymen are in sympathy with Chicago's efforts to build up the city as an industrial and commercial center, while those in the outlying areas are opposing such steps.

Included in the demands which will be made by the farmers in their meeting with the dairy company officials will be a provision that all Illinois farmers whose milk supply is approved by the Chicago board of health be given a share in the Chicago market.

More than 1,500 Illinois farmers have been shut out of the Chicago market for three years because of an understanding between the Milk Council, Inc., organization of large milk dealers, the Chicago Milk Dealers' association, representing smaller companies, and the Pure Milk association, representing 17,600 dairy farmers.

Pay Premium in Wisconsin.

Farmers in the Pure Milk association have had a preferred market in supplying milk for Chicago since 1929 when, by agreement with the companies, each farmer was given a "base" or allotment of volume which he could market daily at a preferred price. All milk above this "base" has commanded only butterfat prices, while Wisconsin farmers have been paid a premium for millions of pounds of cream sold in Chicago.

Wisconsin milk, some of it from the Green Bay region, which has been sold at cut rate prices in four roadside stands in Tessville, just outside the pale of city health regulations, was shut off yesterday. Attorneys for Chicago milk companies obtained a ruling in Judge Francis B. Allegretti's court Thursday voiding an injunction obtained by owners of the roadside stands against the village of Tessville.

The injunction prevented the village from closing the stands or forcing them to be licensed under a new milk ordinance which required the milk to be pasteurized and sold in sealed, labeled containers.

R. J. Crandall, owner of a milk stand at McCormick and Arthur streets, claimed his sales had totaled $200 per week, with more than 100 customers. Other stands in the vicinity are owned by Norman Stege and John P. O'Mara. All of them plan to reopen under the Tessville ordinance provisions, they said.

ASKS $500 GIFTS TO MEET COSTS OF YOUTH WEEK

Henry P. Chandler, president of Chicago Youth Week federation, yesterday appealed to individuals and organizations for small contributions to finance Youth week, which opens tomorrow. This annual event is intended to encourage and recognize the activities and accomplishments of Chicago's million boys and girls.

"I firmly believe that this special observance is more needed this year than ever before," Mr. Chandler said. "For three years thousands of young people have tramped the streets looking for jobs. Lacking the interest of active work, they have absorbed much of the pessimism and discontent of their elders. They must be encouraged and inspired. Youth week will help do this.

"In previous years the Youth Week federation has been financed by philanthropic persons and certain organizations, but this support is not available this year. Only $500 is needed, primarily for postage and clerical service. Contributions toward this amount should be sent to Youth Week, room 1024, 185 North Wabash avenue."

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools; Miss Elizabeth Webster, acting director of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, and Walter Wright, director of the city department of pars, are officials for the federation.

Stabs Himself in Heart, but Now Hopes to Live

Henry Gustafson, 47 years old, a casual, whose heart was stitched up on Wednesday after he tried to commit suicide by stabbing himself, yesterday expressed a wish at the John B. Murphy hospital that he would recover. Previously he had told Dr. Henry R. Kenny, the operating surgeon, that he did not want to live. His condition last night was reported as still critical.

WISCONSIN'S MILK STRIKE IS SETTLED; PICKETS RELEASED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 19.—[Special.]—Peace returned to Wisconsin highways today, the seventh day of the milk pool strike which was brought to an end after midnight this morning.

At Madison the strike settlement reached at a conference with Gov. Schmedeman was too late for word to become generally known among the farmers and the flow of milk did not return to normal today, many farmers still withholding their supply. There was little picketing except in a few instances early in the day.

Three truck loads of milk were dumped in Walworth county before the news of the settlement could be verified and Milwaukee deputies prevented an early morning dumping at the south end of Milwaukee county.

George Shieck, chairman of the Milwaukee dealers' committee, said that all farmers would be taken back and their milk received without discrimination against those who had taken part in the strike.

The seven days of turbulence on the roads which brought out nearly 2,000 state militiamen to the centers of violence ended with only one death and that by accident. William Dickmann, 51, a resident of Grafton, Ozaukee county, was killed yesterday by a fall from the running board of a truck he had tried to halt on the road to Milwaukee. A Racine youth who was shot during a demonstration there is expected to recover.

Most of the pickets arrested during the week were released today.

WALLACE ASKED TO HOLD HEARING ON MILK PRICES

Chicago Region Units Join in Plea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Milk producers and dealers in the Chicago area today were preparing to ask Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to help them agree on prices, contracts and market agreements at a public hearing.

The formal request for the secretary to hear the case at an early date was being worked on today after a temporary price arrangement had been arranged and the situation had been turned over to D. N. Geyer, temporary milk administrator in the Chicago milk area.

Meanwhile, the government warned that before any final settlement can receive its approval, it must be clear that the price schedules and marketing methods will not favor any party to the agreement and that the price spread between the farm and the consumer is not exorbitant.

Organizations Coöperate.

The interests petitioning for the hearing before Secretary Wallace were the Pure Milk association, representing the producers in the three states adjoining Chicago; the Milk council, supervising milk promotion work and the Chicago Milk Dealers' association. Associated with these major groups were other interests which yesterday joined in ratifying the temporary price and marketing arrangements.

Producers and dealers agree "that this is the right time to seek the government's assistance to the end that all discriminating, unfair, and unethical methods, if any, may be completely wiped out for the safety and welfare of the entire Chicago milk district," the department of agriculture announced today.

"Under the existing payments now in operation in Chicago by virtue of the temporary arbitration order," the department explained, "$1.75 is paid to producers for 100 pounds of 3.5 per cent milk f. o. b. country plants, with certain butter fat point differentials up or down.

See Benefit to Consumer.

"In analyzing the price condition at present, comparison with recent ups and downs in the Chicago milk market, the parties who seek federal approval of the new agreement declare that in the present adjustment of new price schedules the consumer gets a distinct benefit and the producer is not penalized to make up for it.

"They declare that the farm buying price has been reduced 10 cents while the selling price to consumers on the hundredweight basis has been reduced 46.5 cents under last December. The difference between the two is 36.5 cents. This, they contend, represents the amount which the dealers have been obliged to cover or absorb themselves under the new price plan now in effect."

MAYOR AND 50 FOLLOWERS JOIN REBELS IN CUBA

Federal Troops Seize 57 Revolutionary Leaders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, May 19.—Antonio Rodriguez, mayor of Mariel, fled to the woods tonight with fifty followers, joining five bands of rebels averaging sixty each and operating in the Organos mountain range, crossing from east to west throughout Pinar del Rio.

Fifty-seven revolutionary leaders and conspirators were captured near Guadiana bay, near Pinar del Rio, while they awaited an expedition reported en route from Yucatan tonight. They put up strong armed resistance, but were finally subdued and taken. Five rebels were killed.

Rush Troops by Train.

Maj. Manuel Benitez, commander of the Pinar del Rio forces, sent an urgent demand to Havana for reinforcements and immediately two troop trains carrying 700 soldiers and officers left for the scene of the latest disorders.

Reliable reports state that numerous groups of rebels fled to the woods tonight between 9 and 11 o'clock from Consolacion del Norte, Consolacion del Sur Artemisa, Mariel, and Pinar del Rio city.

Engagement Expected Today.

The casualties of the last 24 hours are recorded as follows: Santa Clara, 12 soldeirs and one officer killed and 29 wounded; 33 rebels killed and 22 taken prisoner. Camaguey, six privates killed and 11 wounded. Trains bringing wounded soldiers from Camaguey and Santa Clara are expected here tomorrow.

Puts Ban on Celebration.

With guerilla warfare continuing in Cuba's three eastern provinces and spreading westward, this nation's observance of the 31st anniversay of her independence tomorrow will be rigidly moderated by martial law.

President Machado, completing his eighth year in office, will remain secluded on his farm at Santiago de las Vegas. He will receive no callers.

It has long been predicted that terrorist activities would break out in Havana tomorrow, coincident with a united and general movement by oppositionists throughout the island. Chief of Police Antonio Anciart today conferred with precinct captains of the city. He gave them instructions on precautions for maintenance of public order.

Revolutionary activities today approached Havana, with a disturbance at Jaruco, less than fifty miles to the east in Matanzas province, and to the west in Pinar del Rio city, where numerous arrests were made.

Insurgent attacks also were reported in Oriente province. Rebels last night raided the town of Omaja.

JOSEPH ENDS SONG WITH A BANG THAT PUTS OUT THE LIGHTS

Joseph Burke, 38 years old, 315 Collins street, Joliet, was summoned before Police Magistrate John J. Nicholson there yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct. Police explained that residents of Northeast Joliet had complained of a man singing and dancing through the streets at a late hour Thursday.

When the police squad approached the area they heard the singing, but suddenly the street lights over the whole district, nearly a half mile square, went out. Using searchlights, they finally located the singer, long since stilled, in sound slumber on the doorstep of a frightened householder.

The householder told the police the singer had suddenly burst into a highland fling in front of the house and then had lowered to knee level the adjustable street light. Returning to the fling the singer pranced through his répertoire of steps and then aimed a lusty kick at the light bulb. The ensuing short circuit put out the square of lights.

"But I don't remember any of that," Burke told the judge, meanwhile holding a throbbing head. I can't believe that I did it."

"Well, I'll grant you a ten day continuance to get counsel," said the judge. Then as Burke turned away he asked: "What is your occupation."

"I'm an electrician," came the reply.

Two girls won second and third places in the contest, for which judges were Col. Martin H. Foss, assistant corporation counsel, representing Mayor Kelly; State Superintendent of Instruction Francis G. Blair, and Ald. Frank J. Corr [17th]. The girl winners were Betty Ann McEwen, 12, of Flossmoor, and Jean Lois Drake, 10, of Homewood. The other finalists were Michael Esposito, Norwood Park Gertrude Krueger, Justice Park, and Edward Wagner, Elk Grove.

HOODLUMS LEVY ON UNIONS FOR DEFENSE FUNDS

Nembers Get Demands for Week's Wages.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Stanley Tamborski, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Peter Statkas and George Katros, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

John Iori and George Schemensky, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary; Daniel Manos and Frank Pallante, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge John Prystalski.

Labor racketeers, anticipating indictment by State's Attorney Courtney in his clean-up campaign, have begun raising a defense fund by demanding contributions from members of their unions.

"That's another racket and that's out, too," warned Mr. Courtney yesterday in making the revelation. "I haven't anything particular to say on the situation, except that my answer will be action and plenty of it."

Ordered to Give Week's Pay.

The labor hoodlums, it is understood, have notified their union followers—most of whom are said to be unwilling ones—that they must "kick in" or take the consequences. Many complaints have been sent in anonymously to the state's attorney. One of them, from a girl belonging to the Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers' union, declared that she and her fellow workers have been ordered to give a week's wages each.

Meanwhile, Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber, in charge of the racketeer quiz, and his aide, Thomas Dodd Healy, former federal prosecutor, moved yesterday from downtown quarters into the Criminal court building to carry on their work. They had no statements.

Another phase of tangled labor affairs took place before Judge William J. Lindsay. He continued to May 25 arguments for an injunction wanted by the John Sheridan-Milton Booth faction of the Chicago Teamsters' union against the rebel group headed by George Roy Baker. The postponement was made to allow the state's attorney more time to straighten out the union's affairs.

Seek Bungalow's Secrets.

On other crime fronts, which might have racketeer backgrounds, police held Sam Hunt, ex-Capone gunner and bodyguard, and sought witnesses in the shooting of Charles S. Conroy, ex-convict, who was found wounded Thursday in a small bungalow. The bungalow, at 3228 South 54th court, Cicero, was a dynamite cache. Fifty-six sticks of explosives were found there. Several prepared bombs, fuses, caps and two drums of machine gun cartridges were also found.

Conroy, who may die, refused to answer questions of police. He is in the Berwyn hospital. Detectives are seeking a blond taxi dancer, and James Morton and Willie Evans, the latter two known associates of Conroy.

Sergt. Dan Healy of the Chicago bomb squad, said that the Cicero house might have been headquarters for the men who exploded five dynamite bombs in Chicago on May 1. Healy investigated, but found no link between the Conroy shooting and the bombing yesterday of Dr. Mitchell S. Corbett's emergency hospital at 1330 Lake street. It was learned later that there had been some trouble over employment of nonunion labor on some grading work at the hospital.

CONSIDER ACTION AGAINST KINNEY IN $352,000 LOSS

At the request of Gov. Horner, Attorney General Kerner and his assistant, Montgomery S. Winning, yesterday were studying plans of action against Garrett De Forrest Kinney of Peoria, former state director of finance, who failed to turn back $352,000 of state funds which were involved in bank closings. Instead of turning over the money to the state treasurer, Kinney deposited it in two banks which failed.

"There is no doubt that Kinney violated the law," said Mr. Kerner. "He should have placed the money with the treasurer, as all state officers and department directors are now doing. The law states that he must do so, but he failed."

Kinney left office when the Horner administration took control of the state government in January, and has not turned over the funds. He was to have done so this week, but had not up to last night, according to word from Springfield.

The money was on deposit in the Ayers National bank of Jacksonville, which had $102,000, and the Ridgeley-Farmers bank of Springfield, which had $250,000. Kinney's chief, former Gov. Emmerson, was a director of the Springfield bank. Andrew Russel, who served on the parole board under Emmerson, was an official of the Jacksonville bank. Action against Kinney may be taken before civil recovery suits are decided at Springfield.

INCREASE IN JOBS STARTS DECLINE IN RELIEF ROLLS

First Net Reduction in 14 Months Is Shown.

The steady increase in the number of families on the relief rolls in Chicago, which has remained unbroken for fourteen months, was ended decisively last month when a net decrease of 2.25 per cent for the month was reported by the unemployment relief service of the county bureau of public welfare. Funds spent for relief by that agency decreased 5.35 per cent net for the month.

These decreases were experienced during the same period that increases of 1.8 per cent in employment and 3.8 per cent in pay rolls were shown by 1,068 of the leading manufacturing establishments of the state. The decreases were attributed by Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau, directly to the slight increase in employment and pay rolls.

The decrease in the number of families on the relief rolls did not reflect a seasonal trend, Mr. Moss said, because in April one year ago the number of families on the relief rolls increased 26 per cent over the number on the rolls during the previous month. The net decrease in funds spent for relief did reflect the seasonal savings effected through the purchase of less fuel, less clothing, and other items, he said.

Net Decrease of 2,649 Families.

Last month the unemployment relief service dropped 9,709 families from the rolls and added 7,060 families, leaving a net decrease in the total number of families of 2,649. At the end of the month there were 127,549 families on the rolls, compared to 130,493 families on the rolls at the end of March. During March there was a net increase of 2,597 families on the relief rolls.

Of the 9,709 families dropped from the rolls, 3,272 were dropped because of the employment of some member of the family. In this category 2,696 families secured new or increased employment, old employment was disclosed in 491 families, members of 76 families were employed by the welfare bureau, and nine families obtained sufficient income when a son joined the reforestation army.

Other sources of income caused 207 families to be dropped from the relief rolls and other resources caused 206 families to be dropped. At their own request 99 families were dropped. Refusal to cooperate caused 2,178 families to be dropped and 776 families were transferred to other agencies. A total of 2,971 families were removed for other reasons.

Cites Monthly Figures.

The significance of the definite break in the upward swing of relief statistics was pointed out by Mr. Moss in the following monthly totals of families on the rolls and commitments of the unemployment relief service:

Month—	Families.	Commitments.
February, 1932	39,327	$ 682,771
March	43,913	934,365
April	55,484	1,518,066
May	66,402	1,726,858
June	73,289	1,951,290
July	80,109	2,156,334
August	87,208	2,539,361
September	95,070	2,686,577
October	100,055	1,984,377
November	105,484	3,216,666
December	114,201	3,563,912
January, 1933	121,072	3,698,420
February	125,397	3,621,900
March	130,493	3,815,948
April	127,549	3,609,814

A continued increase in employment and pay rolls will be reflected in the further reduction of the number of families on the relief rolls and in the commitments for relief, Mr. Moss said. This reduction has not been shown to any appreciable extent in the field service division, he said, because the rural communities are not so closely related to industry.

MITCHELL NAME NOT ON WIFE'S BANK RECORDS

3 Million Dollar Error in Stock Sale.

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—The name of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City bank, does not appear in the records of the custodian account maintained by his wife at the time he says he sold her 18,300 shares of National City stock, it was brought out at the banker's trial today.

Mitchell is charged before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard with evading payment of $850,428 taxes on an estimated net income of $4,000,000 for 1929 and 1930. If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of two years' imprisonment and a fine of $20,000.

Edward F. Barrett, vice president of the National City bank, who handled Mrs. Mitchell's account for 12 years, again was recalled to the stand and testified that Mitchell's name did not appear. Under further questioning he characterized an error of $3,000,000 as merely a bookkeeping mistake.

Close Friend of Banker.

Max D. Steuer, Mitchell's attorney, asked Barrett, a close friend of the banker, whether there was an entry in Mrs. Mitchell's account books relating to the purchase of the 18,300 shares from her husband on Dec. 20, 1929.

The prosecution contends that this simply was a paper transaction through which Mitchell sought to write off an apparent loss of $2,800,000 for 1929. Mitchell claims that he sold the stock to his wife at $212 a share, having paid $375 for it, and that he subsequently repurchased it at $212 after it had fallen to $40 a share because he felt responsible to her for the investment and wished to take the loss personally.

Government Disputes Claims.

Mitchell contends that he sold the stock for $3,879,600, which the government disputes on the grounds that Mrs. Mitchell had assets of less than $1,000,000 at the time and could not have met the interest payments on the stock, which was held at that time by J. P. Morgan & Co. as collateral for a loan to Mitchell of $8,000,000.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie quickly noted the discrepancy in the figures and asked whether it was a mistake that the "3" had been left off the entry in the accounting book.

"Just an oversight," Mr. Barrett replied.

"You mean that your secretary didn't realize she was making an error? You gave her the figures, didn't you?" The prosecutor pressed him. "No, sir," Mr. Barrett said. "She figured it out herself."

Q.—Then you mean she took the 18,300, multiplied it by 212 and figured out the total cost? A.—Yes.

No Other Entries Made.

Q.—Of course, your secretary knew about Mrs. Mitchell's account? A.—Yes.

Q.—And at that time the account amounted to only $945,000? A.—Yes.

Mr. Medalie then brought out that from that date until February, 1930, no other entries were made, and that this one entry was directed by Mr. Barrett.

With the $3,000,000 left off, it appeared on Mrs. Mitchell's books that she could have paid for the stock from her estate of $940,000, leaving her a small margain. The actual price was more than four times all she owned.

JUDGES SEEKING RE-ELECTION

FREDERIC R. DE YOUNG

Justice Frederic R. De Young is unopposed for reëlection to the Supreme court in the 7th supreme district, which contains 58 per cent of the population of Illinois and 80 per cent of the lawyers, but elects only one-seventh of the Supreme judges. It embraces the counties of Cook, Lake, Du Page, Will, and Kankakee. Judge De Young, a Republican, heads the Democratic fusion ticket which contains nine sitting Republican judges who chose to run under the Democratic circle.

Judge De Young has written opinions in some of the most important cases brought before the high tribunal. Especially momentous were two decisions to modernize court procedure in the battle against crime and gangland. One of these held that a defendant in a felony case had the right to waive a trial by jury. The second of these findings written by De Young held unconstitutional a law that in criminal cases juries should be judges of the law as well as of the facts. This law had been on the statute books for more than a hundred years.

These two reforms had been advocated by the judicial advisory council as great forward steps. Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Cook county Circuit court, as a test, handed down two decisions upholding the right of jury waiver and denying the right of juries in criminal cases to judge the law as well as the facts. The two rulings were upheld by the Supreme court, and the decisions in each were written by De Young. The effect has been to expedite the trial of criminal cases. Before the decisions were rendered it required 13 judges to do the work in the Criminal court. Now seven judges are enough.

Besides making trials speedier, these two decisions written by De Young have served to promote justice, and by the bar they have been acclaimed as the greatest advance in criminal procedure made in Illinois in the last fifty years.

Judge De Young was born in Chicago in 1875, and was admitted to the bar in 1897. He was a member of the legislature from 1915 to 1919 and became known as one of the leading debaters in the house. He was identified with many important measures. He was a member of the constitutional convention from 1920 to 1922, serving as chairman of the judicial committee.

In 1920 Gov. Frank O. Lowden appointed him to fill a vacancy on the Circuit court of Cook county, and in 1923 he was elected as judge of the Superior court. The next year, in June, 1924, he was elected to the Supreme court, for the term of nine years.

He was nominated for reëlection by both the Republicans and Democrats, and elected to run on the Democratic ticket, upon which are all the sitting Circuit judges but one who are up for election.

3,500 Silk Workers on Hunger Strike Over Pay

WARSAW, Poland, May 19.—(AP)—Thirty-five hundred employés of an artificial silk factory at Tomaszow are on hunger strike as the result of a dispute over wages. The workers are remaining in the factory day and night, refusing either to eat or to work.

JELKE CALLED 'CAGED LION' BY WIFE'S WITNESS

Newport, R. I., May 19.—[Special.]—F. Frazier Jelke heard himself described today as a "caged lion," and so cantankerous at times that not even "an angel in heaven could come down and get along" with him.

Mrs. Jelke, the former Eugenia Woodward, niece of the late Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama, had her innings as hearing was started for her cross divorce suit against the broker and society man of New York and Chicago before Superior Court Judge Charles A. Walsh and an audience made up largely of the Jelkes' fellow Newport society colonists.

Hearing of testimony in Jelke's suit was concluded late yesterday. Previous testimony had concerned such episodes in the couple's two years of stormy married life as ear biting on the part of Mrs. Jelke and her attendance at the Beaux Arts ball in Paris minus most of her clothing.

The court and an eagerly receptive audience also has heard about $3,000 perfume and cosmetic bills, a honeymoon suite that set the broker back $5,000, and New York apartments at $25,000 a year.

Cruelty and Nonsupport.

Jelke in his suit charged misconduct, cruelty, and desertion, while his wife wants freedom because, she alleges, her husband is cruel and has not supported her.

An aunt of Mrs. Jelke, Mrs. Emerson Morris of Richmond, Va., was today's chief witness in support of the wife's counter suit, and it was she who likened Jelke to a peevish lion and brought in the angel theme.

Mrs. Morris testified to visiting her niece at a hotel in Berne, Switzerland, in April, 1931.

"Mrs. Jelke seemed like a whipped dog—no red blood in her," the witness said. "She looked like 55 instead of 25. She was a sick woman and complained of her husband's treatment. He was cruel. He was a brute. He might kill her. I did not know what to do."

Asked whether Mrs. Jelke had complained of her husband's treatment, the witness replied:

"'I have married against the wishes of my family and my only desire is to make a go of it. I'm a jellyfish, absolutely without backbone.'"

Again, in May, 1931, Mrs. Morris had occasion to visit the honeymooners at the Hotel St. George in Paris, where Mrs. Jelke was ill.

"Like Caged Lion."

Q.—What was Mr. Jelke's attitude? A.—He treaded up and down the apartment like a caged lion. He was irritable, seemed bored to death with her and his one idea seemed to be to get rid of her.

The scene switched to Birmingham, Ala., and Jelke's counsel asked Mrs. Morris whether Mrs. Jelke had complained of her husband's treatment there.

"Yes. She couldn't please him. Everything she did was wrong. Nothing was right. She told me she married him against the wishes of her family."

Then back to Berne, where, the witness said, Mrs. Jelke's maid had to wash the broker's linen in the bathroom of their suite in the city's most fashionable hotel.

That was all for Mrs. Morris and she stepped down from the stand. She gave Jelke a scornful glare as she passed him.

Testifies About "Major."

Counsel for Mrs. Jelke requested the court's permission to return to the stand Mrs. Effie Bailey of Birmingham, who, in Jelke's hearing, swore she saw Mrs. Jelke and a mystery man known as the "major" in a bedroom of an apartment house in Birmingham. Upon counsel's announcement that another affidavit had been obtained from Mrs. Bailey, Judge Walsh ordered her to be resummoned for further questioning.

Mrs. Jelke's attorney said that he would disprove "absolutely and unqualifiedly" Jelke's charges of misconduct against his wife.

JOLIET WOMAN'S PHONE CUT AFTER DEATH THREATS

Mrs. Clyde G. Calkins, who has received three threatening letters at her Joliet home, reported yesterday to Joliet police that her telephone wires had been cut. The first letter, scrawled on brown paper, smeared with blood and signed, "The Gang," said: "If you value your life drop the case against Helen Demming."

Mrs. Calkins had caused the arrest of Miss Demming, a former maid, when she found some of her belongings in the maid's room. The maid has been in the Will county jail two months.

Mrs. Calkins said she received a second letter that said: "You have told police, now you will get yours." A third note, according to Mrs. Calkins, threatened that her 5 year old daughter, Shirley Mae, would be kidnaped if she testified next week before the grand jury.

SANITARY BOARD EX-BUYER FACES "WHOOPEE" TRIAL

Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court ruled yesterday that Timothy L. Connolly, purchasing agent of the sanitary district during the "whoopee era," must stand trial on the same charges that resulted in conviction and sentence of Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the district, and former Trustee Frank J. Link to one to five years in the penitentiary. The case will be assigned to a trial judge by the chief justice on June 12.

Judge Prystalski quashed seven of the ten counts in the conspiracy indictment on technicalities. The remaining three counts are those on which Crowe and Link were tried, charging conspiracy to obtain millions in sanitary district funds.

Connolly was indicted with Link and Crowe, but fled the state and was not apprehended until their trial was near a close.

IRISH DECORATE STATUE OF QUEEN WITH VEGETABLES

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 19.—(AP)—Two popular members of the Cosgrave parliamentary party today placed a huge wreath of cauliflower, rhubarb, onions, and cabbages at the base of the statue of Queen Victoria on the lawn in front of the house of parliament.

The wreath bore the inscription, "Ave atque vale" [Hale and farewell].

Apparently this inscription referred to the intention of the government to bow to insistent agitation by moving the statue and replacing it with a statue of Thomas Davis, Irish poet.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LIQUOR TAXES AND ECONOMIC RECOVERY.

The President's argument for speeding the repeal of prohibition is unanswerable. If, as he says, the repeal is voted promptly, there will be no need for additional taxation with which to finance his public works program. The yield from liquor taxation will be adequate and more than adequate to meet the interest on the money to be borrowed and retire the loans.

Every day it becomes more apparent that prohibition is dead. Wisconsin, Michigan, and Rhode Island have voted for repeal. New Jersey has gone for repeal by a hundred to one. Wyoming, an agrarian state where prohibition sentiment might have been expected to make something of a showing, has gone overwhelmingly wet. There may be thirteen states which can be kept in the dry column, but it is as certain as anything can be that they will be backward states, containing much less than a fourth of the nation's total population. The repeal amendment will probably be ratified by the necessary three-fourths of the states, but if it is not it is unthinkable that the progressive, wealthy, populous commonwealths will permit themselves to be dictated to by a hillbilly minority. Prohibition is dead. It should be given the decent burial of repeal, but if that fails nullification is inevitable.

With nullification liquor will again be sold openly, but there will be no means of regulating its sale and no revenue for the government. The government needs the money now. The only alternative, as Budget Director Douglas has informed the ways and means committee of the house, is increased taxation on incomes, business, and profits precisely at the time when the government is making every effort to lighten the burden of taxation on productive industry and wealth. The sooner repeal is voted the better the chances of success for the President's plan of recovery from the depression.

FORCE AND THE FARMER.

While professional agitators will use any benefits that may accrue to the Wisconsin farmer from the strike just ended as an indorsement of their methods, it is to be hoped reflection by the farmers themselves will not support that theory. Some leaders of the strike seem unwilling to do so, declaring that violence was imported by outside trouble makers. Nevertheless some promoters of the strike have subtly imposed the thought that the producers of the nation's food need only to let the people of the cities spend a day or so in want of their customary and necessary supplies whereupon the farmer can impose such prices and terms as he may dictate. To accomplish this the Wisconsin dairyman, whose thinking processes are similar to those of other farm groups, has been invited to try the annihilation of the law.

His leaders have never told him, and the thought apparently never has occurred, that a hungry urban population which vastly outnumbers the farm population would be an element not at all likely to come suing for food at an arbitrary price fixed by the operators of the farm. If the farmer succeeded in getting them hungry they would come to the farms in a manner not anticipated by the striking farmers and in a mood different from that pictured by the promoters of strikes and holidays.

There is no people whose security is so dependent upon the processes and protection of the laws as the farmer. His distress at present is admitted, although it is no worse and perhaps not so great as that of many an honest and industrious city man. It would be an unhappy day for him if he were to succeed in an undertaking to break down public authority.

No one knows this better than most of the solid and elder farmers. An observer in Wisconsin gave clear expression to this during the present unpleasantness when he said, after a drive through the state, "the old man is at home plowing while his sons and the hired man are out picketing."

NAVAL ECONOMIES.

Secretary of the Navy Swanson's program for reduction of expenditure in the naval establishment is, we are confident, well considered and deserving of adoption. As senator from Virginia for 23 years, Mr. Swanson has had ample opportunity to consider national policies and as a member of the naval affairs committee and latterly its chairman has given special study to naval problems. He is no pacifist, but on the contrary an advocate of adequate defense, and it may be safely assumed that he favors no serious impairment of naval efficiency and is sufficiently instructed to avoid it. This consideration should more than offset the bureaucratic or local influences which will object to any reductions affecting them. The way to retrench is to retrench, and both the navy and the taxpayers are fortunate in having an agent of economy able to distinguish essentials from nonessentials and to accomplish substantial savings, something like 55 millions for the fiscal year, with due respect for actual naval efficiency as well as the urgent need for drastic economies in federal expenditures.

The truth is that naval expenditure as well as all other government expenditure has included much spending not required for fighting efficiency, but dictated either by bureaucratic zeal or sectional and political interests. Now is the time to make cuts which should have been made even in the piping times of prosperity, since they imposed an unnecessary and improper burden upon the taxpayer and also diverted money to nonessentials which might have been better spent. It is fair to the navy to say that it has not favored many of these expenditures and has recommended corrections which parasitic politics and local civilian selfishness have refused. Secretary Swanson has now an unusual opportunity to reform naval expenditure and is evidently disposed to do so. Both he and his chief are informed in naval affairs and do not underestimate the importance of maintaining our first line of defense. Well judged economies are consistent with this maintenance, and in the long run, as well as under pressure of the immediate circumstances, are in the interest of naval efficiency.

THE TEACHING OF SEDITION.

The state senate has approved two measures intended to penalize educational institutions which permit the teaching of what is called seditious matter. The tax exemption now accorded to offending institutions would be withdrawn and they would be deprived of any funds from the public treasuries.

While support of these measures is not merited, it is easy to see how they came to be introduced. The universities have countenanced a lot of loose talk by faculty members. The legislators can hardly be blamed if they think that the colleges are centers of revolutionary agitation. The agitators may be in the minority, but they speak in loud tones and no effort appears to be made on the campuses to refute them.

One trouble with these bills is that the term "seditious" is not defined. Another trouble is that the enactment of the measures might lead to some unexpected results. In the effort to prevent the youth of the state from being exposed to revolutionary propaganda the legislature may prevent exposure to any education. If, for example, some half-baked instructor in sociology at the University of Chicago were to offend by design or inadvertence the whole institution would suffer. Mr. Shorey's lectures on Plato, Mr. Compton's on the cosmic waves, and Mr. Case's on the life of Jesus might have to be dropped from the catalogue. That would seem to be a high price to pay for the indiscretions of some young squirt in sociology.

MORE REGULATION.

At the annual dinner of the Western Railway club President Harry A. Wheeler of the Railway Business association made the principal speech. His theme was regulation and more regulation of all forms of transportation by rail, on the highways, or through the air. He developed a new scheme of creating two regulatory bodies, one to make and control rates and another to guide the development of all interstate transportation facilities.

We think this ill judged. In their annual report for the year 1932 the interstate commerce commission said, "It is also a significant circumstance that there is substantially no demand for public regulation of the charges of motor trucks to protect shippers against exorbitant or discriminatory charges. The demand has been chiefly from the railroads and for the prescription of minimum rather than maximum charges."

If our railway presidents would forget their schemes for harassing their competitors and lend their support to constructive movements that will reduce regulation and permit traffic development instead of bleeding the present commerce white, they would get a measure of public support that the interstate commerce commission says is lacking.

THE PARAGUAYAN INFELICITY.

Geneva asks Paraguay to reconsider and recall the declaration of war it so intemperately proclaimed after so many months of peaceful fighting with Bolivia in the jungles of the Gran Chaco. This inconsiderate act marred a perfect record. It was the first declaration of war since the league established its secretariat and its forum in the pleasant surroundings of Geneva. The leaguists will ask Paraguay to observe, among many other examples of truly civilized conduct, that of Japan. Japan is using many army divisions in China without departing from the principle acknowledged the world over, that war is no longer an instrument of national policy. The fighting is skillful and sanguinary. It is creating new states. It has devastated cities. It has filled the graveyards and the hospitals. Fugitives with their bundles of worldly goods flee from the sulphurous front of this peace in despair of their lives, but it is not war.

Many other instances of the new Kellogg conception of armed activities can be brought to Paraguay's attention. What Japan is doing south of the Great Wall in China surely can be done by Paraguay in the jungles. A nicer sense of the new humanities would impel the recall of an impatient declaration and permit the league to go to sleep again at Geneva in the certainty of knowing that it has banished war from the fears and experience of the human race.

Editorial of the Day

THE BEER LAW ATTACKED.

[Columbus Evening Dispatch.]

The surprising thing about the test soon to be made in Columbus courts to determine the legality of Ohio's new beer law is that it didn't come sooner and that a suit has not been instituted in the state courts by one or more of the once militant dry bodies of Ohio.

The outcome of the case now pending will be interesting, in view of the fact that the question of whether beer violates the Ohio and federal constitutions has been unanswered ever since that beverage was restored in this state by statute.

The arguments on either side of it have been long and convincing, according to one's personal viewpoint, but there can be only one definite answer, and that must be given by the courts. Just what will be used to determine whether 3.2 beer is intoxicating, and therefore unconstitutional, is problematical, although so far as police records are concerned it is far less intoxicating than was the old home brew, arrests for drunkenness in Columbus having fallen off considerably since the return of legal beer.

ANSWER THAT!

"POLICE ARREST Louie the Louse for Loitering in the Loop."—Headline. Tsk, tsk, tsk! And here we are trying to clean up and brighten up and make everything sweet and lovely for the visitors to the World's Fair. Let us also do a little work on the nomenclature of various and sundry persons who are taken in custody by the police. In the future we trust that our newspapers referring to this person will speak of him as Louie the Certain Small, Wingless, Flattened Insect, Parasitic on Warm Blooded Animals. It will take more space, but it will certainly sound much more polite and well bred than the former cognomen.

Softly, from her secret mooring
In some hidden still lagoon,
Out upon dusk's iris waters
Slips the white and stately moon.

Softly in the lake of heaven,

Luminous white lilies open
As the planets wake from sleep.

Softly down the waveless waters
Drifts a frail and lovely bark
Bearing one who comes to find me

Softly now her hand has touched me;
Gently now our lips have kissed;
Once again in May at twilight
Memory comes to keep our tryst!

IN HIS PLEA for divorce Mr. Jelke says his wife when she was his happy bride leaped upon him, tore his shirt from his back, and bit his ear. We think husbands could prevent their brides from biting their ears very readily. Mothers put quinine or aloes or some other vile tasting stuff on the fingers of their children to prevent the dear little ones from chewing their finger nails, and, while it's only a suggestion, possibly young husbands whose wives show a disposition to bite their ears would do well to paint their ears with quinine or aloes. Then, after a bite or two, the bride would probably desist. At least it is worth trying. But in regards to the torn shirt, that is a more difficult matter. Shirts are expensive. How happy the knights of old must have been who wore steel shirts. We can just imagine Sir Launcelot or Sir Geoffrey rocking with mirth as their brides leaped at them and tried to tear up their tin shirts. And as for their ears, they wore helmets, and imagine a bride, no matter how peevish or ill natured she might be, trying to bite her husband's ear through a steel helmet. It simply couldn't be done. Oh, for the good old times when knighthood was in flower. For the bridegrooms at least those were indeed the happy days!

WE ARE INFORMED in cables from Paris that Marlene Dietrich arrived there wearing a "pearl gray man's lounging suit." But there must be one or how could Marlene have bought his clothes?

WE WROTE to the Appalachian club down in the Great Smokies about a cottage for our vacation and said we wanted a cottage because hotel clerks always bite little dogs and, if there was any biting to be done, we preferred Thomas Atkins, the Sussex Sealy, to do the biting. Whereupon we had a return letter from Allen Fox, the official clerk at the club, saying: "I have often heard it said that when a dog bites a man it is not news, but when a man bites a dog that it is news. And I take it from your letter that when a hotel clerk bites a little dog it is a nuisance." We refer Mr. Fox, without comment, to Ernest Byfield and Frank Case—he's wasted down in Tennessee.

THE IMMORTAL.

Dearest and best beloved, oh my love,
Perceive the waiting dust an idle threat
To this most ardent one—who knows whereof
Her faith is wrought! Who neither will forget,
Nor by the tinest variation alter
The compass of that faith, her star and sun!
Think for no moment that her foot will falter
Or any byway of oblivion!

Tenant of flesh be wholly dispossessed!
Here is the sovereign sign to put to flight
The tallest death; this were the sum and best;
Your head on the warm shadow of my breast,

HICCUPS.

A SUBJECT on which a great many write is hiccups. Ninety-nine per cent of the letters on all subjects ask for information. When it comes to hiccups the proportion is reversed. Nearly 99 per cent offer "sure cures" for the trouble. Practically every "sure cure" in the test is indorsed on the basis of one experience with the symptom. In most cases the writer had the troublesome affliction, used the method he writes about, was cured, and immediately becomes an apostle anxious to carry the message "over into Macedonia."

Hiccup is a periodic, spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm. For reasons easily understood it was one of the first physical disorders to be noted, if we can accept the very earliest known records. So striking a disorder soon spurred the inventiveness of man. In consequence remedies for hiccup are found in the earliest medical documents. Many of these prehistoric methods became folk methods, and most of those so enthusiastically advocated by my correspondents are hoary with age—a thousand or more years old.

There are simple cases that can be remedied by the folk methods alluded to, and then there are others. Dr. Charles Mayo thought the subject of enough interest to deliver a paper on it to a large group of medical men. He described nearly two dozen kinds of hiccup, due to an even greater number of causes. One group he describes as epidemic. These cases are related to sleeping sickness or encephalitis, and he thinks they are due to a streptococcus that is specific. The cases in the group may be treated by a so-called serum devised for treating encephalitis.

Another group he terms chemical. Among them are the cases that follow in the wake of a drunk. The stomach lies close to the diaphragm, and anything which irritates that organ is liable to cause hiccups. The best single procedure to overcome hiccups due to the irritative effects of alcoholic beverages is to wash the stomach thoroughly and to follow with some soothing medicine.

In every case of hiccups due to irritation of the stomach walls, as so many of them are, the medicines chosen for relief are much more apt to be effective if they soothe the stomach, without leaving an after irritation. For example, chloroform internally soothes the stomach primarily and, in that way, may stop hiccups, but its after effect is irritating, and therefore giving it to relieve the condition may do more harm than good.

In a large proportion of the more serious cases of hiccups the irritation is in the lungs or pleura just above the diaphragm, or in the liver, the stomach, the peritoneum, or some other structure just below it. However, Dr. Mayo says, in prolonged hiccups in men over 45 years disorders of the prostate gland are apt to be at fault. The cause may be a tumor or some other disease located in that part of the brain that presides over the diaphragm and stomach. Or the trouble may be in the great nerve which runs from the brain through the chest and to the diaphragm—the phrenic. Hiccuping may be due to some irritation transmitted along this nerve. These cases may call for surgery as a cure. Then there are a group of mechanical causes.

And, finally, there is a large group of causes, usually of minor importance, in which the brain and nerves play a part. In this group are the hysterical hiccups, and also those due to minor disturbances. It is in the kind secondary to minor disturbances that the household remedies and procedures are of great service.

BUMP ON NOSE.

L. M. N. writes: My child, 4 years old, has a small bump on her nose which I would like very much to get rid of. Would massaging it reduce the bump or prevent it from getting larger? Is there anything at all that I may do to correct it?

REPLY.

There can be no answer to your questions that does not take into consideration the nature of the bump, of what it is composed, and where it is located. The remedy for some of these defects is to change one's parentage. However, bumps of that class are usually not much in evidence until maturer years.

UNPAID DEBT.

Wilmington, Ill., May 14. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and I own our home together, a joint deed. We have kept our deed and abstract in the bank for safe keeping. My husband owes the bank some money which he cannot pay at the present time. I am not in any way connected with the loan. I applied to the bank for the deed and abstract. The bank refused to give it to me on account of my husband's debt. 1. Can the bank hold the deed and abstract when it was not put up for any security? 2. What would you advise me to do to recover the same? S. R. R.

1. They have no technical legal right to do so, but as a practical matter you are hardly in a position to question the point.

2. If you wish to force matters, it would be necessary to employ an attorney for the replevin proceedings. The bank would probably counter by action against your husband on the notes.

What case calls for a regular judgment? B. M.

1. Under the statute passed in 1931 the owner is not liable to a gratuitous guest unless the owner was guilty of something more serious than ordinary negligence.

4. The term judgment would include judgment on contracts and judgments for torts. A tort is an injury not amounting to a misdemeanor or a crime.

5. In view of recent discussion of judgments, including finding that the defendant was malicious, it seems probable that it is this distinction that you have in mind rather than the distinction between tort and contract cases.

6. The term judgment is all inclusive.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 20, 1893.

CHICAGO.—Sunday opening at the World's Fair will not be inaugurated tomorrow. This decision was reached at the meeting of the board of directors. The action is due to the failure of the national commission to act on the opening rule passed earlier in the week. Immense crowds are expected tonight in view of the failure to open tomorrow.

The Hall of Columbus echoed last night to the cheers of 3,000 women, whose hearts were stirred by the beautiful and impassioned words of Helena Modjeska, speaking in behalf of her countrywomen of Poland.

"La Dijonnaise" was set up ready for inspection of visitors. "La Dijonnaise" has a great history. It is a guillotine that did bloody work in the days of the first French revolution. Its blade fell and ended the life of Marie Antoinette in October, 1793.

If "A Night in Vienna" is anything like last evening in "Old Vienna" on Midway Plaisance, Austria's capital must be a lively and happy burg. Old Vienna is one of the largest concessions on the Plaisance and a quaint place it is. The streets depicted in the village represent Vienna as it stood 200 years ago.

The managers of the Chinese bazaar, theater, and joss-house held an opening last evening. The principal performance was in the gorgeous theater, which is ahead of anything on the Plaisance in the way of decorations and stage trappings.

There was a riot in the Street in Cairo last night, and Special Guard Carey was roughly handled by the populace. Two Arabs started a fight and when Carey attempted to suppress them he was set upon by two score of the unruly Egyptians, who nearly tore his gaudy uniform from him before other guards came to his rescue.

LONDON. — The most frightful fighting of the world war—not excepting that on the western front—now is being staged between the Italians and Austrians aided by German contingents. This information is contained in unofficial advices from the battle front and official reports issued by the Italian and Austrian war departments. North of Goritz the Italians have captured the heights of Hill 652, the key to the Vodice position, in a long and severe action in which the attacking troops were compelled to advance from rock to rock. Despite desperate resistance the Austrians were driven from the stronghold. Repeated dashes in dense columns against the heights of Vodice collapsed with terrific losses to the attackers, Vienna declares.

OTHER WAR NEWS. — Bad weather hampers operations on the British front in France. Paris reports the repulse of the Germans northwest of Braye-en-Laonnois. Liquid fire attacks south of Courcy were repelled. Berlin reports improvements in Braye-en-Laonnois positions. Rome reports the capture of a pivotal point to the Austrian defenses northeast of Monte Santo after hand to hand fighting. Vienna admits abandonment of Kuk, southeast of Plava.

CHICAGO.—At least 3,000 of the troops who will go to France under the command of Gen. Pershing hail from Illinois.

IRELAND AT THE FAIR.

Chicago, May 16.—I read with more than passing interest the extract from THE TRIBUNE of forty years ago relating to the so-called Irish village at the World's Fair of 1893. There will be another Irish exhibit at A Century of Progress. Infinitely more than forty years separate it in spirit from the affair of 1893. It will have no "shillalah makers," no earl and countess of Aberdeen to lend it the distinction of their patronizing interest. The 1933 exhibit will be typical of the new Ireland—Irish Ireland—the Ireland that has survived both the enmity and the kindness of the Aberdeens and their kind.

The exhibit at A Century of Progress has been arranged by the Irish Free State government. The Free State is one of the few countries exhibiting at the Fair through their governments. Mention of an Irish government forty years ago to his lordship of Aberdeen [and later, somewhat blasphemously, of Tara] would have caused that bewhiskered nobleman to indulge in a hairy snicker or perhaps to have sent for the constabulary. Shillalah making, never an organized industry and of which there exist more stories than statistics, will be replaced in the 1933 exhibit by a display of Irish arts and crafts. It will include the most comprenensive display of paintings by contemporary Irish artists ever seen outside Ireland. In addition there will be displays of metal, glass and leather work. Characteristic industries will be represented by an exhibit of textile products.

The 1933 Irish exhibit will be one of which every one of Irish birth or descent will be proud, and one that will appeal to all lovers of the beautiful, regardless of race. It won't be a side show catering to the old, moth-eaten baloney about the Blarney Stone and the conception of the Irish as a people who, when not engaged in rapping each other's skull with shillalahs, spend their time dancing jigs or singing sad, sweet songs to the accompaniment of harps. The Irish exhibit at this World's Fair will be as different from the affair of forty years ago as gold is from brass. EBLANA.

A QUESTION OF DEFINITION.

Chicago, May 16.—In her letter in this column today Mrs. A. W. Dilling of Kenilworth says that it is well to realize that Mr. Geer's statement concerning the lynching of Judge Bradley and the Progressive Miners' union represents the Socialist-communist viewpoint rather than the Christian.

I should like to ask Mrs. Dilling whether the Christian viewpoint on these matters is at variance with the viewpoint set forth in Mr. Geer's letter, which she characterizes as the socialist-communist. If it is, then I wish to be put on record as being pro-socialist-communist, and anti-Christian, and I know many hundreds of others who would also wish to be so listed. HART E. BAKER.

CAN'T SAY.

Chicago, May 13.—Wonder what a colonial American on her way to do a bit of bootlicking at Buckingham palace thinks of the ungrateful Irish and their refusal to take an oath of allegiance to the British crown. Or does it really matter a tinker's dam what a colonial American thinks? MICK.

SO THEY WON'T GET ANY ORDERS.

Chicago, May 16.—Why do so many firms insist on leaving their telephone numbers off their stationery, especially on letterheads and statements?

PEEVED SECRETARY.

OLIVES AND LEMONS.

Chicago, May 17.—Once again the Messianic delusion settles over the White House. Once again an American President, aflame with noble purpose, becomes the angel of peace and spreads his wings over Europe. The shining messenger goes forth from Washington bearing an olive branch to the tormented nations. But somewhere west of the Alps the olives will turn to lemons. And the disillusioned angel will come home roaring for guns and cruisers and another war to end war.

For good old Europe has the fighting heart. It can't endure the monotony of peace. For a thousand years life has been one grand scrap after another. It's the European test of virility and every generation must prove itself. Once again we hear the good old war cries of the fierce Nordic, the reborn Roman, the Gaul, the Slav, the Serb and even the Greek. The boys are ready for battle—and why not? There's a new rule that makes the game more attractive than ever. Europe has found a sponsor, a kind uncle who encourages the sport. He's a dear old gentleman who steps in when the going gets rough and wins the war. He foots the bill for the victor, pays the loser's indemnity and generously counts himself out of the spoils. Happy days. With Uncle Sam behind them the boys are ready to do or die until the crack of doom. D. HORWICH.

THE BIG TEN TRACK MEET.

Chicago, May 16.—It is with considerable gratification that I have noted in the last few weeks in your columns some news about the Big Ten track meet which is to take place this coming Friday and Saturday at Dyche stadium.

The writer is one of some 200,000 local alumni of various schools over the country who are intensely interestd in amateur athletic events, especially pertaining to the colleges and universities. Therefore I am more than glad to see you giving us some news of this spectacular event which I understand is to be run off Friday and Saturday of this week.

From information I have received from your columns and by word of mouth from other alumni I understand this is to be a counterpart of the way such events are handled in the European Olympic, PAUL T. MILLER.

X-RAYS.

Evanston, Ill., May 16.—In your article this morning regarding the Mercy hospital X-ray clinic you state that the patient had 800,000 volts and 10 milliamperes of electricity coursing through his body for thirty-five minutes and did not even feel it.

Any one familiar with X-rays knows that no electricity passes through the patient. A high voltage passing through a Coolidge tube strikes a tungsten target and gives off a quantity of X-rays of various lengths. It is these rays which pass through the patient and produce the therapeutic results. These rays are invisible and cannot be felt. The electricity does not enter into the treatment, it being used only for the generation of the X-rays. J. N. EPSTEIN.

HEAVY TAX LOAD DRIVES INDUSTRY FROM NEW YORK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—High taxes and "nuisance" regulations imposed by the legislature are driving factories and other industrial plants from New York state by the score.

Big printing establishments are fleeing to New Hampshire, Tennessee, and Connecticut.

Textile mills, once the nucleus of many a thriving upstate community, are seeking refuge in the south where, in addition to lower taxes and other advantages, they will be able to economize substantially on the cost of transporting the raw products.

New Jersey is drawing one big concern after another across the river and outside the range of the heavy municipal taxes which Tammany ridden New York City piles on top of those fixed by the state lawmakers at Albany. Canada has become the haven of a sizeable group of the harassed refugees.

Going on Several Years.

The exodus has been going on for several years as the cost of state and local government has mounted from one new high to another.

Efforts to lure back fleeing business or induce new concerns to reopen the plants vacated by the "refugees" are going on all over the state. That the efforts, too often, end in lamentable failure—is testified to by the silent hulks of deserted factory buildings to be seen in every city and town of any size throughout the state.

The long and growing list of plants that have found it the better part of judgment to leave the state for less expensive fields of operation since the state and city tax line took such a pronounced upturn includes almost every major industry.

The "exiles" of the printing industry alone embrace some of the biggest concerns in that field in the east. High up on the list is the Conde Nast publications, which yielded to the force of circumstances by moving its great plant across the state line into Greenwich, Conn., some years ago. The Rumford Press, whose name is familiar to magazine readers, found a refuge to its liking just outside Concord, N. H. The Federal Printing company moved over to Philadelphia a year ago, and the American Colortype company went to Allwood, N. J.

Other Concerns Move.

Other companies which have moved their plants away from New York in recent years are the Cuneo Printing company, which removed to Philadelphia, and the Langer Printing company, which went to Dunellan, N. J.

Other concerns which have fled the state in recent years to seek "more favorable conditions" include the Wessel Manufacturing company, metal manufacturers, which moved from Brooklyn to Scranton, Pa.; the Norma Company of America, which transferred its plant from Queensborough to Stamford, Conn.; the Paul Blaiser Dyeing corporation, from Brooklyn to New Jersey; the Hemco Electric company, from Brooklyn to Connecticut; the Union Carbide and Carbon company, which moved its laboratories from Long Island City to Cleveland; the Biberfeld Embroidery company, from Brooklyn to New Jersey; the Swoter-Donnaud corporation, from Brooklyn to Allentown, Pa.; the Consolidated Card company, from New York City to Cincinnati, O., and the Lidgerwood Manufacturing company of Brooklyn, manufacturers of winches and mining machinery, which moved its plant to Elizabeth, N. J.

The Brown-Lipe-Chapin company, a subsidiary of the General Motors corporation, manufacturers of automobile gears, closed up its Syracuse plant a few months ago and went back to Michigan.

Hundreds Close Down.

The number of plants closed down because of high taxes and other overhead costs exceeding their "depression" income could be numbered by the hundreds. They represent virtually every industry of the state.

A compendium published by the economic council awhile back showed that in 1929 a manufacturer operating in New York state was compelled to pay $1.65 in state and local taxes for every $100 cost of gross production, as compared with 61 cents in Pennsylvania, 48 cents in Maryland, and 47 cents in Indiana on every $100 output. The rate for New Jersey was given as $1.39 and that of Massachusetts at $1.20.

With approximately 10 per cent of the population of the country, New York state pays one-third of all the workmen's compensation paid by the forty-six states that have laws providing for this form of compensation. Manufacturers complain that the policy of "broad interpretation" given the provisions of the measure here subject it to costly abuses on a scale duplicated nowhere else in the country.

COLONEL M'CORMICK PRAISES ROOSEVELT FOR ECONOMY ACTS

Monroe, La., May 19.—[Special.]—Speaking before the fifty-third annual convention of the Louisiana Press association here this afternoon, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, emphasized the importance of the new great lakes-to-the-gulf waterway, soon to be opened between the great lakes and the Mississippi river, as a promoter of American trade, national and international. He pointed out that the opening of the waterway is the fulfillment of dreams envisioned more than 200 years ago by "that great Frenchman, La Salle."

Col. McCormick, in his address, paid tribute to President Roosevelt's budget slashing policy. "For two years," he said, "I have been preaching, and to my own satisfaction have proven that the depression, which we have all suffered under, has been caused by excessive taxes. Hence I commend, without stint, the courage of our President, Franklin Roosevelt, in slashing the profits of wholesale corruption which he found when he came into office.

"Taxes are the source of wealth of the federal government and it has been recently compelled to repudiate its promise to pay its debts in gold. The government has passed laws, deflating the dollar.

"I believe it is apparent the cost of government must be reduced, and I wish to pay a generous tribute to our government in Washington in its reduction of government expense.

"As our forefathers have overcome obstacles in the past, I do not despair that we can save our country now."

SENATOR GLASS RESUMES FIGHT FOR BANK BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] today resumed his fight for permanent reform of the national banking structure, with a bitter speech on the floor of the senate denouncing present practices and demanding the immediate divorcement of security affiliates from commercial banking houses.

Senator Glass' speech ushered his revised banking bill onto the floor of the senate, as Speaker Rainey in the house prepared the way for immediate consideration of a companion measure, introduced by Chairman Henry B. Steagall [Dem., Ala.] of the house banking and currency committee. Neither bill is yet a part of the administration's definite legislative program, but President Roosevelt is not expected to interpose any obstacle to their passage.

Call for Partial Guarantee.

Both measures call for a partial guarantee of bank deposits through a fund created by subscription of participating banks. The only major point of difference between the two bills lies in the manner in which state banks may participate in the benefits of the guaranty fund, and it is this difference which is regarded as most likely to create difficulty for the measure's approval.

A suggestion, made today by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, under which the Reconstruction Finance corporation would guarantee deposits in all banks 100 per cent during the period between now and July 1, 1934, when the Glass bill's guaranty provision becomes effective, was scrapped by a unanimous vote of the senate banking and currency committee just before Senator Glass began his speech on the floor.

"Better Banking Inevitable."

Explaining the provisions of his bill today and the changes made in it, from the measure which passed the senate at the last session and died in the hands of the house banking and currency committee, Senator Glass declared that "better banking is inevitable if we have this insurance" of deposits.

'UNKNOWN MAN' OF ITALY IN NEW FIGHT FOR A NAME

Two "Wives" Battle for Right to Keep Him.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, May 19.—After seven years of vicissitudes stranger than fiction, Mario Bruneri, northern Italy's famous "unknown man," is just at the beginning of his troubles, it appears, and his fate is again creating passionate arguments and partisanship throughout the country.

Bruneri claims he is not Bruneri. He has insisted for seven years that he is Giulio Canella, a learned professor of Verona, lost during the war. Signora Canella also says he is Canella. Signora Bruneri of Turin, however, claims the man is none other than her husband, Mario Bruneri, a linotype operator, who was arrested about seven years ago for stealing bronze wreaths from a graveyard.

How Story Started.

That arrest was what started this story. The man arrested then proved to be mentally deranged and was sent to an asylum. While there he was recognized by a friend of Signora Canella, who reported his likeness to her. She rushed to the asylum, recognized the man as her husband, and fell into his arms. That brought his memory back, it seems.

Since then he has been endeavoring to prove that he is Prof. Canella and the Bruneris have been seeking to prove that he is Bruneri. Every one in Italy has an opinion on the case.

After dragging through all the courts in Italy, up to the highest one, the case was finally and definitely decided a year ago, when five learned judges ruled that the "unknown man" was Bruneri, a printer, and would have to go to jail and serve his sentence for stealing wreaths from the graveyard.

Rule Children Are Illegitimate.

This was after the unknown had been living as Signora Canella's husband for several years and was the father of two more children, whom previous courts had decided were illegitimate and later legitimate and finally illegitimate again.

A few days ago the man was released from prison, having served out the full term. Still claiming he was Canella, having written several learned treatises in jail which would be more the work of a cultured professor than of a printer, he went back to Verona to rejoin the Canella family.

But, as in the name of the law and also in the eyes of the Bruneris the man is Bruneri, another dramatic situation arose. Bruneri, since the law says that is who he is, could not live in the Canella home without committing adultery, and adultery is a criminal offense in Italy for which an outraged spouse may have the other woman arrested.

Forced Out of Home.

That is just what Signora Bruneri threatened to do, so Bruneri was forced to leave the wealthy Canella home and live next door with a friend. He continues to spend the day at the Canella house and plays with the two younger Canella children, of whom he is the father, but every night he goes over to the neighbor's.

Seven years, however, is seven years, and long enough to get on the nerves of almost any man. Canella (or is he Bruneri) says that unless a new civil suit which he and the Canella family will again bring before the courts to seek the civil recognition of his personality as that of Canella is successful he will give up. According to his friends, there is nothing in the ruling of the penal court against him which would prevent him from getting such a civil court decision.

Failing that, however, the "unknown man" is going to chuck it all over and leave the country for South America. Meanwhile the curiosity about him in Verona is so great that life there has become intolerable and he and his "family" are going to move to Rome.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—New breweries opened at the rate of three a day in the first two weeks of May, Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, announced today. But in spite of its 20 per cent growth in fourteen days the brewing industry still is in its infancy, capable of expanding to the extent of millions of dollars.

Between May 1 and 15 the number of breweries with federal licenses jumped from 196 to 236, Dr. Doran announced today.

Breweries were opening in only 24 states on May 15, according to Dr. Doran's report. Michigan, opening eight breweries, was the only state to join the list of beer makers during the month.

Illinois still ranks fourth among the beer states, with 18 breweries, an increase of five in two weeks. Wisconsin leads the list with 44 operating breweries, Pennsylvania is second with 35, and New York third with 34.

The number of breweries in the country still could be multiplied five or six times before reaching the level of pre-prohibition days, according to Dr. Doran.

Pointing to the potential expansion in the industry federal authorities declare that as it expands it will bring unestimated benefits in reëmployment, construction, and related trades.

PRISON PROMISED GIRL LURES FOR BAND OF BANDITS

Judge Warns Probation Won't Be Allowed.

Ruth Sass, 18 years old, 10614 Ewing avenue, and Mary Garase, 18 years old, 9112 Yates avenue, lures for a south side bandit gang, were promised prison terms yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court. The chief justice allowed the probation officer to investigate the girls, but with the warning that he had "no intention of admitting them to probation."

Burglarized 50 Homes.

The girls, with their four bandit companions, entered pleas of guilty on robbery charges. The other members of the gang were sentenced immediately. John Iori, 21 years old, and George Schemensky, 22 years old, 9535 Escanaba avenue, were given one to 20 years in the penitentiary. Daniel Manos, 20 years old, 10408 Torrence avenue, and Frank Pallante, 20 years old, 10530 Hoxie avenue, were sentenced to one to ten years at Pontiac reformatory.

The gang was responsible for at least nine south side robberies, Prosecutor Frank Donoghue said, and Iori and Schemensky had burglarized between 50 and 75 south shore homes.

The state charged that the girls aided the robbery gang by flirting with prospective victims and inviting them home. Then, Prosecutor Donoghue said, the victims would be led to an appointed spot where the bandits waited, and robbed.

Sex Makes No Difference.

"The court is faced with a delicate situation in regard to these girls," Prosecutor Donoghue said.

"The court is faced with nothing delicate," Chief Justice Prystalski interrupted. "These girls took the victims to the bandits. They shared the plunder, and I do not see what difference it makes that they are girls."

Prosecutor Donoghue said he had not meant to intercede for the girls. Police then told the court that the girls had aided in the investigation and asked leniency be shown them. A representative of the public defender's office asked that an investigation be made by the probation officer.

"If you want an investigation," Judge Prystalski said, "I'll have it made. But I'll tell you right here and now that I am not going to put these girls on probation. That is understood."

The case was continued indefinitely as the girls were led back to the county jail.

Auto Plants Double Output.

DETROIT, May 1.—Not only are Detroit retail merchants having their best business for a year, with the demand for wearing apparel, automobiles, household furniture and jewelry at peaks, but some dealers report three-year records shattered in the strongest revival since the depression began.
About $1,000,000 was spent Saturday in the retail market alone, half of it going to downtown merchants. A large amount of cash was involved, the result of a 30 per cent dividend by the two old national banks, which have now released about $85,000,000 of a total of $131,000,000 available to depositors.
Some automobile dealers are reported to have sold all cars on hand under a wave of buying indicating long-overdue replacements. Some automobile plants revised production schedules 100 per cent upward, recalling many workmen.
One large department store declared a 10 per cent salary bonus for all employes.

BY JUDITH CASS.

DURING the next few weeks it is more than likely that Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy will lead several of their friends and World's Fair guests into the paths of miniature collecting. One word . . . diminutive . . . may describe the exhibit that these ladies of society and several more are to open Tuesday in the Ackermann galleries for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital, but it is far from characteristic of the interest already manifest in the showing.

Yesterday at the same time that invitations were received for the private preview and tea from 2 until 6 Tuesday, Mrs. Thorne, who is also one of the most enthusiastic workers for A Century of Progress, was down in the galleries starting the arrangement of the miniatures with the help of W. Russell Button and several artists. It is the most exacting kind of work and it takes days.

Even in the formative stage, there was every assurance that the exhibits are to be gems, every one. And if there is the crowd to see them Tuesday that the members of the hospital board expect it will take several visits to really appreciate their beauty and delicacy.

Although Mrs. Thorne had an exhibit of her miniature rooms just a year ago for the benefit of the architects' relief fund, everything she is showing this time is new as far as public display is concerned. There is a delightful French bedroom, marvelously true to type, an English garden, and a Spanish hall, heavily ecclesiastical.

All of her individual bronzes Mrs. Thorne gave to Randolph Brooks to make individual settings. And with these he has created a farmyard scene, a fox hunt, and a garden party that are interesting, intriguing exponents of the real thing. In still another part of the gallery Mrs. Thorne has made an "Around the World" exhibit with all of the tiny things she has gathered in circling the globe. A totem pole identifies Alaska, a windmill marks Holland and a pyramid Egypt.

Children Will Love "Peter Rabbit" House.

Children will love this and the "Peter Rabbit" house next door to it. Though the precious miniatures represent mature and cultivated interests, it does seem particularly appropriate that the benefits of this showing should go to the Children's Memorial hospital.

Some of the other tiny things are new but most of them are generations old, like the little stage coach and the Georgian and Queen Anne silver tea services that are Mrs. Armour's and the delicately molded Rockingham dogs that belong to Mrs. Cudahy and Mrs. Richard I. Stearns. There are those that were made for grown-up collectors of miniatures in days gone by and others that were made for the children of nobility. Princesses, it is told, fashioned them as an expression of their own creative art.

Mrs. Stearns' nicest miniatures are Chelsea seals. They were used in a bygone day for initialing and worn like watch charms. These are to be shown in a special case. Mrs. Joseph H. King's special contribution to the exhibit is an 18th century English dinner service in miniature and Mrs. Potter Palmer's a bronze statute so delicately wrought it is hard to imagine such careful craftsmanship.

The modern room, done by Mrs. Ernest P. Waud, complete even to its cocktail set and backgammon board, is bound to receive especial attention. And so are the fairy gardens of Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Cudahy, and Mrs. Thorne, and A Century of Progress exposition done in miniature by Mr. Button.

Still other contributors to this grand showing are Mrs. Percy B. Eckhart, Mrs. C. Barney Goodspeed, Mrs. Robert H. Harvey, Mrs. William P. Sidley, and Chester Johnson. All of them will be special guests at the Tuesday party for which a donation of one dollar is being asked. From Wednesday on until the close of the exhibit on June 30, however, the admission price is only 25 cents.

Spring Exhibit of Ropp School.

Many who attend this party Tuesday afternoon will also stop to see the spring exhibit of the pupils at the Hubert Ropp school that is to open on the second floor of the 700 North Michigan building with an informal reception from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Among those who are exhibiting this year are Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis, Miss Eleanor Holden, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Miss Marjorie Goodman, Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Mrs. John M. Simpson, Miss Louise Dewey, Miss Mary Senior, Mrs. William Burry Jr., Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., Mrs. Howard Elting, and Mrs. Duncan Hodges. Little Diana Hill, Ann Ryerson, and George Nichols are also to have important hangings.

Two representatives of the Japanese government to President Roosevelt's economic conferences in Washington are due in Chicago tomorrow morning. They are Viscount Ishii, privy councilor, and Eigo Fukai, vice governor of the Bank of Japan.

Tomorrow afternoon they are to spend at A Century of Progress winding up the day with an informal supper party at the home of the Japanese consul general, Yoshio Muto, and Mrs. Muto, in Sheridan road.

Two Parties for Thomas Concert.

Because John Charles Thomas never indulges in a bite of anything to eat before a concert and because Mrs. Thomas follows suit just out of sympathy Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick is not sure whether she will have the distinguished baritone and his wife among her guests tomorrow noon at her Lake Shore drive apartment.

"I hope they will just come anyway," explained Mrs. Chadwick yesterday. "Mr. Chadwick and I have known them well for a number of years and it is always a pleasure to have them here."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are arriving early tomorrow after Mr. Thomas' performance in the premiere of an American opera this evening in Ann Arbor. The Chicago concert sponsored by the Italian Woman's club is at 3:30 tomorrow in the Auditorium. After it is over Mr. and Mrs. John H. Noyes are having the Thomases for supper. The Italian consul general, Giuseppe Castruccio, and Mrs. Castruccio will be guests at both parties.

French Visitors Here for Fair.

Among the first of the distinguished visitors to arrive for the opening of A Century of Progress are Lecomte du Nouy, head of the Pasteur institute of Paris, and Mme. Nouy, and their daughter, Félice Harrisman Rosen. As France has no exhibition at the Fair, M. Nouy is his country's official representative as head of the institute's exhibition.

They are planning to stay only until June 6, which seems a very short time in which to crowd all the entertaining planned for them. They are dining very informally with the Charles S. Deweys tomorrow evening. Monday night Ira Nelson Morris, one of their very old friends, has asked a dozen friends to dine with him to meet the Du Nouys at the Lake Shore Drive hotel. Among his guests will be the French consul general Rene Weiller and Mme. Weiller, M. Grimm-Provence and the Hayden B. Harrises.

Thursday, in the tower ballroom of the Stevens hotel, M. and Mme. du Nouy are giving a luncheon for 40 or 50 guests, among them noted scholars, physicians, and Century of Progress representatives. On June 1 the French American society is giving a dinner at the Blackstone hotel and M. Weiller is giving a farewell dinner for them on June 5 at his apartment.

Shawnee Club to See Famed Quilts Today

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

If Miss Elizabeth Robertson shows off all of her medals as well as her quilts this afternoon at the Shawnee Country club she will have two exhibits instead of one. The medals number at least a dozen.

She has won them the last several years on the covers she has stitched in the workshop of her Ravinia home. Today her collection is world renowned.

Interested in creative effort, the members of the art committee of the Shawnee club have invited Miss Robertson and several more of their talented north shore neighbors to come for luncheon at noon and bring with them the needlework, the glass, the pewter, and the canvases on which they spend their extra hours. Miss Robertson is to be the special guest since she has consented to complete the luncheon with a "quilt" talk.

There are 18 quilts in her collection. All of them she has designed and sewed since she was a schoolgirl. And all of them are delightfully original in their patterns and colors with a refreshing modern note seldom observed in the contemporary interpretations of the pioneer art of quilt-making. The quilts have been exhibited by art museums in this country and Great Britain.

The medal Miss Robertson enjoys the most is the Rosenwald first prize in textiles awarded some years ago when the quilts were shown at the Art institute. Then they have been exhibited at the Carnegie institute in Pittsburgh, the Schools of Arts and Crafts in Edinburgh, Scotland, and Leicester, England; the International Exhibition of Applied Arts in Letchworth, England; the Fine Arts gallery in San Diego, Cal.; the Pacific Arts association in Los Angeles, and the Fine Arts museum in La Jolla, Cal.

Here's Proof Exercise Can Work Wonders

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"First," writes A. S., "let me tell you something about myself. For some years I have suffered from sluggishness of brain and body. When I got out of bed in the morning, after a restless night I usually would have a headachy feeling and a dark brown taste in my mouth and was about as sociable a being around the house as a caged jaguar.

"The habit of daily elimination was instilled in my youth, and so I knew constipation wasn't my trouble. I smoked a lot, and still smoke more than I should—but I know now it wasn't that. It was lack of exercise, and nothing else. I've had spurts of energy along this line, but never kept them up for long. I didn't get results in a short time, and so got discouraged.

"Well, I caught your column the first day you started the West Point exercises and I went right at them. From that day I've kept at them. And believe it or not, I am already a new person.

"That neck exercise alone you gave is working wonders for me. I had a neck like" [Ed. note: Illustration shows a crooked neck line] "for years, and a posture like a sick mongrel. But you should see me now, even if I am my own best braggart. My carriage is much improved and my neck looks like something new.

"I sleep ever so much better, and wonder of wonders, I am not the crank I was. I now do things around the house which before was too much trouble. I was just a lazy good-for-nothing without knowing it. My weight is better distributed and pep? I've got oodles of it now."

"West Point Exercises," an illustrated booklet outlining the series of exercises recently presented in these columns through the courtesy of the United States Military academy, may be obtained by sending five cents in coin or stamps to Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Or call at The Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn Street.

The showboat Cotton Blossom came to town yesterday. Towed from Milwaukee, where it was constructed, the 175 foot boat docked at the foot of Randolph street. It will remain there until the opening of the World's Fair, when it will be anchored on the south lagoon in the Fair grounds, and continuous performances given daily.

The boat is modeled in every detail on the showboats that traveled the Mississippi river. Along the walls in the auditorium, which occupies the lower of the two floors, are pictures of Mississippi river scenes. The curtain is a painting of the famous race between the Robert E. Lee and Natchez steamboats in 1870. The woodwork is of raw pine. The auditorium seats 750 persons.

L. D. Cook, the owner, said the first production, in which the entire cast of 26 will appear, is "The Sweetest Girl in Dixie." Another showboat, the Dixiana, was scheduled to come to Chicago last fall, but never arrived.

WOMAN'S OR MISS' JACKET SUIT.

Wouldn't a turquoise blue linen make an ideal suit for summer days? The sleeveless dress has dropped shoulders. The suit can be copied for very little. Red and white printed silk crêpe, using plain red crêpe for the scarf and cuffs of the coat, and for the applied neckband is another suggestion.

The pattern, No. 2535, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 5⅞ yards of 35 inch material.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne is one of the greatest boosters of the World's Fair, so she was one of the first to paste a sticker "Come to the World's Fair" on a windshield. Mrs. Thorne is to exhibit some of exquisite rooms in miniature in a shop in the Streets of Paris at the Fair, and is chairman of the invitation committee for the Bal des Quat'z Arts that will be given the opening night, Saturday, May 27, in the Streets of Paris.

She also has arranged an exhibit of things in miniature for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital in the Ackermann galleries on South Michigan avenue from May 23 to June 30. It will open with a preview and tea next Tuesday.

These World's Fair stickers have been endorsed by the World's Fair committee on the suggestion of THE TRIBUNE and may be secured at THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service offices for 1 cent each over the counter, or 1 for 3 cents or 2 for 5 cents by mail.

Jam Oriental for Opening of Stage Regime

PEARL-WHITEMAN REVUE.

A program of radio and revue entertainment with Jack Pearl and Paul Whiteman as stars; given at the Oriental theater May 19, 1933, under the management of William Morris, Inc.

THE PERFORMERS.

Jack Pearl	Paul Whiteman
Boswell Sisters	Cliff Hall
George Burns	Gracie Allen
Ramona	Sonny O'Dea
Peggy Healy	Mr. Goldie

Paul Whiteman's orchestra.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Oriental theater was the focal point of Chicago's Rialto last night, for some 3,400 people assembled there to celebrate its conversion from cinema to flesh and blood entertainment, and almost as many more herded around its portals to watch the first nighters arrive and bask in the searchlight that illuminated the festive scene. Such things have happened in the past, they say, when new super-films were given their first exhibitions before the chivalry and beauty of Hollywood; but this show is alive, and therefore such a massing of average citizens was unique and extraordinary.

The occasion of this remarkable convocation was the first performance of a revue of radio celebrities, headed by Jack Pearl, the "Baron Munchausen" of German dialect comedy, and Paul Whiteman, the senior dignitary and high magnifico of orchestral jazz. They were well known in their respective crafts when radio entertainment was merely an infant industry; but now that they are demigods of the ether they have achieved a mythological status. They come as Olympians from the far-off heavenly spaces, wearing aureoles of globe-circling fame; and the customers attend their personal appearances in a state of mind that is barely this side of idolatry.

The show bears the impertinent and inappropriate title of "Nuts to You." This facetious label seems to imply that the royalties of the microphone do not take their art seriously, but the program itself supplies ample evidence to the contrary. Paul Whiteman's musicians—thirty of them—sit upon thrones, surrounded by strange musical instruments of a golden glitter. They might be the high priests of a mysterious oriental cult, spiritually exalted in the performance of their sacred ritual. Jack Pearl works in his comic skits with passionate devotion to the tradition of Weber and Fields.

Mr. Pearl is a decidedly funny fellow when he performs for the loud speaker, and within a few months he has made "Vas you dere, Sharley?" a national motto. But when he appears in three dimensions before footlights he is exactly three times funnier.

Physical activity is an important element in his humor. When he can charge about the stage and wallop his "straight man" on the chest in the zeal and ardor of his attempts to be understood he has a power to amuse that the radio cannot communicate. So in this show you will see a radio star come to life in a highly dynamic manner.

In addition to the four energetic episodes of Mr. Pearl's characteristic line of talk, and the lordly interpretations of popular and high brow numbers by Mr. Whitman's gifted ensemble, the copious program contains:

The Boswell Sisters, three graces of sad and merry singing of the negroid type; George Burns and Gracie Allen, amusing chatterers of jokes based upon the eternal dumbness of the human races [a hit]; Sonny O'Dea, a dancing girl who is a jazz variant of Bessie McCoy in style; Cliff Hall, Mr. Pearl's genial and assiduous opposite [the "Sharley" of the national motto mentioned above]; Ramona, who sings at the piano; Jack Fulton, an able crooner in the ranks of Whiteman's band; Peggy Healy, a young lady of the "Fit as a Fiddle" repertory, and a certain Mr. Goldie, a trumpet blower who also has gifts as a comedian, singer, and dancer. All of these people enjoy a high rating in the radio realm.

A dancing group of twelve coryphees, well trained and attractively costumed, supplement the proceedings. The show will remain at the Oriental for two weeks, giving afternoon and evening performances. There is no film to compete with it, and one should attend in the regular playgoing way, at the regular playgoing hours, expecting a reserved seat for his ticket.

Headmaster Northrop to Go to Roxbury School

George N. Northrop, retiring head master of the Chicago Latin School for Boys, 1531 North Dearborn street, has been appointed headmaster of the Roxbury Latin school in West Roxbury, Mass., it was learned yesterday. He will begin his new duties in September. The Roxbury school is primarily a preparatory school for Harvard. It is the oldest endowed secondary school in the country.

Expect 15,000 at Lombard for Lilac Festival

BY PAUL POTTER.

Preparations have been made to accommodate 15,000 spectators tonight at the annual Lilac festival being staged by the residents of Lombard, a suburb 30 miles west of Chicago.

In a huge outdoor amphitheater covering two city blocks and nearby streets of Lombard, the crowds will take part in the presentation of a fifteenth century English county fair, with its colorful costumes, bonfires, white horses mounted by the lord mayor, queen of Lilacia, and other customs of the early days. More than 200 compose the cast.

Special provisions have been made for parking of autos and for extra trains stopping within a short distance of the festival. Extra policemen will handle the crowd and see that all are seated, as the festival opens at 7 p. m.

Earlier in the day thousands of visitors will stroll through Lilacia park, formerly the Col. Plum estate, in which is the largest collection of lilac varieties west of Rochester—some 350 varieties, many imported from Europe. The blooming bushes are flanked by myriads of tulips of unusual variety and striking color effects.

Miss Mildred Fryer, 1933 queen of the Lilac festival, will be escorted to her throne on the large outdoor stage by Samuel Norton, as lord mayor, Miss Rebecca Howe, 1932 queen, and L. S. Whitbeck, president of the Lombard Lilac league, impersonating the English county chieftain.

Yesterday hundreds of invalids and sick children, confinued to the wards of Cook county hospital and other hospitals and settlements of Chicago, were cheered upon receiving mammoth bouquets of lilacs. These were donated by commuters and distributed by THE TRIBUNE on the second and last day of "Share Your Lilacs" time, an annual custom.

Next week and throughout the summer the unfortunate of the city will continue to receive plants, flowers, fruits, jellies and other symbols of happiness. The work is carried on by the Chicago Plant and Flower guild, of which T. V. Purcell, vice president of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, is president.

Child Singers Make Cantata Notable Event

Pierne's "Crusade" Given by Apollo Club.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Gabriel Pierne's cantata, "The Children's Crusade," as it was given by the Apollo Musical club at Orchestra hall last night, became one of the most charming compositions ever presented in Chicago.

It was mainly in the manner of giving. Five hundred children from five junior high schools of Chicago joined with the Apollo club in the presentation, and made the difference between a pleasant observance and a completely delightful one. They were in antiphonal groups pretty well all over the hall, some on one side of the stage, some on the other, still others up at the top of the house.

There are times when words can only hint at the effects of music. This is one of them. It was necessary to be present to hear how Pierne's lovely music passed from one group to another, from full tone to the lightest echo, always true to pitch, always with the words as plain as the melody, always touching in its sincerity.

This is by no means a derogatory criticism of the other participants. It is certainly not of the Apollo singers, who handled the adult choruses with firm, vigorous tone; nor yet of Edgar Nelson, who conducted with a fine sense of the drama and melody in the piece; surely not of the soloists, Marbel Sharp Herdien and Olive June Lacey, who did some splendid solo and duet singing as the two children who led the crusade, Arthur Kraft, who was at his best as the narrator, and Theodore Harrison in the solo of the sailor. Also the Metropolitan orchestra, which would seem to be renamed from the Little Symphony, gave a brilliant performance of the instrumental score.

Just the same, one keeps thinking of those adorable youngsters. With all admiration for the rest of the performance, they were the stars.

Delegates on their way through Chicago to the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs in Minneapolis will be entertained by the Illinois federation today. Headquarters are at the Stevens hotel, and Mrs. Louis E. Yager is the general chairman. The program includes a luncheon at A Century of Progress and a tour of the grounds, a recital at 4:30 by Arthur Dunham on the organ of the Methodist temple, a dinner at the Stevens hotel, and a musical program by Amy Neill, Cara Verson, Roger S. Hille, and the Y. M. C. A. Hotel chorus. The guests will depart on a special train at 10:30 o'clock.

Six of the younger winners in the Society of American Musicians' contest appeared in a recital program at Kimball hall last night. They were Israel Baker and Lewis Dvonch, violinists; Vasili Charkovsky, Leonid Hambro, Charlotte Hetman, and Betty Jane Hines, pianists.

The twentieth anniversary of James A. Mundy as a choral conducted in Chicago will be celebrated Monday night in Orchestra hall when the Quinn Chapel A. M. E. church presents the Mundy choristers, Quinn choir and the Anniversary chorus in a festival concert.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall dark man with the mustache. Dinah promises to have dinner with him next evening. Baron tells Dinah the story of Divine's secret marriage.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

NEW SORROW.

"That's where I made the worst sort of fool of myself," he resumed. "I spoke of Divine's wife. I might have known. . . She told me, in a nice, well bred, cold blooded way, to mind my own business. Which I did, after that. She never had liked me, but, after that, she hated me. Divine began to grow unmanageable—made a fool of himself, in general, and his wife chose to think it was my fault. . . Anyhow, she left the poor devil flat; said she wouldn't see him at all. Said she'd come back to him when and if he learned to behave himself. But that wasn't a successful method with a man like Divine. He'd loved that girl and when she left him he didn't improve. . . . He wanted me to go to her with an ultimatum. Either she was to come back to him, and their marriage be acknowledged openly, or he'd go to the devil. It was hard to refuse—but I refused to do it—I knew it would be more than useless. . ."

A long silence now.

"I don't know whom he went to, then, whom it was he persuaded to go to his wife. Anyhow, the day after he'd spoken to me about it, his aunt was taken ill. She's an old lady and it's a serious illness. . . . I'm sorry now for what I said to Divine when I learned of her illness. I advised him just to let things ride. I assured him his wife would come back to him once he'd inherited the money. . . . That made him wild. He'd been drinking, anyhow. . . . He told me his wife cared nothing at all for money, and he sat down, then and there, and wrote a note to his aunt, telling her he was married. I tried to stop him, not——" He paused again. "Not for his sake, but because it seemed to me—pretty hard on the old lady. . . . He wouldn't listen, though. . . . It was in my apartment he wrote that note and he went off home with it in his pocket. He went—in a bad temper, too. Said I misjudged his wife. . . . Said I'd soon see what she was really like. He was going to stop drinking and waking a fool of himself, and that when he did that, she'd come back."

"Dinah, I'll see you through this," he said.

It was dark now; they were driving along a quiet, tree lined road. But there was no peace for Dinah in the summer night, only a great dread. He would go on with the rest of this story and she must hear it. She must hear the end, which in her heart she knew already. He did not need to speak the name of Divine's wife.

She knew it.

"Yes. . ," Baron went on, "I was sorry to think of the old lady getting that unwelcome bit of news at the end of her time. . . . But I needn't have worried. She never got the letter. It never was posted. Because, you see, Divine got killed—just at the right time."

Now it had come. The accusation was unmistakable.

"The old lady can't change her will now," said Baron. "She's too ill. Divine's wife will have a valid claim on a share of what Divine—would have got. No doubt she has plenty of proof—documents and so on. She'll be prepared to come forward with her claim, once the old lady's gone. Unless——"

"Unless—what?" she asked, unsteadily.

"Unless—I advise her not to," said Baron.

"Why—do you think she'd—take your advice?"

"We needn't fence," said Baron, and his voice had become gentle. "I've told you all this, only because I want to keep you out of it."

"Well, that's something you can't do," said Dinah, vehemently. "I am in it."

"Only in the most accidental way. There's no reason why your connection with the thing should ever be known. I'm ready to give you my word never to mention to any one that I saw you—and Jane Rosslyn, that night. On one condition."

"What condition?"

"That you'll keep clear of Jane Rosslyn," he said. "You can move—live somewhere else."

"No!" said Dinah.

"Look here!" he said. "You've understood, haven't you? I mean—you know now who Divine's wife was?"

"Yes," she answered. "I understand what you mean. But I can't—I won't believe that—or anything—until I've talked to Jane."

"Look here!" he said again. "There's a lot in this thing that you couldn't possibly understand. You're——" Again there was that gentleness in his voice. "You're too young," he said, "and innocent. You can't know at all what you've got into, or what she—what your friend is like."

In Dinah's mind arose the image of her friend, so unswervingly faithful that she had assumed all the guilt for that inextricable tragedy in young Fiske's eyes; Jane, whose cool, gentle humor and generosity and sympathy had never failed her.

"I do know what Jane's like," she said. "If it's true that she was—his wife——"

"You can take it from me that it's true."

"I don't know what happened in that house that night," he said. "I shan't ask you. But I do know this. That you weren't in any way responsible."

"You're wrong," said Dinah.

"I want to keep you out of it," he went on. "I want that—so much—that I'm willing to go to any length. I'll hold my tongue about having seen her come out of Divine's house that night."

"Jane—and me," said Dinah.

He paid no heed to her words.

"I'll say nothing, even if she comes forward with a claim on Divine's estate," he said. "He was my friend—but I'm willing to let his death go unpunished——"

"It doesn't lie with you," said Dinah. "There are hundreds of other ways it could all be found out."

"You'd better not!" Dinah interrupted, with an unsteady little laugh. "You said you didn't know what happened in that house. Then I'll tell you. I—shot your friend. He was horrible to me. He wouldn't let me go. He . . . I was afraid of him and I shot him.

"That won't do. It's mistaken generosity on your part. . . You're not the one who had a motive——"

"Listen, please!" she said, and her young voice came through the dark, steady now, and valiant, and touching. "I had motive enough, when he caught hold of me in the dark. I swear to you that I shot him."

Baron said nothing, and in that silence Dinah began to weep, gently because of her bitter regret for that shot, that might have put an end to the life of a man who was young and did not want to die, because of her intolerable burden of anxiety and dread; because of her fear for Jane.

And for some other reason she could not clearly grasp, some dim, unformed, new sorrow.

"Is that true!" said Baron.

"I told you, I swear I shot him."

The summer wind rustled in the trees, and it was the saddest sound. Tears rained down her cheeks; she pressed her handkerchief tightly against her lips, but in spite of herself, a sob escaped her.

"Dinah!" he cried. "It doesn't make any difference. . . Look here! Dinah!"

His arm was about her; she let her head rest on his shoulder while she cried and cried, shaken with uncontrollable sobs.

"Dinah—I'll see you through this," he said.

Talkie Version of Irish Play Pleasant Film

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Presented at the Chicago theater.

THE CAST.

Jerry	Onslow Stevens
Pat	J. Farrell MacDonald
Ethel	Juliette Compton
Mrs. Chichester	Irene Browne
Alarie	Tyrrell Davis
Brent	Alan Mowbray

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Good program all the way through at the Chicago this week. Both adults and children will enjoy the feature picture, Hal Kemp's super-swell orchestra, some mighty fine eccentric dancing, a harmonica act, etc.

Remember Laurette Taylor in stage and silent screen versions of "Peg o' My Heart"? If you do—or if you don't—see Marion Davies and maybe some day, a long time hence, you'll recollect that she gave a twist to your heart and brought a smile to your lips as the Irish colleen in the talkie adaptation of the late Hartley Manners' heartsome little play.

Miss Davies handles appealingly the rôle of winsome Peg, separated from home and father by a clause in a will bequeathing her an inheritance, who comes back to ould Erin and those she loves after a sad session in London with the aristocracy. [NOT aristocracy as depicted by the characters in this number, but a very low breed, veneered.] She sings a bit and dances some, and comports herself throughout with pleasing sincerity.

J. Farrell MacDonald is splendid as her sterling, devoted fisherman father. Onslow Stevens is likable as the young attorney who has the star rôle in Peg's business and heart affairs. Other players are just so-so with the exception of the pup that plays Michael, Peg's dog. Ah, THERE is an actor! And CAN Mutt jump rope!

Average Man Resents Wife's Questionings

BY DORIS BLAKE.

We wonder! We wonder often if wives would not be smarter did they put a seal on their lips and refuse to appear concerned about late homecomings; to let the story come out as the man is willing to tell it.

We know from confession after confession that demanding to know where he has been is the proverbial red rag even to the most tolerant of men. We could not begin to record the number of domestic quarrels that might have been diverted were the question not asked.

There seems to be something in the male that resents this form of inquiry more than anything else known. Whether he is guilty or innocent, his response is the same. He simply rears up and growls when attacked with questions as to where he has been.

Know this to be the nature of the beast, why not, then, let him tell his story in his own way. Whether you believe it or not, don't nail him to the cross. The truth will come out later if he's been up to something. Even then, unless the offense is heinous, it's better to let the gentleman keep his face by ignoring the alibi.

We're not arguing for undue license for the gentleman, understand. But we are so convinced that putting him on the griddle and turning on a barrage of questions gets a woman nowhere that we're for the quieter system.

Both of the young couples are sailing on the Queen of Bermuda. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Dick are to make their home in New York City, but Mr. Grace and his bride will live in Chicago, since he is associated with a steel company here. Mr. Grace's father, Eugene G. Grace, is president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

The Dougherty-Grace nuptials were performed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church of Bethlehem, with the Rev. W. Sherman Skinner reading the ceremony. A reception at the home of the bride's parents, Col. and Mrs. Robert Starrs Dougherty, followed the service. The bride is a graduate of Mount Vernon seminary at Washington and Sarah Lawrence college. Mr. Grace attended Princeton and the Harvard university school of business administration.

Miss Burgess became the bride of Mr. Dick, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick of Chicago, in the chapel of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Robert W. Searle read the service. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward M. Burgess of New York City.

Many Parties for Mary Fortune.

Starting this evening with a dinner-dance and continuing until the bridal dinner a week from Tuesday night there are so many parties for Miss Mary Fortune and William J. Lawlor Jr., who are to be married June 1, that one wonders when they will find time to breathe. However, since each one is exceedingly attractive and together they are one of society's most popular couples, such sustained entertaining comes as a matter of course.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Douaire Jr., the bridegroom's sister and brother-in-law, will be host and hostess tonight in the empire room of the Palmer house, and their guests will be just the members of the bridal party. Tomorrow afternoon Thomas Keelin and William Hunt, two of the ushers, are giving a cocktail party in Mr. Keelin's apartment on Delaware place. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. William J. Lawlor is giving a tea for her future daughter-in-law at the Blackstone hotel, and that evening Miss Frances Weary, Miss Veronese Beatty, and William Drake are having a supper and swim party in a private pool on the south side.

Wednesday Miss Lillian Dudley has invited a few friends for cocktails, and Thursday Miss Dorothy Moorehead is entertaining for them. Miss Jeannette Peterkin is giving a dinner for Miss Fortune and Mr. Lawlor next Friday night, and next Saturday night Miss Jane Fortune and John L. Fortune Jr., the bride's sister and brother, are giving them a dinner-dance at the Arts club, to which, besides the wedding party, they have invited a few of their older friends.

Sunday the 21st Ross J. Beatty Jr., another of the ushers, has invited the wedding party to the castlelike Beatty home in Highland Park for luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. John L. Fortune are giving the bridal dinner for their daughter the following Tuesday night in their Astor street house, and they will entertain again at a wedding breakfast for the wedding party, relatives, and a few close friends in their home after the noon wedding on June 1 in the Holy Name cathedral.

Farrells Will Return Tomorrow.

Dr. and Mrs. Patrick J. H. Farrell will return tomorrow from six months in Washington, New York and Miami. They have been visiting the former Helen Farrell Caldwell and her husband, Edgar G. Crossman, and their two little sons, in New York, and Capt. Walter G. Farrell, U. S. marine corps aviator, and his family in Washington.

Mrs. Frances English McBride, who has been staying at the Plaza hotel during the last winter, has gone to Clinton, Mich.

Poor mission churches are to receive new and necessary appointments for their services as the result of the benefit bridge party the Children of Mary sodality and the Tabernacle society of the Convent of the Sacred Heart are having this afternoon at the Blackstone hotel.

BY MARY MEADE.

The first question today comes from Mrs. O. F. G., who is having troubles with her figs. "Will you please tell me what kind of figs you buy to stew and how you cook them? I bought figs and tried to stew them after soaking them, but find I cannot get them tender."

Most cooks, Mrs. G., buy what are known as "pressed figs" for stewing. The other type of dried fig is called the "pulled fig," which is usually more expensive and often used for confections or salads. Pressed figs are split and then pressed into a loaf. We can buy the pulled fig in bulk, in boxes, or in glass jars. It may have been that your figs were dried beyond redemption—though this seldom happens. The usual method of stewing figs is simply to clean and then soak them in lukewarm water overnight. Put them to cook in this same water, simmering gently until they are soft. Add sugar and flavoring to taste.

Next a question from Mrs. M. B.—which we are unable to answer, so we're coming to you for help. Do any of you have a recipe for "Gretchen cake"—a cake made with pork cracklings? But till we find one—I wonder, Mrs. B., if you have ever made crackling corn bread? I simply use a regular corn bread recipe, substituting one-third to one-half cup of cracklings for the fat in the recipe. It gives it a most deliciously rich flavor.

Scotch muffins—those raised with yeast and not baking powder—sound good to Mrs. H. M. F. In response to her request here comes the recipe:

RAISED SCOTCH MUFFINS.

1¼ cups rolled oats
3 level tablespoons shortening
5 level tablespoons sugar
1 level teaspoon salt
1 cake compressed yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
2 cups bread flour
2 cups whole wheat flour

Add to the scalded milk the oats, shortening, sugar, and salt. Let cool to lukewarm, then stir in the yeast which has been dissolved in the cup of lukewarm water. Now slowly beat in the bread flour and the whole wheat flour, mixing till smooth and light. Let stand, covered, out of a draft overnight. In the morning beat for two minutes, then fill greased muffin tins half full. Let the batter stand until the muffins have risen to the rims of the pans, then place in a moderately hot oven (365 degrees F.), and bake for half an hour or until done.

Miss Doris Georgene Horder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Horder of Glencoe, will become the bride of Edward Erlind Stoddard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Stoddard of Evanston, at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Glencoe Union church. Dr. Douglas H. Cornell, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony. A reception for the immediate families will follow at the bride's home, where Mr. Stoddard and his bride are to reside until autumn.

Modern Quilt Patterns Vie with Favorites

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Nice shiny medals should be pinned on the chests of optimistic judges of a quilt contest . . . something particularly fancy in the way of palms or appliqued rosettes or a swatch of feather quilting might be more appropriate . . . but decorations nevertheless, for these stirring and sewing days have brought to light some creations that will hold any casual spectator in a trance.

One Chicago store has sponsored a quilt contest and the results are hanging up in gala array, so many of the colorful affairs that you might well wonder just where the treasures are to be kept after the excitement is over. These 1933 versions of patch quilts are amazingly interesting . . . beautifully handmade things fully equal to anything any of our female ancestors created. Undoubtedly many of the loveliest quilts were the ones carefully and painstakingly copied from age old patterns handed down from mellowed patterns belonging to the industrious crowd who quilted when Granny was a gal!

The new patch quilts are strictly 1933 and as daring and as breezy as the new skyline of the Century of Progress buildings are stunning . . . you will see a breath-taking gray quilt that tells the story of steel. A cold gray steel colored background is patched with circles depicting cog wheels, in shades of dull yellow and darker tints of gray, figures of racing motorboats, super locomotives, cream separators, windmills, bridges, and everything that is part or all of steel. It is a most imposing sort of a quilt, rather cold and uncomfortable and a bit sinister, when you stop to consider it displayed over your old mahogany, but one of the most unusual and remarkable creations ever displayed.

Another quilt, depicting the spirit of the times, is patched with skill and great imagination and artistry. It illustrates the history of Chicago . . . around the edge, the tepees and arrowheads of Chicago's first blue blooded redskins . . . then the pattern of the famous stockade around Fort Dearborn . . . inside that realistic fence are the scarlet flames of the great Chicago fire, each clever patch showing the blackened silhouette of church, homes and stores against the devastating flames.

MINUTE MYSTERY
BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLASS DAY.

"I'm going to tell you fellows of a clever ruse that was pulled on the police, this week so that you may profit from the experience.

"Inspector Kelley had finally located the notorious Jim Wilson, on whom he had nothing at the moment, living at the Sterling hotel, a dump down near the river. Jim was up against it—plenty. Kelley figured, therefore, that Jim would make every effort to get in touch with his brother Bill, badly wanted on a homicide charge. The police knew Bill was in town, but hadn't been able to locate his hideout. So Kelley ordered Jim tailed day and night, believing that in so doing Jim would lead the police to Bill.

"Detectives Hayden and Adams, the best 'shadows' in the department, were put on the job; on twelve hour shifts.

"There is only one means of entrance or exit to the Sterling. This the detectives watched, and when Jim emerged he was followed by one of them wherever he went, leaving off only when he returned to the hotel. Jim made frequent sorties and kept them busy.

"Bill, meanwhile, had learned through the 'grapevine' that his brother was living at the Sterling and phoned him. When told that Jim was under constant surveillance once he left the hotel, Bill worked out a very simple means of seeing and talking with his brother Jim, unmolested. In fact he did so several times despite the fact that Jim was so dogged by the sleuth-hounds.

HOW DID HE MANAGE IT?

American Girl Tells Life with Chinese Family

"House of Exile" Fascinates Because of Reality.

"The House of Exile," by Nora Waln. [Little-Brown.]

"THAT which is on paper is just the usual round of days in an ordinary family and no different except in unimportant details, from life in thousands of other households" was the slightly disappointed criticism which her Chinese friends made to Nora Waln's record of her life in China, a criticism which we may echo, but speak in a voice exultingly praise-full.

NORA WALN.

"Just the usual round of days in an ordinary family . . ." but days lived eagerly by a keenly, sympathetically observing human being who found in the pageantry of that round not only beauty and peace but something humanly nourishing. Nora Waln has written in "The House of Exile" a book which has that intense fascination which only truth and reality do have for readers.

The story of her being in "The House of Exile" [told briefly in the prologue] is a romantic tale in itself. In the early days of the nineteenth century her ancestor, J. S. Waln, plied his trade with the great Chinese house of Lin, and left behind him in China memories of a rare fineness. One hundred years later members of the house of Lin, traveling in the western hemisphere and remembering that the great Waln of their household tales had been a Quaker, sought out the name in the list of students at the Society of Friends school, Swarthmore college, found Nora Waln, telephoned to her and explained their traditional friendship. Meanwhile Nora Waln had found in an attic to which she had been exiled as a naughty child an old Gazette which listed the goods consigned to the Waln of 1804 and had, by the necromancy of youth, made "lily flowers," "seeds of the melon and the apricot" a more real part of her daily life than bread and butter.

China grew to be her daily thought. The telephone called her to look into the faces of the first Chinese she had ever seen. At the end of a week together she had become a "daughter by affection" of Shun-ko, the childless wife of Lin Yang-peng, and as they parted Shun-ko had said, "You must come to me." Nora Waln believed it impossible. An absolutely chance meeting [at a soda fountain in a strange city where Miss Waln was reading Giles' Chinese dictionary] with the general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in China, Grace Coppock, gave Miss Waln the opportunity, eventually, to go to China. She became a member of the Lin household—"The House of Exile." It was so called at first in derision, as its founder had left his native town and his lawfully wedded wife to help build a canal in the north of China and had promptly fallen in love with his chief's daughter, married her as a "green skirt," and established what came to be known in affection and with pride, after six generations, as "The House of Exile."

There Miss Waln lived [with one trip to America] until she left it to become the bride of an English official in Nanking and learned to call China "home" aloud as she had secretly called it in her heart.

With utter simplicity she tells the story of that "round of days in an ordinary family" which seemed commonplace to her Chinese friends, but which to those who have never had an opportunity to know the life which she records with fascinating fidelity, has all of the allure of the other side of the looking glass. She says that she often felt a little like Alice in Wonderland herself in her early days in China, and she sets down with such fidelity her observations that she makes her readers feel Alice-like, too.

There is something as real as rain on an upturned palm about her record. That reality is due, it seems to me, to the fact that Miss Waln is so genuinely gifted with an observing eye that the wonders she sees are in themselves enough to make a memorable narrative without any flowery flights on her part. To be sure, she had an opportunity which no more than a score of American girls have had—to live as a daughter in one of the great households of China—but "The House of Exile" is not a saga of a great opportunity. You would never know from it that her privilege had been an almost unique one except in so far as she writes with gratitude of the affection of her adopted family. She tells simply what she has known, simply and without affectation.

The first part of her book is, to me, the entrancing part [as her first years in China were years of constantly new and fascinating impressions to her]. In the latter part prominent persons, political and social and economic events and their aftermaths come into the pages, which are, until the time of her marriage and removal from the House of Exile to Nanking, filled only with the simple details of daily life.

Miss Waln says in the early part of the book, answering the protests which relatives and friends sent her against "going native, "It was not that China and the Chinese people charmed me more than America and Americans do. I think I am sincerely devoted to the land of my birth. But I find the earth so entrancing that I can never stretch myself to encompass more than the part that has captured my attention at the time. From my babyhood it has always been so. Listening to a bird sing, I never hear a band pass."

It is her ability thus to "listen to a bird sing" that makes of "The House of Exile" one of those narratives that give you a sense of strange fascination, holding you through its pages.

BRIEF REVIEWS

BY M. D.

"Family Reunion," by Janet Curren Owen [Harper's], purports to be "the story of an American family" with intimations that it reveals the norm of American families. The action takes place in a day, in the home of the matriarch, Mrs. Brinton. The characters are fantastic growths of a lush imagination that are almost completely divorced from reality. The climax of the book, after long waiting (the book is over 300 pages), comes as a complete surprise to the reader. It is surprising only because it is so flagrantly out of place, so excellent an example of unconscious bathos. It is as if the author were pulling one trick after another out of her bag, some so fantastic that they are almost compelling, comes finally upon this last and very absurd little technical contraption, and holds it aloft triumphantly. The dialogue is so consistently bad and out of tone that the reader feels genuine embarrassment and discomfiture in reading it.

JANET CURREN OWEN.

Wells, Hichens, Vachell Challenge Youth.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—It is interesting to note that while much attention is given, critically, to the work of younger writers of greater or lesser gift [as witness the recent competition, which has many amusing aspects, for the Galsworthy "succession"], our distinguished veterans continue to adorn the publishers' lists with new books of remarkable dimensions. H. G. Wells, at the age of 66, is engaged upon a long and serious work which should be not less astonishing than those of his earlier years. It is an elaborate study such as only Mr. Wells could write, and already fully two-thirds of it is revised and in type for publication next year.

H. G. WELLS.

Robert Hichens, who is in his sixty-ninth year, has just published one of his longest, and possibly his best, novels, the story of a trial, and something far superior to the usual tale of crime and its elucidation—"The Paradine Case."

Finally, Horace Annesley Vachell, who is 72, has given us in the last few days a very lengthy story of the cathedral city of Wells, entitled "Vicar's Walk." It would be nothing that all these books are long books, for length may be garrulity; what is outstanding is that, within the limitations of their peculiar talents, these three elder authors are all essaying ambitions and very successful experiments in the picturing of the world as it is known to them.

Meanwhile some of the younger writers have been responding to a question as to the nature of "A Book I Should Like to See Written." Several of them admit that the books they would like to see written are the books upon which they are at present engaged; but whether this admission makes a claim in advance for the importance of their own work, or whether it is merely a prayer for strength, I cannot say. More impressive are the genuine attempts to answer the question put.

Edmund Blunden, for example, asks for a new edition of the Bible, with annotations for the intelligent but non-scholarly reader. David Garnett wants a history of scientific thought since the days of King Charles II.; Compton Mackenzie an up to date slang dictionary; Humbert Wolfe a history of contemporary journalism from behind the scenes; E. V. Lucas has a longing that every popular author should make a catalogue of the things he considers important.

All these ideas are of value and interest. They are only made difficult in the case of Mr. Wolfe and Mr. Bullett by the English laws of libel, and in the case of Mr. Blunden by the various national acts for the defense of the realm.

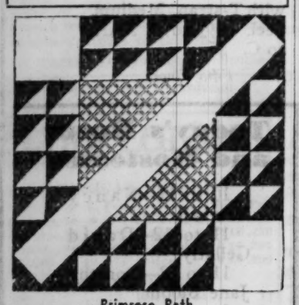
"Primrose Path" Is Another Quilt from Virginia



Primrose Path

BY NANCY CABOT.

In the "Primrose Path" we have another product of Virginia, this one dating back to 1820. An interesting little personal note is that the pattern for the quilt was furnished us by the great-granddaughter of the woman who designed it. In the middle west and the southwest this same pattern is known by different titles—the Trail" and the "Straight and Narrow Trail," respectively.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

$500 IN PRIZES FOR NAMING INTER-LEAGUE LINEUPS

FANS TO DECIDE WHO WILL PLAY IN JULY 6 GAME

Baseball's Leaders Elated.

BY ARCH WARD.

Announcement yesterday that the American and National leagues will send their strongest teams against each other in Chicago July 6 as the baseball feature of A Century of Progress Exposition has aroused more nation-wide interest than any sports attraction scheduled for the Fair.

K. M. LANDIS.

THE TRIBUNE, which will sponsor the game, was deluged yesterday with requests from out of town newspapers to conduct ballots on the personnel of the teams. Every application has been accepted. President William Harridge of the American league, President John Heydler of the National league, and the 16 club owners agreed several days ago that the fans of the country should decide the players who will take part in baseball's greatest game.

Will Present Strongest Lineups.

Every follower of the sport is invited to send in his idea of the strongest lineup that can be recruited from each league. He also is asked to name the three leading pitchers in each league. There will be no makeshift teams placed on the field. Both leagues insist that only the strongest possible lineups will be employed.

THE TRIBUNE will award a cash prize of $250 to the fan who comes closest to picking the starting lineups of the two teams and the pitchers in the order they work. A prize of $100 will be presented to the reader who comes closest to naming the National league's starting lineup and the starting pitcher. Another $100 award will go to the one who comes closest to picking the American league's starting lineup and the starting pitcher. Fifty prizes of $1 each will be distributed among the fans who are able to name the six pitchers chosen for the game, three from the American and three from the National.

Baseball's Greatest Bargain.

In event that more than the allotted number qualify for these awards, the prizes will go to the fans whose selections reach THE TRIBUNE first. Address all communications to the Sports Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The site of the game will be either Comiskey park or Wrigley field. The admission prices will be the same as prevail for daily games—$1.65 for box seats, $1.10 for grand stand, and 55 cents for bleachers. This is the greatest bargain ever offered baseball fans. A box seat at a world series game usually sells for $6.60. On July 6 you have an opportunity to see the greatest teams the sport can present for one-fourth the price.

Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday added his approval to the thousands received from baseball men everywhere. Mr. Landis said:

"Pitting the stars of each league against one another is a very worthy undertaking. It should enliven interest in baseball, particularly for the hot stove boys, and undoubtedly will set a new record for baseball attendance in Chicago. It is very fitting that such a game should be part of A Century of Progress program. THE TRIBUNE is to be congratulated for bringing it about. I heartily indorse it."

Dawes Congratulates Tribune.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR Wake: Recently Helper Conley had a 'Way Back When about old Metropolitan hall at La Salle and Randolph and several plays shown there. I remember Metropolitan hall and McAvoy's "Hybernican," played about 1866, possibly as late as 1868. Father and mother took me to see it.

It was scenes in Ireland painted on a canvas worked on upright rollers, from floor to ceiling. Facing the stage, it rolled from right to left. Mr. McAvoy, I believe, was the lecturer. Then a man dressed like a driver, carrying a long whip, sang:

My name is Jim, the driver lad, a jolly chap am I.
I always am contented, be the weather wet or dry.
I've braved the storm for many a year and can do so again.

CHORUS.

Crack, crack, goes my whip, I whistle and I sing,
I sit up on my jaunting car as happy as a king;
My horse is always willing; as for me, I'm never sad,
There's none can live a jollier life than Jimmie, the driver lad.

My father was a carrier long ere I was born,
He'd sometimes take me with him, especially in the spring—
I loved to sit upon the car and hear my father sing. Etc.

John D. Raleigh.

In the early '60's we schoolgirls used to go up in the old water tower and write our names on the wall. At that time Indians sat on the curbstone around the courthouse selling their beadwork. They had a hut out on the now Midway, then prairie. There was another hut on the north side. There you could see an old squaw smoking a clay pipe. There were few buildings on the near north side then and only one brick house. S. H.

Now I Am Thirty.

These Beautifiers have me scared:
"You must do this and that
When reaching thirty," so they say—
Now I've let out the cat.

There's wrinkle cream and paste for pores,
Astringents, too, alas,
And straps for double flappy chins—
[My dear, hand me that glass!]

There's tissue cream for scrawny necks,
And oil for crows' feet, too;
There're preparations new and sure
For graying hair—Mon Dieu!

"When reaching thirty," they all warn!
Well, this seems very plain:
I might as well get eardrums and

RUTH DELIVERS GIFTS TO BOYS WHO SAVED TRAIN

P. ssaic, N. J., May 19.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth paid an unexpected and unannounced call at the Passaic Home and Orphan asylum before noon today to pay his respects to the six boys who saved an Erie train from being wrecked during a washout near the home on the night of May 3. When Ruth arrived the boys were in school, but Mrs. Emma McCrea, matron, sent for them. Ruth brought a large bag filled with baseball caps and neckties and an autographed bat for each of the boys.

CUBS COMPLETE SUNDAY DOUBLE BILL PROGRAM

Downpour Delays Opener with Brooklyn.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

All the worry about the prospect of playing only one game at Wrigley field tomorrow was dissipated yesterday morning when rain caused the postponement of the scheduled opener between the Cubs and the Brooklyn Dodgers. The teams as a consequence will play their series and season premiere this afternoon, and tomorrow there will be a double header, the first game starting at 1:30 o'clock.

Thus did a morning downpour give the Cubs a solid booking of Sabbath double headers for the period from April 30 to June 11. Sunday bargains from June 11 on can be cared for through heavy dew, cumulus clouds, steam from factories adjoining ball parks, and arbitrary arrangement of wise magnates going about the conduct of their own business. And, of course, there will be a few double headers due to actual rain.

Third Day Off of Week.

The day off yesterday was the third in five days since the Cubs returned Monday morning from their first eastern trip, making them slightly behind their record of the preceding week when they laid off four days out of six. Many more weeks like the last two and the Cubs will have themselves an alibi for their languishment in seventh place. Incidentally, any one of the last six postponed Cub games could have been played.

Twenty thousand gals who had crash tickets for yesterday's ladies' day washout will have to rig up the fireless cookers again today, for the tickets will be honored this afternoon, the first time there ever has been a Saturday crash. They will get to see Lon Warneke go after his fifth victory, opposed by Ed [Elmer the Great] Beck.

Root, Malone Work Tomorrow.

In the double header tomorrow Pat Malone and Charley Root will seek to join that exclusive organization, "Cub Pitchers Who Have Won More Than One Game." The lodge now is composed of Warneke, with four wins; Guy Bush and Burleigh Grimes with two each. Bush wasn't initiated until after the second game of the Cubs double header with the New York Giants, in which Guy halted a losing streak at five straight by turning back the New Yorkers.

Last year the Cubs did not play their first double header until May 29. The double bill tomorrow will be their seventh in 22 days. If they can take both ends of tomorrow's bargain show they will be even up in the double header business, having split three, lost two and won one. Here's how it has worked out to date:

April 30—Cubs, 7; Cards, 5. Cubs, 3.
May 4—Giants, 2; Cubs, 1. Giants, 5; Cubs, 4.
May 6—Cubs, 9; Braves, 6. Cubs, 11; Braves, 2.
May 18—Giants, 3; Cubs, 0. Cubs, 10; Giants, 1.

Next Saturday's game is to be set over for a Sunday double header on May 28; June 4 will see the Sabbath bugs getting an opportunity to watch the Pirates in two games and on Sunday, June 11, the Cubs will be in Cincinnati for a pair.

CHOCOLATE GIVES WATSON BEATING TO KEEP TITLE

Watson Wins 2 Rounds.

The Briton was a good, sturdy little man, but not good enough. He won only the fifth and twelfth rounds. Three were even and the rest went to Chocolate on his punishing left hooks to the body.

Watson got up at the count of three, but was none too steady and Chocolate gave him a sound two-fisted thwacking the rest of the round. It was greatly to Watson's credit that he rallied and was able to win the 12th, but that was his last splurge. Chocolate's ripping lefts at long range thumped into body again and Watson was a whipped fighter at the end.

Chocolate Starts Poorly.

Chocolate, who was 3 to 1, gave the bettors a few nervous moments in the early part of the fight when he came off his toes, loafed and let Watson get in close and rough him in the clinches. But he was always the sharper puncher and when he finally began to box he was far superior to the plodding Briton.

Dull at times to the point where the fans cried for more fighting, the bout ended in a whirlwind of slugging with both men punching every second of the two final rounds.

Mrs. Moody Sails for Defense of Net Title

New York, May 20.—[Saturday]—(AP)—Helen Wills Moody sailed aboard the Holland-American liner Statendam early today for England and the defense of her British women's singles tennis championship. She was accompanied by her husband, Frederick S. Moody Jr.

Purvis Sets Javelin Record in Big Ten Track Trials

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Duane Purvis of Purdue, competing in his first Western conference track meet, threw the javelin to an all-time record at Dyche stadium yesterday. Purvis' mark, which replaces the seven year old record by Northrop of Michigan, is 208 feet 5¼ inches and it represents his best effort in competition this season. He easily led the field of six qualifiers in this event and with good fortune today he may increase his record, which now stands as the best in 33 years of Big Ten competition.

Purvis was an outstanding member of the Purdue back field last fall, particularly noted for the accuracy of his long forward passes. His first throw yesterday fell short of the flags which denoted the 200 foot mark. Then he threw again and the spear nosed into the ground in advance of the flags, indicating clearly he had surpassed the record.

Biddinger Wins Hammer.

While Purvis' performance was the outstanding feat of the preliminaries, Noble Biddinger of Indiana came within inches of sharing in the day's record breaking. Biddinger, the defending champion, won the hammer throw, the only event concluded yesterday. He tossed the weight 161 feet 4 inches, narrowly missing the record of 161 feet 7⅞ inches established by Ketz of Michigan in 1928 The hammer throw will be discontinued in the Big Ten meet next year.

Biddinger's victory gave Indiana five points in its bid for its first outdoor track championship. He defeated Rod Cox of Michigan, who has surpassed the conference mark in the event this season. Biddinger also has bettered the record in dual meets. Michigan has four points, and with 15 athletes qualified in the 10 events in which preliminaries were held yesterday it appears to be in a fair way to retain its conference title.

Iowa Ties Indiana.

Two Iowa athletes, Cornog and Kouba, took third and fourth places respectively in the hammer throw, Iowa also scoring five points in the final standings. However, Iowa was the only university which failed to place in any of the 10 preliminaries and undoubtedly it will finish far down in the list. Last place in the hammer throw went to Earl Johnson of Ohio State.

Ohio State qualified 12 men for second position in the trials. No preliminaries were held in the high jump, one mile, two miles, mile relay, and the pole vault. The last event opens today's finals at 2:30 o'clock. Fifteen minutes later, the parade of athletes and officials, a new feature of the Big Ten games, will formally open the meet. At 3 o'clock the mile run will start and for more than two hours the best athletes of the conference will be in action.

In an effort to popularize track and field, the conference has reduced admission charges, appealing particularly to boys, who will be admitted for 10 cents. Ceremonies, copied from the Olympic ritual, will be held at the conclusion of each event to introduce the winner to the crowd. Three races, the 220 yard dash, low hurdles, and the quarter mile, will be run on circular track. While this will slow down the competitors, it will give the spectators opportunity to see the events from start to finish, which they were denied when the straightaway was used.

Ward Leads Qualifiers.

Willis Ward, Michigan's sophomore Negro star, who, like Purvis, was an outstanding football player last fall, qualified in three events yesterday. He also will compete in the high jump this afternoon, an event in which he is conceded first place since he won the indoor competition at 6 feet 4 inches. Ward leaped over 6 feet 7 inches last June in the national collegiate meet, and if he can do as well today he will break the all time record, which now stands at 6 feet 6 inches and belongs to Russell of Chicago.

Ward won the third heat of the 100 yard dash in 10 seconds, which tied the winning time of Hudson Hellmich of Illinois, in the first preliminary. Both sprinters did exceptionally well considering the slow track. An early morning rain drenched the cinders and infield and caused

Today's Turf Events

BY FRENCH LANE.

The first free gate stake race ever run in or around Chicago—the $5,000 Illinois Derby—will be decided over the Aurora course at about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Overnight six thoroughbreds, including the Florida Derby winner, Charley O., and the Louisiana Derby winner, Col. Hatfield, accepted the issue. Unless some of the half dozen 3 year olds wake up not feeling so well this morning it is expected that all of them will go to the post.

How a Derby, easily accessible to Chicago's army of race goers, will draw through a free gate was causing considerable speculation last night and had Robert S. Eddy Jr., the general manager of the Aurora track, and the other officials in a quandary. They wondered how many spectators they should be prepared to accommodate.

Free Gate Not Fully Tested.

Free gate racing has been the vogue at Aurora since the season opened three weeks ago. It has attracted a few more customers than paid gates did in other years, but the officials of the course say the free gate hasn't had a fair test, because of the rainy weather and still worse track conditions which have prevailed on all except two days since the season opened.

Some of them predicted the Derby would draw 25,000 free customers. Others doubted if the crowd would exceed 10,000 or 12,000. These pessimists cling to the belief that a free gate is not the attraction at any horse track.

Last night Charley O. ruled the favorite at 6 to 5, while Fair Rochester, a Kentucky colt, was the second choice at 2 to 1. Col. Hatfield and Sweep Rush were next in line. Each was held at 6 to 1, although it was expected that Col. Hatfield's price might be shorter should the track be muddy or heavy.

Track May Be Good.

After yesterday's races the running strip dried out rapidly and if there is no more rain today the track may be good by the time the Derby colts parade to the post. This will be to Charley O.'s advantage, for those in charge of him seem to believe he is better on a dry track than he is in the heavy or muddy going.

The Derby field is not as stylish as the Aurora promoters had hoped it would be when they offered the $5,000 prize. The Wood Memorial in New York kept away many 3 year olds in the east, and the best of the 3 year old fillies remained in Kentucky to contest for the 59 year old Kentucky Oaks.

On the eve of his engagement in the Illinois Derby at Aurora Charley O. and other horses were sold by the R. M. Eastman estate to J. H. Wilson, a Chicago turfman. The other horses transferred in the private sale were Cathop and Wise Ways. Mr. Wilson will race the horses under the nom de course of the Strathmore stable. Tommy Taylor of Kentucky will continue as their trainer.

Jockey Hurt in Bowie Race; Condition Grave

WEBB'S BIG BAT LEADS ATTACK ON 3 PITCHERS

Hose Rout Old Pal, Tommy Thomas.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—The White Sox today fixed up a nice little wedding present for their old pal, Aiphonse Thomas, a recent bridegroom. They said it with base hits and Tommy, considerably deflated, went away in a hurry, leaving the remainder of the suffering to two of his pitching mates. The suffering was so acute that the ambitious Senators finally succumbed to a 10 to 1 whipping.

What the Sox didn't do with their bats was done by Paul Gregory, the budding Mississippian, who took one more step toward stardom. He baffled the Senators so completely that most of the hitting artists among them ducked the party before it was finished. Only two hits were made off him in six innings. By that time the Sox's lead was so impressive Gregory had nothing to worry about except a shutout. He lost that because of a slight flurry in the seventh.

Webb Has Big Day.

Thomas was thumped solidly, although only two runs scored off him in the first four innings. But the big presentation in the fifth inning, with Jack Hayes, Earl Webb, Luke Appling, and Jim Dykes banging the ball, scored three runs and induced the bridegroom to surrender.

The Sox then maltreated Bill McAfee and Jack Russell with such abandon in the sixth that five men scored, definitely settling every issue.

Earl Webb led the movement to assure Gregory his second triumph of the campaign. Webb, an alumnus of various clubs, is playing until Mule Haas serves out his suspension. He lost one extra base drive because of a one handed catch, was robbed of another sure double by the official scorer, and yet finished with three hits to his credit. The drive he lost to the scorer helped wreck Thomas in the fifth and his double assisted materially in the sixth inning disturbance. Webb also staged a one handed running catch that killed off a Washington run in the second inning.

Sox Get Personal.

It wasn't the Sox's fault that they didn't mar both the facial features and reputation of the self-satisfied Thomas right in the first inning. Hayes drove a liner back at him and it bounced off Tommy's frame into Myer's hands. Swanson flied out but Webb uncorked a terrific low drive toward the right field corner only to have Goslin spear it with one hand.

Heckling of Tommy continued in the second inning and this time one run was the outcome. Tommy was satisfied to get off that easy. Simmons opened with a triple off the right field sign board. Appling was reserving his best items for later, so he produced only an infield popup. Dykes walked and Kress singled to left, scoring Simmons. Grube also hit one on the nose, but Manush grabbed it on the run and Gregory closed the inning with a roller to Travis.

Grube Scores Appling.

Appling and Grube combined to make it 2 to 0 in the fourth inning. Appling doubled to the distant wall in left field and Dykes bunted him to third. Thomas proved strong enough to strike out Kress, but Grube drove a twisting fly over Thomas' head. Cronin raced in to make the catch, but couldn't quite reach the ball and it fell for a single, Appling scoring. Gregory's fly to center completed the inning.

Hayes assumed the lead in the three run foray that sent Thomas away in the fifth. He caromed a hot single off Thomas' right shin. Swanson grounded into a force play at second. Here Webb got a tough break. He hammered a line drive to center and Schulte dived to get it, but missed. If ever there was a hit this was one. The scorer, however, gave the outfielder

MAKING BUBBLES FINALLY SCORES AT SPORTSMAN'S

Favorite Rallies to Beat Commandman, Meloy.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Ever since opening day, Making Bubbles has been trying hard to win a race at Sportsman's Park. Three times this 4 year old colt has finished second, being beaten only by a head on two of those occasions. Yesterday his efforts met with success.

After going to the post as favorite at 8 to 5, Making Bubbles outfooted his eight rivals to win the feature event by a length and a half, Commandman coming home second and Meloy third. The distance was five furlongs.

Stuyvesant Peabody's Meloy, which won handily on Wednesday, attracted a great deal of support in the betting but he burned up considerable energy before the race began by breaking out of the starting gate and running the full length of the stretch before he could be brought under control.

Ep and Meloy Make Pace.

With the rise of the barirer, Ep and Meloy rushed to the front and raced head and head to the clubhouse turn. There Ep drew away to a lead of two lengths, with Meloy, Commandman and Making Bubbles close behind. There was a general closing in as they galloped down the back stretch and on the far turn Commandman replaced the tiring Ep as pace setter. Heading into the stretch, Making Bubbles moved up on even terms with Commandman and drew away during the last furlong to score a handy victory. Meloy held on well to take third place.

Making Bubbles paid $5.38 to win, $3.38 to place and $2.68 to show.

Early morning rains had made the track slow, but the weather was favorable and a crowd of 8,000 was on hand.

The three weeks' meeting at Sportsman's Park will close today, and racing will begin at Washington Park on Monday. A getaway day program of nine races has been arranged, and post time for the first race has been advanced to 2 o'clock.

Sprinters Meet In Feature.

The main race on the program will be the Au Revoir handicap, a dash of seven furlongs, in which a number of good sprinters such as Martie Flynn, Flag Bearer, and Sobieha will engage.

Jockey McLaren was given a ten day suspension for rough riding on Valley in yesterday's third race. This event was won by Mrs. Emil Denemark's Josephine D., which finished a length and a half ahead of the favorite, Nick D.

Daily double tickets on Josephine D. and Dusky Dame, winner of the second race, were worth $147.38. Dusky Dame scored handily after taking the lead at the head of the stretch as the pace setter, The Moon, tired. Sym Jack came up to take second money and The Moon lasted long enough to hold third. Early American, a 5 year old gelding owned by C. E. Lenahan, broke a leg in the race and was destroyed.

Washington Park Is All Set to Open Meeting Monday

Final details were handled yesterday for the opening of the season Monday at Washington Park. The officials are all here, headed by Judge Charles F. Price, steward in charge of racing. William H. Shelley, secretary and handicapper, has his office force in line for the acceptance of entries this morning. Numerous stables which will have starters in the Washington handicap, feature of the racing program Monday, arrived yesterday.

Tommy Taylor, trainer of the Eastman estate horses, arrived at Washington Park with eight, including the American Derby candidate Charley O. and Cathop, which will run in the Washington handicap Monday. Charlie Van Meter also arrived with nine horses. In this entourage was Red Whisk, candidate for the American Derby as well as for the Washington handicap.

Clyde Van Dusen, trainer of the Dixiana thoroughbreds, was an arrival with fourteen in one car. Another carload of a dozen or more Dixiana steeds will follow. In the entourage was Esseff, the fast High Time filly Van Dusen plans to start in the Washington handicap. On the same train were the horses of the Peconic stable. Sewell Combs' stable of six, in charge of Collis Ormsby, with the fast filly Nituma and the sprinter Back Log, also arrived.

With many of the best sprinters in the country at Washington Park, it is expected the Washington handicap will call out such outstanding racers as Mr. Sponge, Polydorus, Fingal, Marmion, Don Leon, Esseff, Cathop, Gift of Roses, Footmark, Gold Step, Wotan, Don Romiro, Ebony Lady, Marooned, Princess Camelia, Big Brand, Isaiah, Commuter, Ridge Wise, Evergold, Timely, Red Whisk, and Pantaloons.

HeadPlayTops Field of 8 in Wood Stake

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—A field of eight 3 year olds were named today for the Wood Memorial stakes at a mile and 70 yards at Jamaica tomorrow, the first major stake of the Long Island season.

Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Head Play, winner of the Preakness, is a pronounced favorite at odds of 1 to 2. The My Play colt has continued to train satisfactorily since his brilliant triumph last week. Charles Kurtsinger, who piloted the big chestnut in the Pimlico classic, will have the mount tomorrow.

Several of the candidates have received their final preparations under silks during the current meeting. Chief among the contenders will be Willis Sharp Kilmer's Dark Winter, which stepped six furlongs in 1:12 and was running easily at the finish. Another candidate, De Valera, received his conditioning in competition this week, and, coupled with Balios as the Wheatley stable entry, may face the barrier a well supported second choice.

W. R. Coe, owner of Ladysman, has nominated Pomponius to bear his silks in the fixture. Sonny Workman will come up from Bowie to ride Pomponius.

Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, Belmont Futurity winner; Mr. Khayyam, and Poppyman will complete the field.

Head Play will carry top weight of 126 pounds in the $5,000 added stake. He will concede weight to all his opponents.

YANKS' 2 HOME RUNS WIN OVER BROWNS, 6 TO 5

Brennan Fans 12, but Fails to Finish.

New York, May 19.—(AP)—Don Brennan won his fourth straight game for the Yankees today, but left the fans with a few heart palpitations before he finally came through with a 6 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Brennan breezed along in great style for the first seven innings while the Yanks piled up a 4 to 0 lead largely through Bill Dickey's home run with one aboard in the second.

Brennan yielded only six hits, struck out twelve, and issued passes to eight. Two of the walks, plus a single by Irving Burns and a passed ball gave the Browns their first two runs in the eighth. Ben Chapman promptly got those back by clouting a homer after Lou Gehrig had singled. Pennock replaced Brennan in the ninth.

Sox Defeat Senators in Opener, 10-1

an error. It put Swanson on third and Webb on second. Simmons was purposely passed. Singles by Appling and Dykes drove home the three men and McAfee hurried in to halt the bombardment.

Shutout Fades in Seventh.

McAfee tempted the Sox with a pass to Gregory to open the sixth inning and the Chicagoans kept moving until five had scored. Hayes sacrificed Gregory to second. Swanson doubled to right center and Gregory scored. Swanson scored on Webb's double over first. Simmons scratched a single to short and Appling plunked one safely into center, scoring Webb. Simmons took third on the hit and Appling second on the throw-in. Russell rushed out to restore peace, but didn't accomplish it until after Simmons had scored on a wild pitch and Appling on a single by Kress.

The beginning of the end of Gregory's prospective shutout and two hit game came with a pass to Boken at the start of the seventh. Harris doubled to left, Boken halting at third. Dykes filled the bases by throwing wide on Travis' bounder and still none was out. A single by Bolton, one of numerous reserves used by Washington, scored Boken.

BRAVES CHECK PIRATES' STREAK; TRIUMPH, 5 TO 3

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 19.—(AP)—The Boston Braves checked the Pirates' winning streak after four straight games by unloosing an early attack that netted them a 5 to 3 victory in the series opener today.

Boston pounded Waite Hoyt, Pittsburgh veteran, scoring three runs in the first inning and sending him to the showers with another assault in the third. Larry French and Hal Smith finished with more effective pitching. Old Tom Zachary pitched well for the Braves for the first six innings, yielding only three hits, but Pittsburgh solved his delivery in the seventh for all three runs and Harry Seibold was called in.

American Davis Cup Team Sweeps Canadian Series

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., May 19.—High winds and a threatening thunderstorm failed to halt America's march to the final match for the interzone Davis cup championship this afternoon as George M. Lott Jr. and Johnny Van Ryn, veteran United States doubles team, swept aside Dr. Jack Wright and Marcel Rainville, Canada's last hopes in the series, to win the third consecutive match.

The scores of today's match were 6-1, 6-3, 6-3. The result was never in doubt as the Americans rushed through, piling up point after point. The United States players lost only seven games and these were due largely to their own errors.

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW About the CUBS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

HARVEY GINK HENDRICK, currently the Cubs' first baseman, has a hard time deciding which are his favorites—his bird dogs or his hounds. . . . But any one from the neighborhood of Covington, Tenn., where Gink has his place, can tell you that any dog owned by Gink has to know his stuff or Gink won't keep him. . . . If there is anything Gink hates more than a frivolous ball player, it is an effeminate hound. . . .

There is the case of Claude, a hound that used to belong to Gink's pack. Just to look at him you would have thought Claude was like all the rest of the hounds. . . . But he wasn't. Claude was a softy. . . . If you knew Gink in all his 6 feet 2 of mountaineer ruggedness you could realize to what extent Claude was a problem dawg, in so far as Gink was concerned. . . .

Whenever the other hounds were out barking and howling and raising hell generally, Claude more than likely would be hanging around the house, loafing with Cleo, the family cat. . . . Other times he would be out in the barnyard, teasing the hens.

The more this softy business went on the madder hardboiled Gink became. . . . Thinking to shame Claude, he changed his name to Cuthbert, which Gink says is considered a sissy name down in the Tennessee hills. . . . But the switch didn't feaze Claude. So Gink gave up and traded Cuthbert for the meanest sow in the whole countryside. . . .

Despite his stock and dogs and land, Gink isn't the closest fellow to nature among the Cubs. As matter of fact Burleigh Grimes probably is the farmingest individual in the history of baseball. . . .

On his farm in New Haven, Mo., Burleigh breeds, raises, and trains saddle horses, breeds and conquers mules, has one of the finest herds of white face cattle in his section of the country, eighty head of hogs, which he expects to increase to 300 if feed and pork prices justify, and a goodly number of turkeys and chickens. . .

Burleigh has won 265 games in the National league and three world series thrillers and more championship victories than any old timer still pitching. You naturally would think that his greatest kicks out of life would come from happenings in ball parks, that his greatest relaxation would be to remain late abed as per baseball player custom, etc. Not so! Let Burleigh tell it— . . .

"My biggest wallop is to get up shortly after daybreak, feed the stock and wait for four redbird pals of mine to come around for their breakfast. I don't know where my flying friends nest, but I know they're a squad of beggars who make their rounds with such regularity that I could set my watch by their arrival. . . . And after I give 'em their handout don't think they stick around. Off they go to the next stop where the next fellow probably has something a little bit different.

"Baseball and the big cities have been good to me and I want to stay in the game as long as I can. But it's going to be a great life when I can spend all my time on the farm watching those blood strains work out in my stock—and feeding the wild fowl that drop in to say hello."

baseball's contribution as announced in THE TRIBUNE," Mr. Dawes said. "The teams recruited from the pick of the two major leagues will undoubtedly prove one of the most attractive features of the Fair sports program. The game will give thousands of Exposition visitors from all parts of the country an opportunity they would never get otherwise to see the greatest stars of America's most typical game in action. Congratulation to THE TRIBUNE for its enterprise."

"The World's Fair is a tremendously big undertaking and is certain to be a splendid success despite the difficulties of the times. Every form of sport is making some contribution to the success of the undertaking, and by this I do not mean financial support. The heads of the various branches are looking upon the Fair as an opportunity of demonstrating the atractiveness of their various types.

Cubs Tremendously Interested.

"The game arranged by THE TRIBUNE is bound to receive tremendous publicity throughout the country. This is a contest bringing together the best players in the game in a setting that is perfect from the standpoint of advertising our product. The Chicago National League club is tremendously interested."

"A great idea," commented Lew Fonseca, the White Sox manager, when he learned in Washington of the all-star game.

"A game of this kind will serve a triple purpose," he continued. "It will stimulate interest in the game. The small town visitors to A Century of Progress will have a chance in one afternoon to see all the stars they read about daily in the newspapers. The proceeds will be a big help to the Players' association, which has been doing a good work caring for old players in distress. As many members of the White Sox team as are needed will be available."

"It is a contest all players will be interested in and those picked are certain to give their best efforts," said Joe Cronin, manager of the Washington Senators. "The natural rivalry between the two major leagues assures a real battle and the players selected surely will welcome the opportunity to do something worth while for the association of which practically all are members."

Lyons Opposes Senators Today; Faces Weaver

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Ted Lyons, who won the first game of the Washington double header in Chicago last Sunday, will be given the White Sox's pitching assignment in the second game of the Senator series tomorrow. Monte Weaver will start for Washington, and for Sunday Alvin Crowder, another right hander, will be available. Joe Cronin, Washington manager, doesn't want to let the Sox have a whack at a southpaw.

Here are some statistics on the Sox as fielders. Luke Appling fumbled a grounder at short in the second inning for his first blunder in 82 successive chances. Jack Hayes has handled 142 chances since he made an error at Detroit April 15.

Manager Cronin hit into a double play after Goslin had walked to start the fourth inning and almost tore the shoe off Kress' right foot. The wound was of no consequence, so Red remained in the game after emergency treatment from Trainer Ad Schacht.

Rockford, New Trier Place Six Each in Track Finals

Champaign, Ill., May 19.—[Special.]—One of the closest struggles in the annals of the state interscholastic track and field meet is indicated for tomorrow as a result of the preliminaries run off at the University of Illinois this afternoon.

Rockford's showing was made possible by the performances of Benny Behr in the shotput and discus and Bob Packard, a sophomore sprinter, in both dashes, while Capt. Fred Johnson qualified for the 440 yard dash and Don Nelson for the javelin.

Senn's strength is chiefly in the field events, with Martin and Scott in the broad jump, Bollenson in the high jump, Schuman in the shot put, and Newton in the low hurdles.

Senn placed Osweiler in both hurdles, Delaney in the 100 yard dash, and Sherff in the pole vault. Robinson and Galesburg were next with four places each. Robinson expects to figure in the half mile by the prowess of McIntosh.

Bob Grieve of Glenbard [Glen Ellyn] lived up to expectations by running the fastest century of the day, 10 seconds, while Packard of Rockford was the fastest furlong contestant. Boyer of Paris, who smashed the quarter mile record in his section last year, led a huge field today in :51.3.

CHURCH ASKS AID AFTER 37 YEARS OF FEEDING POOR

Need Exceeds Capacity of Contributors to Give.

The Rev. Johnston Myers glanced down a long line of men waiting at the rear of the Immanuel Baptist church, 2320 South Michigan avenue, yesterday, and decided that he could postpone no longer an appeal for funds to continue feeding his "friends" who are dependent upon his efforts to tide them over until betetr times.

The minister has fed the unfortunate and needy at the Immanuel church door for the last 37 years. During that time the bread line has become famous not only for its food service, but because it put men right again in their confidence in themselves.

"During the last winter the Immanuel food supply stations, three in number, have given over 700,000 meals to hungry people," Dr. Myers said. In the morning long lines of men wait for their daily portion of food. At noon from 300 to 500 women line up to receive their food supplies for their homes. It is one of the least expensive charities in the city and the food is given only to those really in need.

"This work has never had support from public funds, having been continued through voluntary gifts. Many of those who supported the work during the winter are unable to do so now. We have gone as far as we can without financial assistance. We need immediate aid if we are to continue."

Dr. Myers began the feeding of the hungry in Cincinnati ten years before coming to the Chicago church.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—A surprise move was made today in the controversy over station WIBO's wave length, when the owners of the station filed a petition with the federal radio commission charging the Johnson-Kennedy Radio corporation, owners of WJKS, Gary, Ind., with having perpetrated a fraud on the commission and on the reviewing courts.

The State Investment company, formerly Nelson Brothers Bond and Mortgage company, owners of WIBO, ask that the commission reconsider its decision of Oct. 16, 1931, by which the commission took WIBO and another Chicago station, WPCC, off the air and gave their wave length to the Gary station.

The commission's adverse decision against WIBO and WPCC was upheld by the Supreme court.

The WIBO petition points out that the commission's decision against WIBO was primarily based on the fact that Indiana is greatly underquota on broadcast facilities, while Illinois is greatly overquota, and on the further ground that WJKS was the only station serving the Calumet region.

The petition emphasizes the fact that on April 18, 1933, the Johnson-Kennedy Radio corporation filed an application for authority to move its transmitter from Gary to the corner of 138th street and Calumet avenue, Hammond, Ind.

The petition charges that the Johnson-Kennedy Radio corporation intends to serve primarily the city of Chicago and approximately the same area as that served by WIBO and that, instead of trying to increase the facilities enjoyed in Indiana, it is really trying to secure additional coverage in Illinois at the expense of Indiana.

2 MEN CONFESS HELPING TO ROB SLAIN ECCENTRIC

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—Two accountants who worked for Edward Albert Ridley were arrested today on charges of having acted with Lee Weinstein, Ridley's secretary, to rob the old man of $210,000 and have him sign a fake will by which they stood to gain $200,000 more. The aged and eccentric millionaire and Weinstein were murdered in their cavelike office in Allen street.

Although the police denied that this development had done much to further their investigation of the double murder, when Arthur Hoffman and George Goodman were arraigned in Tombs court Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings hinted that he did not think they had told all they knew about the murder. He asked for bail of $50,000 each, which was fixed.

Use Dummy Corporations.

Previously the two men had confessed to a complicated system of robbery through many dummy corporations, had told how the will was drafted by Weinstein with a copy of the will of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow for a model, typed in Hoffman's office and put before Ridley for his signature with a sheaf of other papers so that he did not know what he was signing.

They turned back to the police a total of $49,000 in bonds which they said was all they had left of the money, and denied vehemently and consistently that they had any knowledge of the murder.

With this development Inspector Francis J. Kear and the sixty-five detectives working under him on the case redoubled their energies toward a solution of the murder of Ridley and Weinstein, which was tied up with the murder of Herman Omench, Ridley's previous secretary, in the same subcellar office two years ago.

Police Seek New Angle.

While Inspector Kear remained noncommittal, it was indicated that the new focal point of police attention was Harry Weinstein of the Bronx, the brother of the murdered Lee and the man whose telephone calls on May 10 directly led to the discovery of the bodies in the dungeon office.

Operator Falls 16 Floors Down Shaft of Elevator

Al Olson, 23 years old, an elevator operator, was killed last evening in a 16 story plunge down an elevator shaft in the 201 East Delaware apartment building, where he was employed. He had delivered a newspaper to a guest on the sixteenth floor and left the door of his car propped open with a stick. BOY IS AWARDED $12,000 IN SUIT AGAINST GILDAY

Gun Toting Dry Liable to Imprisonment.

Daniel Gilday, gun toting reformer, yesterday was assessed $12,000 by a jury for the malicious shooting of a boy who went to his aid as he staggered along a south side street.

The boy, Herman Knol, 19 years old, had sued for $20,000. Gilday shot him in the abdomen, inflicting a wound that sent him to the hospital for two months, and from which he stil suffers. The jury before Judge Joseph H. Fitch in the Superior court took only 55 minutes to reach a verdict. Gilday was found guilty on both counts of the bill, one involving malice, on the second ballot. The jury voted three times before agreeing on the damages.

Liable to Jail.

The inclusion of the malice count in the verdict makes Gilday liable to six months' imprisonment if he cannot pay. Judge Fitch set his plea for a new trial for May 27. If the plea is denied, the reformer must pay the verdict, post bond for an appeal, or go to jail.

Gilday was the proprietor of a one man reform organization, the Englewood Law and Order league. On the evening of Nov. 29, 1931, young Knol and a companion, Herman Alkema, were on their way to church. They saw the reformer making irregular progress along the sidewalk at 70th and Green streets and went to his aid, thinking at first he was ill.

When they reached Gilday, young Knol testified during the trial, they discovered he was intoxicated and bleeding from a cut on the face. When they tried to help him Gilday drew a revolver and shot Knol. Police who arrested Gilday found a bottle of liquor on his hip.

Gilday Takes Stand.

Gilday took the witness stand yesterday in his own defense. He asserted that the church-bound boys had threatened to rob him, and that he drew the revolver to frighten them. Knol, he asserted, was wounded accidentally when he attempted to seize the gun. Members of the jury said, after returning their verdict, that they placed no credence in Gilday's explanation.

The reformer admitted he had been drinking. He asserted that he had only one drink of whisky and four glasses of beer, making no mention of the liquor found on his person. His staggering, he asserted, was the effects of a nervous breakdown which he suffered ten years ago.

His attorney, Stuart Bradley, asked him if he had ever been threatened as a result of his reforming activities.

"Yes, by Stubby McGovern," said Gilday.

"Who is he?" asked Judge Fitch.

"He's dead now," said Gilday.

"Then that's the end of that," said Judge Fitch.

Gilday was tried twice in the Criminal court for assault on young Knol. He was first sentenced to one to fourteen years in the penitentiary, but obtained a new trial, was found guilty a second time and fined $100.

THOMAS O'BRIEN, FORMER ENVOY TO JAPAN, DIES

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 19.—(AP)—Thomas J. O'Brien, 90 years old, died late today at the family home here after a long illness. He was a former United States ambassador to Japan and Italy and minister to Denmark.

It was through the efforts of O'Brien while ambassador to Japan that that famous "gentlemen's agreement" regarding Japanese immigration was shaped. It was said by his contemporaries that his keen foresight and wisdom restrained the California legislature from adopting restrictive alien land laws that might have precipitated serious complications between the two nations.

He was also credited with having first broached the project of American acquisition of the Danish West Indies, although it was ten years after his ministry at Copenhagen that the Virgin islands became territory of the United States.

As ambassador to Italy O'Brien extended effective good offices in paving the way for peace between Italy and Turkey, between whom war had broken out a few weeks prior to his arrival in Rome in 1911.

Born at Jackson, Mich., July 30, 1842, O'Brien was graduated from University of Michigan Law school in 1865. His daughter, Katherine, is the wife of Henry G. Chilton, now British ambassador to Chile. A son, Howard, lives in Monroe, Mich.

MIDDLE WEST BANKRUPTCY THREAT ENDED

Note Holders, Banks Reach Agreement.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The threat of bankruptcy which has been hanging over Middle West Utilities company, biggest of the "Insull" holding companies, for several months was definitely removed yesterday when an agreement was entered into between the bankers, representatives of the noteholders and the general creditors contemplating the eventual reorganization of the concern.

The settlement ends a protracted dispute between the noteholders and the bankers over the claims of the banks to certain collateral which was pledged by the company within the four months period prior to the appointment of receivers.

Waive Claims to Collateral.

The First National Bank and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company are understood to have waived claims on part of the collateral they now hold as security for loans made to Middle West. The Reconstruction Finance corporation which now holds the collateral pledged with the Central Republic Bank and Trust company is expected to assent to the terms agreed to by the other banks.

The noteholders who were represented by Attorney Robert Golding and Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the protective committee, had threatened to press bankruptcy proceedings against the company unless the bankers agreed to waive their claims on the disputed collateral.

Announce Plans Today.

Public announcement of the program agreed upon will be made today, it was stated last night. While the program clears the way for the eventual reorganization of the company, no immediate change in the status of the company is expected. Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch will continue to act as receivers for the vast properties of the company whose one-time estimated value approached two billion dollars.

The collateral on which a compromise was reached between the bankers and the noteholders has an estimated value of slightly more than eight million dollars. Total bank loans of the company when it passed into receivership in April, 1932, were approximately 25 millions. The Central Republic collateral, now held by the R. F. C. amounted to $1,650,000. This collateral was repledged by the Dawes bank with the R. F. C. as partial security for the 90 million loan obtained by the bank last fall.

40 Billion in Gold Notes.

The noteholders, the largest creditor group, hold 40 million dollars of "gold debentures" which are currently quoted on the open market at 13 cents on the dollar. Halsey Stuart & Co., who distributed the bulk of the senior securities of the Insull companies, have a claim of two millions against the company. The investment house was not represented at the creditors' conference yesterday and it is reported that this claim will be dealt with separately.

Bankers were unwilling yesterday to discuss what effect the new agreement has on the prospects of the 99,000 stockholders who own the common and preferred shares. What, if anything, the stockholders will salvage out of the receivership will depend on the course of business.

If and when a reorganization can be worked out it will be necessary to raise a substantial amount of new capital. For the present, however, no plans are being made for raising additional money.

Preliminary Inventory Filed.

The inventory includes accounts receivable. Among other items is one for 50 cents from Martin J. Insull, former president, which is carried in the accounts due from officers and employés. Another $5,100 is due from Insull as trustee under an investment fund.

The holdings listed include thousands of shares of stock of subsidiary companies and of companies in which Middle West had minority holdings. The receivers explained that the inventory is not complete.

Among the largest of the accounts receivable are $1,200,000 from the Mississippi Valley Utilities company, now in bankruptcy; $1,200,000 from A. B. Leach & Co., defunct investment house, and $1,131,170 from H. L. Doherty & Co. It was explained that the later item was contingent on the payment by Middle West of certain obligations in connection with its purchase of the Ozark Utilities company.

The receivers are expected to make public a comprehensive report on the company in the next few days. Arthur Andersen & Co., accountants, have been working for months on the audit, which is expected to give the first complete picture of the company's finances which has ever been furnished to the public.

Inflation Isn't Here Yet, but Its Effects Are

BY HOWARD WOOD.

There has been much talk about expansion of credit and currency, congress has passed the inflation bill, and the markets and business generally have taken a big step upward.

Up to the present, however, there has been no inflation. Instead, there has been further contraction of credit and a substantial reduction in the amount of currency in circulation.

The reports of the federal reserve board each week since the inflation program was announced have shown a decrease in credit and money.

To the ordinary individual this has been confusing. He has seen prices shooting skyward and business picking up, supposedly because of inflation, and yet there has been no inflation.

* *

The answer is that inflation is being carefully timed so that the shock of sudden price fluctuations may not affect business too severely. A slow gradual advance in prices would be much more advantageous to business generally than a meteoric rise that might get out of control.

To date the administration has been able to follow this course successfully. This has not been particularly difficult because no inflation has been attempted. A step in that direction has been taken in the decision of the treasury to suspend redemption of paper money in gold, but that is all.

Actual inflation, however, is slated to come. The President has been authorized to bring about inflation in one of three ways—or all of them.

He may cause the federal reserve banks to buy as much as 3 billion dollars worth of government bonds. He may cause the treasury to issue 3 billion dollars worth of "greenbacks." And he may cause the amount of gold in the dollar to be reduced as much as 50 per cent.

* *

The act of reducing the dollar's gold content, it is believed, will not occur early in the inflation program. That is a final step, an official recognition of the fact of inflation after the inflation is actually happened. It is a step to be taken later on when, by international agreement or otherwise, the United States goes back on the gold standard—on a lower basis.

The issuance of "greenbacks" is not likely in the near future. It is a step to be taken later and only if the Federal Reserve banks refuse to buy their quota of government bonds, or if after the reserve banks are loaded up with such bonds still more inflation is desired.

The place to look for inflation is in the weekly report of the Federal Reserve banks. The twelve Federal Reserve banks combined now hold about 11 billion 837 million dollars' worth of United States government bonds. They have held approximately that amount for several years.

The first sign of actual currency inflation, therefore, will be an increase in the reserve banks holdings of governments. Treasury officials have already held long conferences with the reserve bank officials and have established the necessary line of credit.

The entire 3 billions, however, will probably not be bought immediately. Purchases of 50 million to 100 million of governments weekly over a period of time are expected.

It is to be remembered that the federal government expects to take the money that the reserve banks pay for the bonds and spend it in the big 3 billion 300 million public works building campaign.

Actual inflation, therefore, will probably begin when the government starts its spending program and will continue as the government goes on spending and lending.

The markets have already discounted this inflation program to some extent. How far they have discounted it will be discovered only when the reserve banks begin to lay in additional bales of government bonds.

RAIL RATE REVISION MUST BE ADJUSTED TO INDIVIDUAL CASES

BY H. A. LAIRD.

[Chicago Tribune Traffic Manager.]

The interstate commerce commission is holding almost daily hearings at Washington to determine whether or not railway rates should be reduced so that they will more nearly conform with present commodity price levels. Shippers of basic commodities have urged that the present wartime level of freight rates is having the effect of restricting the movement of traffic to such an extent that general recovery is being retarded.

The shippers' side of the argument is being recorded first and, while the language is different, the general tone of the witnesses is the same—that the more distant markets are being closed and business generally localized by transportation costs. All of them deal with generalities. The commission hasn't time to examine specific situations.

The task assumed by the commission in this instance is stupendous, probably beyond its powers, and, its information being general, its conclusion must be accomplished with a broad sweep of the hand. Certain commodities are obviously moving with freedom for nation-wide distribution. Other commodities, perhaps in the same classes, are moving in restricted areas. If the class rate is reduced there is a needless sacrifice of carrier revenue.

Other commodities are moving within a limited zone at present rates, but zones in the business could be considerably increased by a rate reduction. However, if this is also to apply on the existing movement the remedy is being used on a substantial volume of business that does not need it.

There is little doubt in the minds of many that the freight rates on numerous commodities could be adjusted to the benefit of both carrier and shipper, but the situations must receive individual attention and treatment.

Index of Revenue Passengers Carried by Chicago Surface Lines

Reviews Find Sustained Gain in Business

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Trade and business in general has continued to increase, according to the trade reviews, with reports of expansion being more numerous and sustained gains in many lines being more convincing, although the forward movement seemed to be at a somewhat slower pace.

Business in general, the reviews add, has assumed dimensions wider than seasonal and has progressed to such a degree that it is becoming the exception to find a report from any section of the country which does not enumerate at least a few trades in which production and distribution have risen from the point at which they stood at the beginning of the quarter.

Purchasing Power Broadens.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., say in part:

"Each week the reports reveal multiplying evidence of the broadening of purchasing power by the recent price advances, the continued expansion of industrial operations, and the new fields being opened by governmental work.

"Employment in the steel, automobile, rubber, and brewing industries was increased as much as 100 per cent during the last two months, while the recent advances in agricultural products have given the farmers approximately a billion dollars more to spend. Exclusive of the funds which have been provided by the farm bill.

"While the check to the downward economic swing may not be reflected, as yet, in wide reemployment, further reductions are appearing weekly in the number of applications for relief in many of the large industrial centers.

Turn Deficit Into Profit.

"During the last three weeks retailers in many parts of the country have announced that they are recording small profits, after more than two years of deficit operation. Doubtless, the rigid economies put into effect since 1930, together with the low levels at which inventories of unsold goods have been held, will help both large and small concerns to increase their profits steadily, even though sales may continue under the total recorded in more prosperous times.

"The early returns on April retail sales bear out the steadily gaining weekly volume which was recorded during that month. With the exception of the final week, retail prices persisted at a low level all through April, so that the increased dollar volume was indicative of a strong rise in unit turnover."

Sanitary District to Pay $643,000 Defaulted Interest

The sanitary district will today pay $643,000 in defaulted interest on bonds which fell due on July 1, 1932. The cash was obtained from 1931 tax collections, according to Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the sanitary district board finance committee. The district has defaulted on approximately $15,000,000 in bond redemption and interest.

HALF A MILLION ROOMS AWAITING VISITORS TO FAIR

No one need worry about finding a place to sleep when A Century of Progress opens, according to J. K. Blatchford, secretary of the Chicago Hotel association. Mr. Blatchford has just completed a survey which discloses that there are 16,000 rooms in loop hotels alone. Including the near north side—as far north as the Drake hotel—there are 30,000 hotel rooms and 5,000 hotel apartments. On the north side, beyond the Drake, there are 16,000 hotel rooms and 14,000 hotel apartments. The south side has 13,000 hotel rooms and 5,000 hotel apartments, while the west side has 2,000 hotel rooms and apartments. Mr. Blatchford figures 2 to 5 rooms to a hotel apartment. And in addition, he says, there are 300,000 rooms in rooming houses and cheap apartments. The total is approximately half a million rooms.

Whenever any one starts collecting funds for the aid of the deaf in Timbuctoo or for the financing of a home for destitute bootleggers the first place he goes is to a public utility company, says an official of one large Chicago organization. "They come in here in droves," he remarked. "Let some prominent citizen have a daughter who is getting out a program for the class play of Whatsis college and the first place he sends her is to us. Political picnics, benevolent protective associations, society women seeking cash for their pet charities—they all come here.

Vice presidents and their assistants are always harder to see than presidents and executive committee chairman but for the last word in inaccessibility the laurels must go to the secretaries of the trade and business associations.

The phrase "in conference" is said to have been coined by a trade association secretary and it has served the craft well. Busy solving the problems of an entire industry or business instead of just one concern they are forever in a huddle with statisticians determining "statistical positions" and average costs and such things.

Plans are being made to strike at the life insurance "rating" racket which has assumed blackmail proportions recently. It is reported in insurance quarters that a bill is being prepared for introduction in a number of states prohibiting the circulation of literature purporting to "rate" insurance companies. The methods used by some of the rating agencies are similar to those of the society gossip sheets which "rated" debutantes. And in these days insurance companies are as much concerned over ratings as debutantes.

Surface Line Riders Show Business Gain

Passenger traffic on the surface lines, long regarded as one of the truest indications of the state of business in Chicago, has taken a definite upturn in the last few months. This was revealed yesterday by a chart and figures accompanying it which were issued by the Chicago Surface Lines.

The chart reveals clearly the steady downward trend of revenue passengers since 1929 when the peak of prosperity was reached. It shows the sags in passenger traffic which come during the hot summer months of July and August each year and the recoveries as the weather becomes cooler. The number of passengers carried by street cars steadily became less until about Jan. 15, 1933, the chart discloses.

Advances Against Normal Trend.

After Jan. 1 in each year of the last five there was a sharp decline in the number of persons riding street cars, usually until the middle of the month, the figures show. Then began an upward trend until the middle of March when the number of riders again began to decline. This year followed the usual trend up to the March 15 peak, but then broke away from the former years by continuing a slow but steady increase. Officials of the surface lines said this change from the usual seasonal traffic indicated that the upward trend would be permanent.

There is still a long distance between the traffic marks reached in 1929 and even in 1930 and 1931 and those of today, the figures show, but for the first time since the boom days, more persons have been riding on street cars since the middle of March than there were in the preceding January.

Average Rises in April.

The daily average of passengers in 1929 was 2,460,000, according to the statistics issued. In 1930, this average had shrunk to 2,221,000 and in 1931 it was only 2,010,000. In 1932, the daily average was 1,730,000, and in the first four months of 1933 the average was still lower with 1,669,000. But in April, instead of becoming lower, the daily average swelled to 1,693,000.

This upward trend at a season when passenger traffic usually falls off indicated to the surface lines officials, they said, that the end of 1933 will find 2,000,000 persons again riding the street cars each day and comparative prosperity definitely in sight.

Passenger traffic on the elevated lines has also shown a slight increase in the last few weeks, it was announced yesterday.

There will be no change in deliveries. Tenders must be made prior to 12:10 p. m. and notices of offsets must be made prior to the same time. Contracts will terminate at 11 a. m. on the next to last business day of each month, as at present.

CIGARET PRODUCTION RESUMES RISE; NEARLY 8 BILLION LAST MONTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Cigaret production during April resumed the advance in evidence since the first of the year which was checked abruptly during March due to the banking crisis.

Output for April was 5.43 per cent above last year while in March it was 15.59 under the corresponding month in 1932. In February, production topped the 1932 total by 2.26 per cent.

Production of small cigarets totaled 7,973,021,190, an increase of 410,730,863 over April, last year. Output of large cigarets was off, totaling 196,811, against 321,610 in the corresponding 1932 month.

Production of large cigars in April was 8.21 per cent under 1932, compared with decreases 18.36 per cent in March and 17.34 in February.

OIL ISSUES RISE WHILE REST OF STOCKS SEESAW

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Oil shares provided the only worth while show of confidence discernible in today's dealings on the stock exchange. The rest of the list spent the entire session milling about without apparent point or purpose. Brokers guessed that the spasmodic spurts that enlivened proceedings in different corners from time to time were engineered largely to cover distribution elsewhere.

Regardless of the advices of business improvement still coming to the front, an element in Wall street believes that visible trade gains have been pretty amply discounted by the markets' rise since the country went off the gold standard a month ago today. These traders are holding off until future developments point to a more dependable course of action. The belief is held among the speculative fraternity that President Roosevelt is not likely to make any considerable use of the extraordinary currency.

Trading More Moderate.

Whatever the future, however, the belief grows that the market issue for a more or less prolonged period of calm after its protracted exertions on the upside. Public participation has diminished somewhat. Today about 3,289,000 shares were turned over. Yesterday's total was around 4,110,000, much of it piled up in the active last hour of trading.

Bull forces tried to hitch the market up on news from the railroads at the outset of today's session by making much of plans for federal aid, improved carloadings, and the like, but were unable to attract much of a following. Then the oils were taken in hand and while the group was propelled forward for net gains of from a fraction to a point, other sections failed to fall in line. Standard of Kansas was run up 2 points and the other Standards rose from a half to about a point. Seaboard Oil, Atlantic Refining, Houston, and one or two others performed credibly.

Expect U. S. to Aid Oil Industry.

Texas corporation exceeded its 1932 high and Amerada touched the best figure since 1929. Reports from Washington that the administration's oil bill, designed to bring order out of the present chaos in the industry, provided ammunition for the firing in this zone. The rails after their early start closed irregular with Atchison, Union Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, and one or two others showing losses of a fraction to a point and others finishing with small gains.

Losses were only fractional for U. S. Steel, General Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, International Harvester, Case, National Biscuit, National Cash Register, and Bethlehem. American Telephone, American Can, and Allied Chemical sagged a couple of points. North American, Du Pont, American Sugar, and National Distillers were down one or more points.

RISE IN DOLLAR GATHERS SPEED; BEST IN 3 WEEKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—The rally in the dollar, which has been under way for several days, picked up speed and strength today as the American monetary unit advanced to the best price in three weeks.

Sterling fell 4½ cents in dollar valuation to $3.85¾, or more than 20 cents below its recent high. The French franc lost 5¼ points to 4.48½ cents, or more than 25 points below its high. Other exchanges were proportionately weak and in almost all cases closed at the lowest prices for the day.

The reduction of the discount on the dollar today made it worth about 88 cents in terms of the French franc against 85 cents last week. This improvement has come about, according to bankers, because no inflationary steps have yet been taken by the government to "make good" the depreciation in foreign exchange sustained by the dollar following the suspension of the gold standard here in anticipation of inflation.

CORP. SECURITIES TRUSTEE SUES EDISON UNIT

Sam Howard, trustee in bankruptcy of the Corporation Securities company, yesterday filed the declaration of a suit for $756,000 in the Superior court against the Chicago District Electric Generating corporation, a subsidiary of the Commonwealth Edison company.

The declaration charges that the Corporation Securities company, shortly before it went bankrupt, turned over $504,236 to the subsidiary. This was done to pay the Chicago District Electric Generating corporation a greater percentage of money due from the Corporation Securities company than other creditors would receive, the declaration says.

The Chicago District Electric Generating corporation knew the securities company was insolvent and promised to return the money, but has not done so, the declaration states.

Predict Fight Over Changes in Railway Bill

Washington, D. C., May 19.—(AP)—Revised to insure workers their jobs at present wage scales, the administration's railroad reorganization-economy bill was favorably reported by the senate interstate commerce committee today and Chairman Dill said he would ask for early consideration.

Several amendments proposed by the carriers, shippers and short lines also were approved before the committee approved the bill.

Dill predicted a fight in the senate on the amendment prohibiting dismissal of employés or the cutting of wages in carrying out orders of the railroad regional committees and the federal coördinator, but said President Roosevelt had no objection to it.

The amendment was approved in committee after a bitter controversy. Some members contended the railroad committees should be permitted to cut forces if rigid economy orders were to be complied with.

Need Not Fill Vacancies.

Dill, however, said that under the amendment the roads would not be required to fill normal vacancies up to five per cent a year through deaths, retirements and resignations and in this way the carriers could reduce their forces by 50,000.

The Washington senator also pointed out that business is picking up and the roads could save in another way by not calling back men who have been laid off in recent months.

Further changes were made in the bill. It provides that the coördinator shall set up regional boards of adjustment to settle controversies between employers and employés arising out of his orders. Nothing in the bill shall be construed to require any employé to render labor service without his consent. Notice shall be given labor committees for each of the three regional groups of carriers to give them an opportunity to present their views before any orders affecting employés are issued.

Standard Unions Recognized.

"Yellow dog" contracts and company unions are not recognized and only the standard railway labor unions will be dealt with.

States, municipalities and state commissions shall have the right to appeal to the interstate commerce commission from the coördinator's orders, which would not take effect until 20 days after publication.

The commerce commission shall not approve a loan to a carrier under the reconstruction corporation act "if it is of the opinion that such carrier is in need of financial reorganization in the public interest."

The railroads objected to the original provision regarding loans on the ground it was too drastic.

STEEL CONCERNS ADVANCE PRICES FOR 3D QUARTER

New York, May 19.—A distinct indication of higher steel prices all around for third quarter delivery, was given today when the Inland Steel company raised quotations on sheets $3 a ton.

Prices for current delivery had been advanced $2 a ton generally, but up to now no producer has been willing to quote for the third quarter. At the same time, it was reported, the Acme Steel company will announce third quarter advances of $1 to $2 a ton for strip.

Hot rolled strip, which was advanced $2 a ton in April, is being advanced another $1 a ton, bringing the third quarter price up to $1.60 a pound, Pittsburgh. Cold rolled strip price was not advanced at that time and will be increased $2 a ton to a minimum of 2 cents a pound, Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

Pig iron prices have been increased $1 a ton at Philadelphia, the third mark up in about a month, to $15.50 level.

RESERVE BOARD SEEKS TO HELP SMALLER BANKS

Congress Urged to Liberalize Loans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 10.—Revamping of the lending powers of the federal reserve bank, so that the facilities which the reserve system offers will be more attractive to country banks, was asked of congress today by the federal reserve board.

The board requested congress to allow the reserve banks to lend to member banks on their promissory notes for periods up to 90 days, instead of for only 15 days, the present time limit. The request was contained in the board's annual report.

Report Signed by Meyer.

Eugene Meyer, who retired as governor of the board some days ago, signed the report. Meyer's successor, Eugene R. Black, former governor of the Atlanta, Ga., reserve bank, was sworn in today at the same time that Dean G. Acheson, Washington lawyer, was sworn in as undersecretary of the treasury.

In requesting the new lending power, which was urged particularly because it would aid the spread of the reserve system among country banks, the reserve board pointed out that "the business of country banks, particularly those in the agricultural sections, is such that they frequently need continuous accommodations for periods extending up to 90 days or more."

"It is obvious that a bank which needs credit for a period of 90 days, will find it decidedly unsatisfactory to borrow on its 15 day note, which would have to be renewed five times during the 90 day period," the board argued. It inferred that this handicap had prevented the growth of the system outside of large cities.

Recalls Members' Privilege.

The board reminded congress that the reserve banks are allowed to discount eligible paper with maturities up to 90 days for member banks. Permitting the member banks to borrow on their notes, which must be secured by eligible paper for 90 days, would not change the operations of the reserve banks, the board said.

Use of direct loans through promissory notes in the place of discounts, makes the business of the reserve bank simpler, in addition to making the accommodations for member banks better, according to the board. Only one rate of discount need be figured on a note regardless of the varied collateral behind it, the board said, but if many types of paper are offered in a discount proceeding, a separate rate must be figured on each type of paper.

TIN PLATE MILL WILL BE BUILT BY INLAND STEEL

Plans for the construction of a $2,000,000 tin plate mill at Indiana Harbor were discussed last night by L. E. Block, chairman of the board of the Inland Steel company.

"We are contracting for the construction of the plant," Mr. Block said. "It will form a part of our comprehensive plan in connection with a new strip mill. The new mill will be able to turn out 100,000 tons of tin plate a year."

Mr. Block said that the mill will be erected because of the large market for tin plate which has developed in the Chicago region. A strip mill takes a heavy piece of steel and reduces it to the size and thickness required for the application of tin.

Nation on Way Out of Slump, Says Firestone, Here for Fair

"America is on its way out of the depression. The change in sentiment of the people as a result of the leadership exerted by President Roosevelt has accomplished this. It is now up to the nation to see that it keeps moving forward."

This message of cheer was brought to Chicago yesterday by Harvey S. Firestone, chairman of the board of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company and one of the country's most important industrial leaders. Mr. Firestone is in Chicago accompanied by his son, Russell, and J. W. Thomas, president of the company, to inspect the Firestone exhibit a A Century of Progress.

Roosevelt Dictatorship Needed.

"President Roosevelt is a dictator and that's what we need now," Mr. Firestone remarked. "His leadership has restored the confidence of every one. Take Akron. A huge amount of the city's bank deposits are frozen in one large closed bank. Despite that every one in Akron is feeling better and is smiling again. Roosevelt's manner of doing things has accomplished that.

"I think that one thing above many others is going to help restore the country, that is the Century of Progress. The fair is one of the greatest shows that I have ever seen and people all over the country are planning to visit it.

Autos Vital to Prosperity.

"The automobile industry and its auxiliary services now shares with the railroad industry a vital rôle in maintenance of prosperity," Mr. Firestone continued. "Prior to the advent of the automobile the furnishing of supplies and equipment to the railroads was one of the great sources of employment.

"Trucks and automobiles have now taken over a large slice of the nation's transportation and consequently maintaining them now means much to employment."

Mr. Firestone said that there are now more than twice as many people working in the rubber industry as were employed two months ago. His own plant at Akron is working at full capacity, 24 hours a day, six days a week. May, he said, will see the greatest amount of replacement tires turned out in the history of the company.

Mr. Firestone asserted that estimates have been made that one-third of the tires now in use will have to be replaced.

GERMANS DELAY DEBTS PARLEY FOR AMERICANS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 19.—The conference of Germany's international creditors called to consider the German capacity to pay approximately 727 millions of marks annually (the mark is worth about 27.2 cents at current exchange) on a total foreign indebtedness of nearly 20 billion marks has been postponed from May 26 until May 29. The postponement is to permit the American representatives, Albert H. Wiggin and John Foster Dulles, to reach the conference.

Pending the return of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the president of the reichsbank, who was in London today conferring with Montagu Norman, the governor of the Bank of England, German financial authorities remain noncommittal as to the exact plan that Germany is to present at the conference.

Von Papen Gives Hint.

That the ultimate outcome of the meeting will be a partial transfer moratorium, however, was reaffirmed today by Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen, who in a speech before the German Sugar association said:

"We have always proved by our deeds that we want to be honest debtors. But, in view of the condition of our currency coverage known to the whole world through our reichsbank statements, no financier will be surprised if we seek to pay part of our foreign obligations temporarily in marks instead of in foreign exchange."

Put It Up to Creditors.

The German tactics will apparently be to put the situation up to the creditors. Inspired utterances deny that Germany will make any "demands"; rather, she will simply declare that she is no longer able to transfer the full amount of her debt service and ask the creditors for proposals as to how to meet the situation.

Behind the scenes, no doubt, efforts will continue to induce some of the creditors to propose of their own accord various relief measures such as the reduction of interest and amortization charges or to interest the creditors in the expansion of German exports.

Form American Syndicate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Formation of the syndicate of American creditors owning German blocked accounts to exchange, with the consent of German exchange control, marks held by Americans in Germany for the dollars of buyers of German goods having bills in marks to pay, is being formed under the auspices of the Harriman International company.

WHEAT RECEDES; GRAIN TRADERS TURN TO STOCKS

Prices Drop Fractionally; Prospects Better.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Eastern operators, according to trade gossip yesterday, have been liquidating their holdings of long wheat for several days and deserting the market for the faster action promised in stocks. They are said to believe that securities have developed a definite trend, whereas wheat has held roughly within a range of between 71 to 75 cents for nearly three weeks on the July delivery.

This class of selling was again in evidence in wheat yesterday and was regarded as largely responsible for a break of over 1 cent from the finish of the preceding day. The July option dropped to 71 cents at the extreme, the lowest figure in the local market since May 9.

Many local longs also have gone out of their lines, but aggressive support from commission houses and holders of bids absorbed the surplus in the pit and brought about a strong rally with the close ¼ to ⅝ cent lower for the day.

Statistics Against Bulls.

Continued favorable crop reports from the spring wheat area have had a tendency lately to undermine the confidence of buyers. In addition they found cold comfort in a statement by the department of agriculture emphasizing the prospect of a carryover of old grain at the end of the current crop of around 350,000,000 bushels, or about three times the normal amount and practically the same as last year.

The official statement directed attention to the tremendous reduction in the foreign demand, which makes the acreage in the United States relatively large. The report said the price advance this season does not necessarily mean a permanent improvement in the wheat situation, as it reflects the abandonment of nearly one-third of the acreage sown last fall. Unless steps are taken to prevent it, said the report, the winter wheat acreage abandoned this year will be seeded again for next year's crop.

May wheat in Chicago closed at 70¼ cents with July at 71⅜ to 71⅝ cents; September, 72⅞ to 73 cents, and December, 74⅞ to 75 cents.

Corn in Sharp Break.

Heavy rains early in the day at numerous Illinois and Iowa points brought a rush of buying in corn and lifted the July delivery ⅝ cent to 46⅞ cents, but the sun came out later and the bullish enthusiasm evaporated. Prices dropped 1⅝ to 2 cents from the early high and the market failed to recover the loss, closing ½ to ⅝ cent lower. May was 42⅝ cents; July, 45⅝ to 45½ cents, and September, 47⅜ to 47¾ cents.

The rains put an effective stop to what little work was being done in planting corn at many Illinois points.

The rye market was unsettled and closed ¾ cent lower to 1 cent higher. The May option showed the most decline, finishing at 55½ cents, while July was 57¼ cents and September 57⅝ cents. Oats lost ¼ to ⅝ cent, with May closing at 25 cents and July 25⅜ cents. Barley was ½ to ⅝ cent lower, with July at 35½ cents and September 37 cents.

COTTON TRADE LIGHTER; PRICES RANGE LOWER

Cotton traders are in a waiting position. Outside interest has diminished and professional traders, while active, are about evenly divided in opinion. Action of the sterling exchange market has a great deal to do with operations of the trade which awaits definite news from Washington as to what is to be done in the immediate future, the belief being that something will be given out that will stimulate new buying and higher prices. In the meantime traders are not making large commitments.

Prices averaged lower, with futures in Chicago off 2 to 11 points, and other markets 9 to 13 points net lower. Spots declined 10 points, with New York middlings down to 8.50 cents; New Orleans, 8.45 cents; Galveston, 8.25 cents, and Houston, 8.30 cents. Liverpool was weak and closed 11 to 12 points net lower.

Spinners' takings of American cotton for the week were 324,000 bales, against 260,000 last week, 137,000 bales a year ago, and 234,000 two years ago. Into sight movement for the week was 180,000 bales, against 171,069 bales last week, 721,899 bales last year, and 70,516 bales two years ago. A New York Cotton exchange seat sold at $18,250 or the same as the previous sale. Prices follow:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—A moderately active gray cloth market at strong prices was reported today. Widespread rumors of rayon yarn advances made mills unwilling to book orders. Rising material costs have forced woolen and worsted manufacturers to continue withdrawn on fall lines. Burlap prices were firm and brisk buying was noted.

LIQUIDATION BREAKS LARD MARKET PRICES

Profit taking and general liquidation due to lower prices for hogs and grains carried lard futures down 30 cents and bellies 20 cents in early trading. Commission house and other buying brought a good rally later with net losses of 15 to 22½ cents on lard and 10 to 17¼ cents on belly futures. Regular cash lard was $6.47½, loose $5.80, leaf $5.75, and bellies $7.25. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 6d higher on futures.

There were deliveries on May sales of 100,000 pounds of lard, and 200,000 pounds of bellies. Exports of lard were 307,375 pounds, and of bacon 12,500 pounds. Fresh pork loins were easy at 7½ to 10 cents. Prices follow:

ALL LIVE STOCK DECLINES FROM RECENT HIGHS

All live stock came under pressure yesterday and part of the recent sharp gains were rubbed out. Trading turned sluggish in most divisions, with closing sales lowest of the day. The hog market dragged into the late afternoon rounds and closed fully 10 to 15 cents under the average of Thursday. Top sales were forced down 15 cents to $5.25, while the general average for the day showed 10 cents loss at $5.10. Prices, however, still are 40 to 45 cents above a week ago and $1.00 higher than early last week. Sellers attempted to check the decline early in the session, and some hogs were held off the market when prices began to ease.

Think Break Temporary.

It is believed that the break is temporary, as general conditions are no different now than they were earlier in the week. The sharp break in the markets at leading western centers worried the bullish side of the trade some yesterday, as it pulled prices at other points relatively lower than those in vogue at Chicago. Top prices at various points in the west ranged from $4.65 to $4.95. Eastern markets weakened the least, with high points east of Chicago at $5.25 to $5.60.

Cattle prices are closing weak to 25 cents lower than the high point of the week, plainer kinds showing the most weakness, but prices still are sharply above the low point of the month. Nothing of choice quality was in the run, some 1,357 pound steers topped the list for load lots at $6.70, while six long yearlings averaging 1,110 pounds sold at $6.75.

Lamb Prices Lower.
